RUSSIANS CLAIM DRIVE ROLLS ON IN ROSTOV ZONE

Nazis Shift Troops from Crimea.

BULLETIN.

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Red army has recaptured 100 settlements in the last 24 hours in pursuing German forces toward Taganrog, dispatches reported tonight.

(Map on page 5.)

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—Stiffened German resistance on the Rostov-Mariupol front, where the retreating main Nazi armies were understood to be urgently calling up reënforcements from the Crimea in an effort to break the most powerful Russian counteroffensive of the war, was reported tonight in soviet advices.

This was accompanied by indications that German pressure on Sevastopol, the great Black sea naval base in the Crimea and by far the most important of Hitler's objectives on that peninsula, had been in consequence much weakened by the diversion of these substantial forces.

Red Push Still Unchecked.

While a correlated strengthening of Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist's resistance on the road back from Rostov toward Mariupol, 100 miles to the west, was thus noted, soviet informants said that the great Red push still was rolling generally unchecked.

Between Taganrog, 40 miles west of Rostov, and Mariupol the Germans were declared still in full retreat and many of the slower German units were reported being cut off.

Some dispatches asserted that whether or not any important German forces managed eventually to get out alive, Von Kleist already had irrevocably lost a great engagement, especially in the vast numbers of tanks and cars captured by the Reds.

[Germans report Russians hurl huge forces into southern battle. Story on page 5.]

Cheer from Two Fronts.

Before Leningrad, the Russians were declared to have seized the initiative, the Germans having offered strong indications that they were settling down on the defensive.

On the Moscow front Russian dispatches reported that the German offensive generally had fallen sharply in power and it was claimed that in the Klin area, 50 miles northwest of the capital, the invader had been beaten back to the defensive.

One Serious Situation.

In the Mozhaisk sector, 57 miles west of Moscow, however, a serious situation for the defenders was acknowledged. There, it was said, the Germans were trying to drive eastward between the Volokolamsk-Mozhaisk highways.

On the Moscow front, the midnight soviet communique announced, 4,400 Germans had been wiped out, and 700 more "annihilated" in the southwest.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 5 [Friday].—A British "ultimatum" that Finland "lay down arms and accept peace with Russia, guaranteed by Britain, if she wishes to avoid a declared state of war with this country," so far has not been answered, the Daily Telegraph said today. Similar notes were sent to Hungary and Rumania.

Reports from Helsingfors said the time limit expires tonight. The Finns earlier this week said a "considered reply" would be sent and indicated it likely would be transmitted thru the French minister in Washington, D. C. London sources cited that Finland "already has been warned by Britain and the United States of the dangers she runs by associations with Germany."

Most diplomatic correspondents take the view that even if a reply is made, it likely will not be satisfactory and will leave no alternative to a declaration of war.

[Other dispatches quoted London observers as saying the Russian withdrawal from Hango showed the Reds were doing everything possible to give the Finns an excuse to stop fighting. Story on Hango situation, page 5.]

Ration Ethyl, Nip Motorists 250 Millions

American motorists will have to pay 250 million dollars more for gasoline next year as the result of the nation's gigantic rearmament program, an oil industry survey indicated yesterday.

Because of an order of the Office of Production Management curtailing production of tetraethyl lead [anti-knock fluid], motorists will have to buy one and one-quarter billion more gallons of gasoline to get where they're going, experts said. At 20 cents a gallon, including taxes, that means 250 million dollars.

Ration Ethyl to Refineries.

Refineries, according to the survey of the oil industry made in New York City, will be forced to market gasoline of 70 octane rating, compared with the 75 octane rating now accepted for "standard" gasoline. Already the Ethyl Gasoline corporation, maker of tetraethyl lead, is rationing its product to refineries.

The cut in octane rating means slower starting, less pickup and more engine knocks. On modern high compression engines, use of the lower octane gasoline will necessitate timing and spark adjustments.

The government also has requested refineries to stop using other blending agents needed in the manufacture of 100 octane aviation gasoline.

"Taking the blending agents out of gasoline is like removing the cream from whole milk," said one Tulsa, Okla., refiner.

"Whipping up Apprehension."

Meanwhile the executive committee of the Eastern States Gasoline Dealers' conference, meeting in New York, charged that the federal oil administration "is whipping up apprehension" among motorists with statements about the claimed shortage of chlorine and lead, essential ingredients in the manufacture of tetraethyl lead.

"I think this may be termed another so-called gasoline shortage like last summer's," said Sol A. Herzog, counsel for the conference, which represents state dealer groups from Maine to Georgia. "Tetraethyl lead takes for all gasoline only 5 per cent of the pig lead and 1½ per cent of the chlorine produced nationally. Curtailment would effect little savings."

Currently the ethyl concern is saving one million cubic feet of chlorine gas daily by using a different manufacturing process, and it will have an output in excess of anticipated demand by April 1, when a new plant at Baton Rouge, La., will begin operations.

WRITES A FAREWELL NOTE TO WIFE AS HE DIES OF AUTO FUMES

Robert Harkness.

Robert Harkness, 40 years old, Chicago attorney and real estate dealer, sat in the rear seat of his automobile at 131st street and 88th avenue, Palos township, yesterday. He was writing farewell notes as a hose fastened to the exhaust poured its deadly fumes into the car.

Calmly he wrote: "Take my body to Schneider's, somewhere on 75th street" and "Please call Bud Wagner at Grays Lake, Ill." Then he began a note to his wife, Bess. He wrote several lines before his fountain pen began to run dry. Then he waited for death. When found he still sat upright in the seat, his fountain pen clutched in his fingers.

Mrs. Harkness, notified in her home at 123d and 86th avenues, Palos Park, barely a mile and a half away, told Lieut. Henry Andel of the Willow Springs station, sheriff's highway police, that her husband had been despondent over financial matters.

The note to her read:

"Dear Bess:

"This is a cowardly thing to do, but I can see no other way out, even with your help. I know you will take good care of Malcolm, Jim, and Sarah [their three children]. They are everything we have and worth more than anything in the world. I know you will manage without me. I am afraid there is no more ink."

KNOX ENDS TERMS OF FLYERS WHO BEHEAD WOMAN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, has signed an order remitting unserved portions of sentences given to Paul C. Brown of Chicago and Joseph C. Thompson of Healdsburg, Cal., ex-ensigns court martialed last May for decapitating an Alabama woman by flying low over a turnip field in which she was working.

The two men were ordered released from Portsmouth, N. H., naval prison Dec. 15. They had been put in prison Aug. 8, on which day they were also formally dismissed from the navy.

Brown had been given a 24 months sentence and Thompson, a passenger in the plane Brown was piloting, 12 months.

Navy officials said the two men were not being restored to the service. The secretary issued the order, it was said, because he believed that the two had been punished sufficiently.

40 Seek Sheep Shearing Title at Show Today

Forty roachers went to bed last night with a prayer on their lips that they wouldn't catch a cobbler this morning. All are high rollers, but a bad cobbler might make a stone popper out of any of them.

Translated into city language, this means that the 40 men entered in today's national champion sheep shearing contest at the International Live Stock exposition are hoping they won't get a sheep that is hard to handle this morning when the contest for the $150 cash award begins.

All the shearers [roachers] are fast ones [high rollers], but a fighting sheep [cobbler] might slow them down [make them stone poppers].

Three Sheep Allotted to Each.

On a platform in the tanbark arena at the International amphitheater, 41st and Halsted streets, the men display their skill in shearing three market sheep each. They will be scored on the absence of cuts, the manner of handling, the appearance of the shorn sheep, the absence of cuts in the fleece, the general condition of the fleece, and the time taken in shearing.

Altho last year's champion, William Whistler of Aurora, will not compete, managers of the contest expect some of the experienced roachers to equal Whistler's winning time of 2 minutes 40 seconds for turning out a shorn lamb.

Some Are Professionals.

Many of the entrants are farm flock shearers who work mainly in the farm flock states such as Illinois, Iowa, and Kansas. Others are traveling shearers, the professionals of the range lands, where they often shear 150 to 200 sheep a day.

The shearers will use electrical machines to do their work, and eight will work at once on the platform in the arena. They start first on the animal's belly and then shear the legs. The last clips are made down the back in long straight strokes. This method of shearing was imported from Australia, and is by far the most rapid known.

HOUSE IN UPROAR OVER F. D. R. WAR AIMS; DELAYS DEBATE ON 8 BILLION ARMS BILL

New Deal Leaders Concede Truth of Charges.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rep. Tinkham.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—Both houses of congress rocked today to reverberations of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S publication of the Roosevelt administration's secret plans for a foreign war.

In the house of representatives, alarmed floor leaders delayed consideration of the administration's new 8 billion 244 million dollar arms spending bill for more than two hours as they discussed the possibility that a storm over THE TRIBUNE'S disclosures might result in a vote to send the measure back to the appropriations committee.

When the measure finally reached the floor, debate revolved for the next 90 minutes around the disclosure of secret administration plans for a colossal AEF.

Called Proof of Betrayal.

Presenting The Tribune article as proof that "the American republic has been betrayed" by the Roosevelt administration, Rep. George Holden Tinkham [R., Mass.] obtained unanimous consent to insert the dispatch in the Congressional Record.

In the senate, as in the house, members all over the floor read The Tribune story in the Washington Times-Herald. Copies of the newspaper disappeared from the capitol news stands and the senators' private library soon after the senate convened.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], when reached by telephone at Pueblo, Colo., announced that he will introduce a resolution calling on administration officials to state publicly whether they are planning to send a huge AEF to Europe.

The interventionists sought to minimize the revelations, asserting that while the secret high command report divulged by THE TRIBUNE presents a plan, it does not represent a commitment to send expeditionary forces overseas.

WORK IN HOUSE STOPS

Routine business came to a standstill in the house while members sought to analyze the widespread repercussions inherent in the sensational exposures.

Making no attempt to deny the authenticity of the secret war document, Rep. John Taber [R., N. Y.], ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee, said it was the first time he could recall, in 19 years' service in the house, that a President of the United States had asked his joint strategy board to prepare such a plan.

Administration spokesmen, altho attacking the published statements based on the secret document, declined an invitation to insert in the Congressional Record a copy of the original document so all members could study it.

The war and navy departments, called upon this morning to produce some sort of a face saving statement which administration spokesmen might use to discount The Tribune story, could find only two minor points on which to attack the revelations. All thru the day, according to reliable reports, high army and navy officials were going over the story again and again in an effort to find some point vulnerable to New Deal siege guns.

Consider Sidetracking Bill.

Rep. Clarence Cannon [D., Mo.], chairman of the appropriations committee; Rep. John W. McCormack [D., Mass.], administration floor leader, and Rep. Taber were seen in a gloomy huddle in Cannon's office. They were considering the possibility

LONDON PAPERS GIVE BIG PLAY TO TRIBUNE'S STORY

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 5 [Friday].—London newspapers this morning devoted columns to dispatches regarding THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S disclosure of President Roosevelt's secret war plan.

The Daily Mail printed two stories, one from its New York correspondent on the front page, and the other from Washington, D. C., on the back page. Under the heading, "Secret U. S. War Plan—Roosevelt Angry at Leakage," the New York story said:

"There is reason to believe that many of THE TRIBUNE'S revelations are genuine."

Assert Action Demanded.

The Washington story, dated Dec. 3, said:

"Members of President Roosevelt's cabinet demanded action tonight under the espionage laws following the publication today by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of an alleged United States victory w · plan."

Gives Story Full Column.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph devoted a full column on the front page to a story from its Chicago correspondent. This story bore the head, "Secret U. S. Document on War Plans—Inquiry Ordered by White House," and said:

"The general feeling among newspaper men was that THE TRIBUNE is to be congratulated on a smart piece of journalistic enterprise," but, "the reaction among most officials was that the act very nearly approached the treasonable."

[In Washington Stephen T. Early, one of President Roosevelt's secretaries, yesterday said that American newspapers are "operating as a free press" and that the "right to print the news is unchallenged."]

What Other Papers Said.

The banner on the Daily Sketch was: "Expeditionary Force from U. S.—Alleged Secret Plan."

This was what the News Chronicle said: "AEF of 5,000,000 Men, Report in U. S."

REPORT FRANCE TO GIVE AFRICA BASES TO NAZIS

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—A Reuters dispatch datelined "somewhere in Europe" said today that the Vichy government had agreed to give Germany all the naval and air bases she requires in French North Africa—if Germany could occupy them without the assistance of the French fleet.

This was described as the main point of agreement reached between Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and Marshal Petain during their conversation in occupied France the other day. In return, the story went on, Vichy would get back more prisoners of war and be granted a reduction in the German occupation costs.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle, "Free French" leader, declared last night that as a result of the latest meeting between Adm. Jean Darlan and Goering, France "would doubtless throw open the gates of North Africa to the enemy."

"Hitler has need for reënforcements and is hard pressed for time," De Gaulle asserted in a radio broadcast in French.

DISLIKES HAVING BULLET IN NECK; COUGHS IT UP!

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 4 (AP).—"I coughed this up," D. M. Wood told hospital attendants, exhibiting a .32 caliber bullet. "I didn't like the taste of lead."

Wood explained he was investigating a noise at his home and his pistol dropped to the floor, discharging once. The bullet entered his chest and ranged upward, missing lungs, vital veins and arteries, and lodged in the throat. Wood drove to the hospital.

White House Calls Cabinet Aid to Draft Reply.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S exclusive revelation of the Roosevelt administration project to expand the army and navy to 10 million men and send American expeditionary forces of 5 million men overseas to fight Germany, Italy, and Japan rocked official Washington today.

The history making story obtained and written by Chesly Manly of THE TRIBUNE'S Washington bureau tossed the American press into a furor, caused shocked street corner comment thruout the nation, and brought forth page one comment in the London newspapers, which showed avid interest in the master plan of American action against the axis and pleasure at the seeming verification of the British hope that the "Yanks are coming again."

White House Is Upset.

The proof presented by THE TRIBUNE—excerpts from the secret plans of the administration to take the United States into the war raging in Europe, Africa, and Asia—upset the White House, as well as the state, war, and navy departments, from which have emanated repeated denials of such intentions.

In these departments, the OPM and other armament production agencies, work virtually was at a standstill for hours as officials gathered to discuss the exposure and the possible reaction of the American people to the evidence that they were being deceived by the administration.

THE TRIBUNE'S quotations from the secret report of the Joint Army and Navy board admitting that Britain and Russia cannot defeat Germany, and that an enormous American expeditionary force will be required, and that the object of our colossal expenditures is to preserve the British empire, were pronounced by noninterventionists to be a complete substantiation of their contentions for several months.

Public Service Applauded

They applauded the public service of THE TRIBUNE in publishing administration war plans that were known to the British and the Russians—and even to the axis powers, according to a German authority—known to all but the American people.

The interventionists sought to minimize the revelations, asserting that while the joint board's report presents a plan, it does not represent a commitment to send expeditionary forces overseas.

The President summoned Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox for a discussion of THE TRIBUNE'S scoop and the policy to be pursued in relation thereto. After a protracted conference Knox emerged and made the following statement to reporters:

"All departments concerned are investigating how they [THE TRIBUNE] got that report."

In Response to F. D. R. Letter.

The war department made an official announcement that it is investigating the source of THE TRIBUNE'S information. The joint board's report, a copy of which THE TRIBUNE obtained, was made in response to a letter President Roosevelt wrote on July 9 last to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. The President asked Stimson to collaborate with Knox in initiating an inquiry into the volume of arms production required to "defeat our potential enemies."

The President wrote the letter on the day that he received Wendell Willkie, who left the White House telling reporters that American bases should be established in the British Isles and elsewhere, as the joint board's report eventually proposed.

Tells of Churchill Meeting.

On Aug. 18 last, while the joint board was at work on the war plan report, the President related to a group of congressional leaders what took place at his high seas conference with Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain.

Chesly Manly of THE TRIBUNE obtained an authoritative account of the White House meeting in which it came out that the Anglo-American alliance cemented on the high seas calls for an ultimate land invasion of the European continent as the only possible means of defeating Hitler, and that such an invasion would depend upon a vast American expedi-

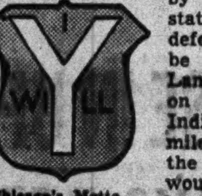
SITE IN COUNTY PROPOSED FOR BOMBER PLANT

Army Officers Interested by Gov. Green.

BY HAL FOUST.

A site for a bomber assembly plant in southern Cook county is proposed by the Illinois state council for defense. It would be at the Ford-Lansing airport on the Illinois-Indiana line, 25 miles south of the loop. It would employ at least 10,000 and perhaps as many as 25,000 men.



Chicago's Motto.

Gov. Dwight Green, chairman of the defense council, in Washington, D. C., last week urged upon army officials that Illinois receive a bomber plant in the expanding aviation program. He was encouraged by interviews with Brig. Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of construction for the quartermaster general, and with Col. William F. Volandt, assistant chief of the material division of the army air corps.

Information Assembled.

In response to requests from these officers, the defense council is preparing recommendations for likely sites, including data on labor and material supplies, transportation, housing, and accessibility of parts and equipment. A favorable report on these factors, as they apply to the Ford-Lansing airport, was obtained from the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The prospects of more bomber plants being built in the United States are based mainly on President Roosevelt's arsenal of democracy speeches projecting an output of 500 a month next year. Estimated capacity of present plants plus those under construction is approximately 255 a month. These factories are in the industrial areas of San Diego, Los Angeles, Seattle, Fort Worth, Tulsa, Omaha, Kansas City, Wichita, Baltimore, and Detroit.

The construction of one heavy bomber is said to require 250,000 man hours of labor. A plant with 10,000 men would work 80,000 man hours a day, requiring three days for one bomber, giving a capacity output of 10 planes a month.

Parts Made in Chicago.

Aircraft components are cast or forged and machined in plants thruout the Chicago metropolitan area, but the closest bomber assembly line is one nearing completion at Ypsilanti, Mich. Large aviation engines are to be produced by Buick in its Melrose Park factory. Studebaker's new Chicago factory is to make parts for aviation engines. Subassembly structures are fabricated by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company.

Among the 9,000 other industrial plants in Chicago are those which produce or can produce most of the hundreds of smaller parts that go into a bomber, instruments, pumps, lights, brakes, and shock absorbers, to mention only a few.

The Ford-Lansing property consists of 1,420 acres lending itself to construction of a system of five runways, three of them 9,000 feet long, one 7,000 feet and one 5,000 feet. The flying field would cover 890 acres, leaving 530 acres for offices and assembly lines.

Serving the port are three railroads, the Monon, the Pennsylvania, and the Grand Trunk. Burnham avenue and Calumet road abut the field and the Lincoln highway, U. S. 30, a superhighway in Indiana, is only two miles south.

Coast Sites Favored Earlier.

Other arguments for the site are those that have previously been listed for Chicagoland generally in THE TRIBUNE'S campaign, a success to date, in getting more contracts and more new industries for this area in the government's multibillion dollar defense and lend-lease program.

The Atlantic and Pacific coasts received the lion's share in the first billions of this program. Chicagoland in the last month has been receiving a large share, but it still needs more to compensate for priority unemployment and to keep its small industries going.

Among arguments for another large armament plant in Chicagoland are the following: Here is the largest reservoir of skilled labor in America, free from the strike strife that has impeded armament production in other parts of the country; here is adequate housing, 52,817 vacant units in Cook county reported in the last census, so that tax money does not have to be spent for the potential ghost towns being built around defense industries remote from existing population centers; here is the center of the nation's railroad system, also served by inland waterways; and here is a location remote from any risk of coastal raids.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

THE QUESTION.

Of all the words in the English language, which is the most beautiful to you?

WHERE ASKED.

De Paul university, 64 East Lake street.

THE ANSWERS.

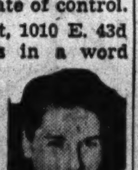
Gertrude Husslein, student, 7324 Phillips avenue—Edgar Allan Poe coined my favorite word a long time ago. I memorized one of his poems and never forgot it on account of his word "tintinnabulation." It seems to play a tune all its own, and every time I hear it I think of Christmas and bells and everything delicate and tinkling.

Florence Passner, student, 1430 North Dearborn street—Walt Disney made a beautiful word very popular: "Fantasia." I think it has a sweet and melodic sound and suggests something too beautiful to touch—something ethereal and dainty. It seems to be the perfect word to describe immaterial beauty.

George Leavitt, student, 3359 Hirsch street—This word's not only beautiful to hear and say, it's relaxing to think about: "equilibrium." It's meaning seems to be defined within itself and can be applied to everything from the rationalistic qualities of man to anything material or immaterial. I'd say its beauty is of the masculine type, too.

Robert Schram, student, 845 Sheridan road, Wilmette, Ill.—I don't think there are so very many beautiful words in the English language, but the one that I'd like to think is typically American—and beautiful, too, is "balance." I like the solidity of the word and the picture its meaning brings to my mind—of everything being in a state of control.

Merril Hudetz, student, 1010 E. 43d street—A lot of vowels in a word give it softness and beauty, I think. A word that has plenty of them is "Honolulu," and I like it. It's so suggestive of peace and quiet and almost sounds like slow moving music. I wouldn't mind if we'd adopt a few more of those Hawaiian words.



Lillian Waishwell, student, 5436 Berteau avenue—I like words with a lot of pep and sparkle—like "scintillating." It's as pleasant to say it as it is to hear. It's a word that can be used to describe music—and that's a hard thing to describe. It really conveys the meaning of merry tunes.

Husband Aided in Fight to Keep Support.

For the first time in the history of divorce cases in Illinois, a court ruled yesterday that a wife must pay the expenses her husband will incur in defending the wife's appeal of a court order requiring her to pay support to the husband.

Mrs. Marie Cummings

Mrs. Marie Cummings, 40 years old, 5471 Division street, a teacher at the Mary Lyons school, appeared before Judge Rudloph Desort in Superior court and announced that she will appeal Judge Desort's order of Nov. 5, which required her to pay $7 a week support to Cecil J. Cummings, 39, of 4744 Madison street, a civil engineer.

Sex No Advantage.

That order was entered when Judge Desort found that Cummings, who is suing for separate maintenance, needed the money, and that his wife had supported him.

Cummings' attorney, Paul F. Pomeroy, immediately asked for $500 in attorney's fees with which to defend Mrs. Cummings' appeal. The court ordered her to pay the sum.

Judge Desort reëntered the support order—which had been automatically suspended by the wife's notice of appeal.

Tricked in Reno.

Mrs. Cummings obtained a divorce last Aug. 26 in Reno, Nev., but Cummings charges that the decree is invalid because Mrs. Cummings, as a resident of Illinois, cannot legally obtain a "foreign" divorce.

In testimony at previous hearings Cummings asserted that his wife wired him to come to Reno last August, telling him all was forgiven and suggesting a reconciliation. He pictured himself happily traveling to the divorce mecca, only to step off the train into the arms of a process server instead of a forgiving spouse.

SKIDMORE LOSES REHEARING PLEA; SEEKS JAIL STAY

William R. Skidmore, reputed front for the Chicago gambling syndicate, yesterday was denied a rehearing by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals which on Oct. 31 upheld his conviction in the District court on a charge of evading income tax payments of $353,194. The high court ruled without comment or handing down a written opinion.

William Scott Stewart, Skidmore's lawyer, announced he would ask the court today for a stay of mandate to keep his client out of jail. Stewart said he was preparing a petition asking the United States Supreme court to review the case. After his conviction Skidmore was sentenced to serve 2½ years in prison and pay a $5,000 fine.

Shortly before its first ruling in the Skidmore case the same Appellate coutr had reversed the income tax conviction of William R. Johnson, another gambling boss. The question of taking this decision to the Supreme court is now in the hands of Solicitor General Charles Fahy.

Slot Machine Maker's Books Confirm Expose by Tribune

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Evidence conclusively demonstrating the genuineness of secret documents published by THE TRIBUNE to show the inner workings of the Guzik gambling syndicate with its huge profit and graft payments was presented to the grand jury yesterday.

Ed Vogel.

Officials and employés of the companies from which the syndicate's chieftain's bought the equipment were the witnesses. They were reported to have brought in the ledger sheets on which were entries tallying with similar entries on a sheet marked "Equipment" obtained by THE TRIBUNE from an apartment that had been occupied by Jack Guzik—a record showing that $12,685 worth of gambling devices were purchased by the gamblers in July of this year.

Records of Purchases.

Here are the purchases listed on the syndicate's secret sheet for last July, many of which were said to have been verified for the grand jury:

July, 1941, Equipment.

8.	Bally Mfg. on acc.	$ 250
	Atlas Nov. [novelty]	250
	H. C. Evans	500
	Mills Nov.	1,500
10.	Argo	1,000
	Rex Nov	385
	N. Field	25
18.	Mills	1,500
	Atlas	250
	Bally	250
	Evans	500
22.	Monarch Coin	130
	Atlas Nlv	145
	H. C. Evans	500
25.	Mills Nov	1,500
29.	H. C. Evans	500
	Bally Mfg	500
	Mills Novelty	2,000
	Mills Novelty B1 acct	1,000

John Burns, auditor of the Mills Novelty company, which makes slot machines and other coin devices, was the final witness before the grand jury yesterday. He was asked to tell of the purchases of the gang, including the above, which were usually handled by Ed Vogel, onetime errand boy for Al Capone who now has risen to boss operation of slot machines and other coin devices.

Full Inquiry on Slot Machines.

How the Guzik gang made millions thru slot machines was said to be in the process of being unfolded before the grand jury, thru the testimony of Burns and others. The story of Vogel was being fully presented. Before it is concluded, prosecuters declared, it may show how the Guzik cohorts dominated the slot machine territory of Cook county and northward into portions of Wisconsin.

It was planned, it was stated, to lay all purchases of slot machines of the bells and cherries type before the jury.

Thru ledger accounts showing the receipt by the company of $1,500 on last July 8, $1,500 on July 18, $1,500 on July 25, $2,000 on July 29, and $1,000 on July 29 under an account labeled B. I., the authenticity of the Guzik documents was established, the prosecutors said.

It was shown that Vogel paid $6,000 to other manufacturers of slot machines and pinball games during that month. The records showed also that slot machine receipts to the Guzik gang from one portion of Cook county alone were $100,000 during that month.

Account in Vogel's Name.

The Mills books showed the gang account was kept in the name of Edward Vogel, 4300 Lake Shore drive. The gang bought 155 slot machines from this company in 1940 and $55,000 worth in 1941. As of Nov. 1, 1941, Vogel owed the company $18,139.

Lawrence [Dago] Mangano, local representative of the Guzik handbook interests, obtained a delay until Dec. 30 when arraigned yesterday before Municipal Judge Oscar Caplan as a wire tapper and keeper of a gambling house at 51 East Chicago avenue. His place there was raided Tuesday by Capt. Frank Reynolds, who said he found nine telephones in use. He added that the telephone service had been obtained by tapping wires on telephones in other buildings.

Margaret Clarke Chase Wins Waukegan Divorce

Mrs. Margaret Clarke Chase, 2237 Lincolnwood road, Highland Park, yesterday won a divorce in the Circuit court of Judge Ralph J. Dady at Waukegan from Stephen De Muth Chase, a Chicago bond salesman. The couple were married Dec. 23, 1939 in Evanston. Mrs. Chase charged her husband deserted her on Oct. 18, 1940. No alimony was sought. Mrs. Chase was given the right to resume use of her maiden name.

JAPAN TO REJECT U. S. PEACE BASIS, TOKIO FORECASTS

Official Agency Says Hull Demands Unacceptable.

Japs to Quit Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 4 (AP).—Japanese Minister Yoshiaki Miura announced tonight his government had ordered him home at once to consult on the "actual situation" in Mexico as a result of the heightening crisis in the Pacific between Japan and the United States. Miura's return to Mexico will "depend on circumstances and what my government decides," he said. Many Japanese residents are preparing to depart because of their expressed fear this country might become involved in any United State-Japanese conflict. "Only God knows how this crisis will be resolved," Miura replied when asked whether he thought war might break out in the Pacific.

TOKIO, Dec. 5 [Friday], (AP).—The authoritative Japanese news agency Domei said today that "Japan cannot accept" the stipulations of the document which the United States government handed to the Japanese ambassador Nov. 26 in the course of negotiations aimed at maintenance of peace in the Pacific.

[In it Secretary of State Cordell Hull set forth basic principles for peace in the Pacific which would require Japan to end her armed expansion in the far east, withdraw military forces from China and French Indo-China, and adopt peaceful economic policies to supplant the militarily established "new order" or "East Asia co-prosperity sphere."]

Quoting observers described as thoroly reliable, altho unofficial, Domei said:

"Such a document cannot serve as a basic datum [a fact or principle from which an ideal system of any sort is constructed.] in Japanese-American negotiations henceforth.

Stress Lack of Progress.

"Japanese-American conversations have taken place twice since the United States handed over to Japan the document in question, and the United States government has sent the Japanese inquiries pertaining to certain questions.

"But there is no tangible evidence of progress of the negotiations."

Because of Domei's close connections with the government, Americans considered the statement to be an accurate forecast of the eventual Japanese reply to the American questions.

[The Tokio radio, in a broadcast heard in New York, referred to the Domei statement and said, "A peaceful solution is becoming more difficult every day as the anti-Japanese encirclement is being continuously tightened on the instigation of the United States. If the United States and Britain try to keep Thailand out of the East Asia prosperity sphere, that fact alone will be a most serious threat to peace as far as Japan is concerned.]

Seek Rubber Monopoly.

The newspaper Yomiuri forecast that Japan was ready for "full coöperation" with French Indo-China. It was believed that Japan would try to monopolize, among other things, Indo-China's entire rubber production.

[Indo-China already is "coöperating" in imposing fashion as a base of Japanese military and naval power. A Chinese army spokesman at Chungking said yesterday that 40 Japanese warships, including an aircraft carrier with 45 planes aboard, had been seen recently in Camranh bay and that Japan now has between 125,000 and 140,000 soldiers in Indo-China, as opposed to a Vichy statement that the Japanese had not exceeded the agreed figure of 50,000.]

Berle's Bride

JOYCE MATTHEWS.

AUSTRALIA WAR CABINET GIRDS FOR EMERGENCY

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 5.—A war cabinet meeting in which chiefs of the military service participated has completed comprehensive plans to put Australia on a new emergency footing if war spreads to the Pacific, it was announced today.

Prime Minister John Curtin said the cabinet reviewed the services and the state of preparedness, examined precautionary measures to meet any contingency, and authorized further precautions when necessary.

Problems under review included marshaling of armed forces for maximum defensive power, control of internal communications to supplement or replace sea-borne traffic that migh be interrupted by enemy action, and revision of munitions supply services to enable Australia to be as self-contained as possible if isolated from overseas sources.

NAZIS BOMB LIBYA TRAIN; 36 GERMAN PRISONERS KILLED

WITH RAF IN THE WESTERN DESERT, Dec. 4 (AP).—Thirty-six German prisoners were killed and 60 wounded early today when German planes bombed freight cars carrying them to the Nile valley from the Libyan battlefront. The attack was made in the darkness.

After the bombers had blasted at the train, apparently in a belief that it carried British troops, they shuttled back and machine gunned the men. The only non-German casualty was one Italian.

A British night fighter shot down one attacker and, as it burned, the other planes bombed it also, presumably thinking they had struck a gasoline dump.

F. D. R. TO GET JAP REPLY TODAY ON THAILAND THREAT

Discusses Far East Crisis with Congressmen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The issue of war or peace in the far east may be decided with the submission of Japan's answer to President Roosevelt's demand for an explanation of the massing of Japanese troops in French Indo-China and to Secretary of State Cordell Hull's document rejecting Japanese suggestions for a "Pacific Munich."

Adm. Kichisaburo Nomura, the Japanese ambassador, and Saburo Kurusu, Japan's special peace envoy, today asked for and received an appointment to confer with Hull at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Expect Reply on Indo-China.

At the Japanese embassy it was said that the envoys will present Japan's reply to the President's inquiries. At his press conference Tuesday Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that he had demanded that the envoys explain why Japan is massing troops to menace Thailand while negotiations looking toward the establishment of a foundation for peace in the Pacific were under way in Washington.

It was also said that the envoys might submit a general statement of policy, formulated in Tokio, by way of an answer to the statement of basic American policy by Hull.

Hull was reported to have demanded Japanese withdrawal from the recently concluded Rome-Berlin-Tokio alliance, rejection of aggression as an instrument of national policy, and ultimate Japanese withdrawal from China.

Immediately the appointment with Japanese envoys was made, Hull went to the White House to confer with Mr. Roosevelt.

Congressmen at White House.

Earlier in the day Mr. Roosevelt summoned congressional leaders to the White House for consideration of the far eastern situation. Those present were Vice President Henry A. Wallace, Sen. Walter F. George [D., Ga.] appearing in the absence of the chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, Sen. Lister Hill [D., Ala.], acting senate majority leader, House Majority Leader John W. McCormack [D., Mass.], and Rep. Sol Bloom [D., N. Y.], chairman of the house foreign relations committee.

As they left the President's office after a 90 minute conference, McCormack read a single sentence scribbled on a card, saying the Japanese situation had been "thoroly canvassed in connection with the defense of our territories and our vital interests." The conference was also understood to have embraced the entire administration legislative program.

46 U. S. EXPERTS ON WAY TO SPEED UP BURMA ROAD

More War Goods Sent to Far East Forces.

MANILA, Philippine Islands, Dec. 4 (AP).—A detachment of 46 United States mechanical and trucking experts, assigned to smash the bottlenecks in the Burma military supply road to China and to be protected from Japanese bombers in that vital task by American planes and pilots, have arrived here en route to their new posts.

With this initial group came $250,000 worth of supplies for the Burma road transportation organization, along with war materials for American forces in the far east.

The Americans are under contract to Chiang Kai-shek, the Chinese generalissimo, at pay running up to $500 a month.

Road Being Improved.

Their job will be to handle the temperamental truckers, whose quiet fatalism keeps Burma road traffic in an uproar. They will establish repair stations all along the 712 mile roadway, which runs from British Burma into nationalist China, and will set up a wireless system to summon repair trucks for quick action whenever a crippled machine stalls a convoy in the mountainous passes.

30,000 Ton Traffic Goal Set.

The immediate objective set by the Americans and by the Chinese government transportation officials is 30,000 tons of traffic monthly. That would compare with 3,000 tons a month for last year.

[In Washington, D. C., it was disclosed on Wednesday night that United States lend-lease aid to China has reached enormous volume. Government officials reported about 14,000 American trucks soon would be rolling over the Burma road.]

About 260 American pilots who have quit the army and navy, for the time being, are flying in patrols against Japanese bombing raids. Many mechanics and technicians are in the service.

Chinese Fight to Bar Jap Retreat.

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 4 (AP).—About 40,000 Chinese troops have been engaged in sporadic fighting in the triangle formed by Nanchang, Nanking, and Hangchow, west of Shanghai and south of the Yangtze river, a Chinese spokesman said today.

There were no major battles, but the Chinese engaged Japanese forces at different points to prevent withdrawal of troops to the north or south, he said. Two points near Nanchang were reported recaptured.

HAMMER ROUTS 2 BANDITS.

When two bandits, both carrying guns, approached George Allbright late Wednesday in the filling station at 1400 West 87th street, where Allbright works, he struck one in the face with a hammer. The bandits jumped into their automobile and sped away. Allbright, who is 41 years old, lives at 706 West 81st street.

TRUCKERS ADVISED TO CONVERT AUTOS INTO AMBULANCES

D. Melville Carr, first aid director of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, addressing a meeting of the Central Motor Freight association in the Stevens hotel yesterday, urged that truck operators devise methods for converting their vehicles into ambulances. It has been estimated that a million Americans would be killed or wounded under President Roosevelt's war program.

"We must be prepared for the emergency," said Mr. Carr. "All motor vehicles will be needed for the defense program. Your present rolling stock can accommodate stretcher racks but the bodies lack two entrances for the convenience of stretcher bearers. You can also assist the government in designing new trucks that can best serve either as ambulances or freight carriers.

"You also can coöperate in the war preparations by training all of your drivers in first aid. They may be needed to drive ambulances."

Judge John Gutknecht of the Traffic court told the truckers that in adjusting a million traffic cases he has received only five complaints of policemen having shaken down drivers.

COL. M'CORMICK TALKS AT JEWISH WELFARE DINNER

Tells Some Experiences of World War Days.

An account of some of his World war experiences which, he said, profoundly affected his viewpoint, was given last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in an address before the advertising division of the Jewish Welfare Fund at its annual dinner in the Standard club.

The meeting was presided over by John Balaban, theater executive, who told the assembly the needs and the suffering are as great as ever. "Refugees are scattered over all the world," he said, "forced out of their homes; forced out of the chance to earn their families' bread and butter. Those of us lucky enough to live in this country must accept the obligation to provide as much as we need to live on."

Col. McCormick began by expressing pleasure in assisting the welfare fund. He related a few of his experiences while serving on Gen. Pershing's staff and told some of the heroic history of the men of the 1st division.

Tells Duty to Veterans.

Since the war, Col. McCormick said, it has been his duty to see that the veterans of the 1st division are not entirely forgotten. He closed with this appeal to his listeners:

"I have worked very hard on this speech, hoping to make it effective. If you find that I have helped you raise your quota, may I have a little of it for the broken men who have been 20 years in the army hospitals?"

The text of Col. McCormick's talk follows:

"I have four reasons for being with you tonight: first, that I am glad to be here; second, that I am glad to work in the cause of charity; third, because your committee said that my coming would increase the attendance. I have a fourth reason which I will give you at the conclusion of my address, which will explain an address which otherwise might be somewhat mystifying.

A Bit of Scotch History.

"You may be surprised to hear me say that I come from an oppressed race—the Scotch race. It resisted invasion and infiltration for 400 years, but was gradually worn down and was finally subdued in the middle of the 18th century by an army commanded by a son of the German born King George II.; but long before that, and for some time afterward, the most resolute of the Scots were driven from the country.

"My ancestors, in the words of King James I., were 'harried from the land' and compelled to settle on the bleak north coast of Ireland. There they lived for 150 years and created a civilization of their own. They fought with King William III. against James II. An ancestor of mine was a captain in the defense of Londonderry.

"Then came economic discrimination and religious oppression, and they migrated to America. Forbidden to land in New England or New York, they were accepted by Penn and placed between the Quakers and the Indians.

"I have two large books, one called the 'Ulster Scotch,' the other named the 'Scotch-Irish,' dealing with their history. These are books I have never read because on July 4, 1776, the McCormicks ceased being Scotch and became Americans.

"People with my family names write me—sometimes savagely—that I do not stand by my race. Patiently and politely I write them that I am of the American race; that every American citizen, whatever his origin—English or Greek, French or Hebrew, Polish or Portuguese—is of my race and is closer to me than to all of the Scots in Scotland—yes, or all the Chinese in China.

Reveres Beliefs of Others.

"Being of a church that has suffered oppression, I revere the beliefs of others. Certainly I was grateful for the loving prayers of Max Annenberg and his family in my wife's last illness, and I was humbly thankful to friends who had masses said for her soul after she died.

"My environment has been much the same as yours. I was born in Chicago. My father had lost his money and my mother had taken refuge with her sister. The building has since become the Key club, and I say that more people visit my birthplace than visit Lincoln's. My city home has never been a mile away from that site, and I own a farm near Wheaton.

"My experience has all been here excepting the war years, which profoundly affected my viewpoint—perhaps my character.

"At the outbreak of the World war, because of my father's diplomatic service in England, Russia, and France, I was offered an opportunity to see it as no one else could. I was enabled to visit all of the allied armies and to stay at the headquarters of their commanders.

"You do not get something for nothing. One day in March of 1915 I was invited to the Russian embassy in London, was presented with a square box about 2 feet high, and was told it contained the battle signals of the British fleet, then about to force the Dardanelles.

"British and Russian citizens could not go thru pro-German Greece and pro-German Bulgaria unsearched, I was told, but as the customs were otherwise notoriously lax I might expect to pass thru without having my baggage opened.

Stop Made at Malta.

"I left London on an Indiaman with the best suite on the boat, and my box in the captain's safe. Reaching Malta, where the crowd thronged the starboard side from which the passengers landed, we slipped out of a small gangway on the port side, were let down into a small boat, taken to a lonely landing place, met by a secret service agent and conducted to a hotel.

"Some days later we left on a collier for Piraeus in Greece. For the first time the box began to be a problem. The safest place seemed to be in the hotel vault. After registering my name—Robert R. McCormick, the R. standing for Rutherford—we started for our rooms in one of those extraordinarily slow elevators used in Europe at that time.

"On reaching the floor we found the hotel owner ahead of us and two porters with my box. The proprietor was excited and said that his hotel was not the Ritz and that he could not be responsible for the safety of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's jewelry.

"By grapevine this report traveled faster than we did. The contents of my box were thus completely disguised and danger from robbers greatly enhanced.

Sofia—and a Spy Appears.

"Thinking that a person stopping off in the country would be less suspected of smuggling something thru it, I left the train at Sofia, Bulgaria, in spite of a regulation that no one should leave the train between the Serbian and Rumanian borders. I was arguing about this with the officers when the local medical officer recognized me. He had been at Northwestern medical school when I was studying law there! This solved my problem, and I resumed my railroad travels some days later, not suspected of fifth column activities.

"It was at Sofia that my wife recognized the spy—a little lemon haired German whom she said she had seen in Athens and Salonika. He accompanied us in different disguises all the way to the Russian frontier, but never molested us.

"On the last night in Rumania before crossing the frontier, some apparently intoxicated man offensively mimicked my wife, but our reaction was to withdraw into our room and avoid what appeared to be a trap.

A Russian Experience.

"On my stay in Russia I will only say this: That I was present at the high tide of the Russian advance. We reached the summit of the Carpathian mountains and there along the hillside I saw acres of bodies—some piled two and three deep. When I inquired if this terrible sacrifice could not have been avoided by use of a rolling artillery barrage, which had already been invented, I was asked by the corps commander, Gen. Eck, to suggest it to the army commander, Gen. Brussiloff, and upon my doing so, some days later, he replied:

"'In war, men and shells can be used interchangeably.

"'I am short of shells, but I have plenty of men.'

"This, you will say, is a brutal oriental conception, but I regret that in 1918 an American general, unacquainted with the then modern methods, attempted to carry a position with what he termed a rolling barrage of men.

Ordered to Paris in 1917.

"It was because of my experience in 1915, and especially of my supposed knowledge of Russian affairs, that I was ordered to Paris in the spring of 1917 to serve on Gen. Pershing's staff. There I was fortunate in having access to all of the French and captured German confidential reports. There I learned of the methods used by Von François and Von Hoffman, which, further developed, have been fruitful in this war.

"My services being no longer required on the staff after the collapse of Russia, I was assigned to the 1st division. When the 1st division was sent to the front I saw the first American killed.

"Why the 1st division—the only American division in France—was sent to the front in January I do not know, but it was generally believed that it was sent there to furnish casualties to infuriate the American people. I know there was great rejoicing in the American colony and the beautiful hotels of Paris on reading our casualty lists but there was deep anger among the men to be sacrificed; but they knew that America would be judged by their conduct, and they went to their work sternly for pride of race.

A Variety of Races.

"When I speak of race, let me say that my adjutant, Schmon, was of Dutch origin and from New Jersey; my sergeant, Maj. Cohen, was a Jew from New York; my chief telephone operator, Janette, of French extraction, from New Hampshire; the senior captain, who was to succeed me as major, Rueberg, was of German extraction, from Minneapolis; the first sergeant of one battery, Volokovich, was of Slav nationality and I believe of foreign birth.

"In a position which yielded no view of the enemy, but in full sight of his observation posts on Montsec, without aviation, against a foe richly supplied with airplanes, exposed to enemy air raids and to enemy aerial observation, the 1st division underwent its baptism of war.

"Here the iron division was forged to steel in shell fire and tempered in the blood of its dead. It learned to receive fire to which it could not reply, to bury comrades whom it could not avenge.

"It was not contemplated that we could hold this position, but our orders, if attacked, were to remain there to afford time for the forts in our rear to be manned.

"On the night of the 20th of March, when a German attack broke the British 5th army, they also attacked us.

Assigned to Picardy.

"We did hold our position, and in consequence were among the troops chosen to be devoted to mending the line in Picardy. We went by train to Pontoise. From Pontoise we marched several days by secondary roads. The horses were so worn out that all of the men had to walk and often had to give help at the wheels. As we came into Beauvais, tired and wet, I left the front of the battalion and rode at the rear to make sure that no tired boy would go absent without leave during an advance on the enemy. Not then or at any other time did my battalion lose a man by desertion or absence without leave.

"Then occurred an amusing incident. The rain must have stopped, for out of a hospital and down the sidewalk came a nurse in the highest of French heels and the shortest of white skirts. The bowed backs straightened. The lieutenants tried to catch her eye. The captains pulled fiercely at their mustaches. The men shook off their depression, and I resumed my place at the head of the column before the brigade commander came along.

On the Road to Amiens.

"Now for several days we marched on the main road to Amiens and Calais. The sun shone. Every night we slept in beds. With the quick adaptability of soldiers we accepted this and thought not of the morrow. Now we passed thru refugees, but had no trouble in making our way thru them. Then we came upon thrown away knapsacks, and blankets, and rifles, and all of the ruin of a routed army. Many miles from where we supposed the line to be, I saw, from an elevation, military balloons not many miles away.

"We were at this time totally alone and did not know the whereabouts of the infantry or the other artillery organizations. I did not park the artillery or stable the horses that night. I put the guns in battery with the gunners sleeping around them and picketed the horses not far off. I left Sergt. Cohen and Corp. Janette at the local telephone station, and I returned to my headquarters to find an especially delicious dinner had been cooked, and that our hostess was to share our mess. How agreeable the adjutant had made himself I was not to learn until later.

"After I had gone to bed, the regimental commander turned up with orders for the morrow. I was to proceed to the French division headquarters at Menil la Tour.

Enemy Bombs Town.

"There I was to be given breakfast and a guide. I was to locate the outpost line, the main line of defense, and the reserve line. He said that this was a stabilized section; therefore the heavy field artillery would take position first, to be followed by the light artillery, and finally the infantry which would undertake the delicate task of taking over the sector under protection of our fire.

"After the colonel had left, I assembled my battery commanders and staff and went over the plans for the morrow.

"The map disclosed that the château in which the general was living was in view from German territory, as well as considerable of the road I was to travel. I left in time to arrive in the dark. Imagine my surprise on entering the château yard not to be challenged, not to see any one. Knocking on the château door, it was eventually opened, not by a soldier, but by a serving man.

"After telling him that I wanted to see some one in authority, he left me and returned with an old, old man in a much mussed full dress uniform—some retired officer who only owned a full dress uniform to wear on state occasions. He had undoubtedly been called out in the extremity, but was so tired that his mind could hardly have been said to be functioning.

"He had heard nothing about the American division. He did not know where the front line was. He had no officer he could spare, and the general was trying to get a little rest, as he had not been to bed for many days.

Finds Artillery Battery.

"Leaving the old gentleman, I was led by the firing to a group of batteries of light artillery firing continuously, their horses near at hand, as is customary in a war of movement, but not in trench warfare.

"The commanding officer of the group gave me a lieutenant as guide, and we went forward until we reached a line of men behind a wall. There my guide stopped. I said:

"'Let's push on to the front line.'

"'This is the front line,' he said.

"'Then let's find the outpost line.'

"'It is also the outpost line,' said he.

"'And the main line of resistance?'

"'It is the only line we have,' said he.

Batteries Placed in Position.

"This was so contrary to the information given me the night before that I thought it necessary to send word back to my commanding officer, which I did by my automobile, so that after I had finished my reconnaissance, when I learned that the general of the corps artillery was some miles to the left flank, I had to go there on foot.

"This officer had not heard of us, and said that he had no authority to assume command over the American artillery.

"My batteries came in that night and were placed in position. The next day a French officer said that the corps artillery commander, while disclaiming the right to command me, would be obliged if I would fire on a target to my left flank. I said that the men would be curious as to why they were called upon to fire to the left rather than in front.

"The officer replied that the British, on our left, were falling back toward Amiens and this fire was to be in their support. I complied with the request.

"Either that night or the next night the division came up.

"Our orders were for constant activity, night and day, both of infantry and artillery.

"My battalion was given the mission of fire for destruction. We fired on enemy batteries. We fired on enemy machine gun nests. We fired on any points where enemy troops were, or were supposed to be.

"If we could locate their kitchens we killed them while they were eating. If we knew where they slept we killed them in their sleep. We did not indulge or justify ourselves by war worker platitudes about Huns and noble causes. We expected to die.

Took Prisoners for Information.

"We were savage and saturnine and took prisoners more for information than for mercy. If I have the dourness attributed to me, that is where I developed it, and I do not think it is nice for people who were safe home in bed all the while to taunt me about it.

"The Germans did the same to us. They knocked our little town about our ears and we had to go elsewhere. I took up my abode in a hedge. It was not rainproof, but it furnished concealment. We made a dugout for our office and telephone exchange, and for individual protection made foxholes.

"Our command post was never detected. The only disturbance came from German shells fired at a railroad to our rear. When the chilling temperature of the dawn arrived, the range shortened and the shells sometimes fell in our camp.

"The guns fired continuously, night and day, and were replaced as they were destroyed, blown up, or worn out. The gunners worked in shifts, but the officers worked continuously until they played out and then they were replaced.

"Every night the burying parties worked. Every night the ambulances went out with the wounded. Every night the ammunition wagons brought up the replacements.

"Then came the influenza to add to the glory of war. The senior captain was the first to be evacuated, leaving me no officer over 23 years of age.

Stricken by Influenza.

"Later I came down with influenza, but our colonel being promoted for meritorious service and being replaced, I was allowed to remain, so as not to bring in too many senior officers unfamiliar with the situation; but my activities were greatly curtailed. I had to give up visiting the airdrome, to consult with the artillery observer. Then I had to quit visiting the observation posts, then the batteries. Toward the end I commanded my battalion from a telephone at the side of my bed, which consisted of a roll of blankets.

"With assistance I attended the meeting of officers to receive orders for the assault on Cantigny. The nearest German trench was the objective given to our battalion. By that time we had become expert killers. The infantry took it without loss and found its entire garrison dead.

"Had the American division failed that day, the last hope of the allies would have waned. But it did not fail.

"I think that you will agree with me I came by my antipathy for war the hard way.

Fought at Soissons.

"From there, the division went to fight in the decisive battle of Soissons, to the victory of St. Mihiel, to the blood-bath of the Argonne, to Sedan, and at last to plant its banners on the walls of Ehrenbreitstein, and to water its horses in the Rhine.

"In all these battles, it never failed to take an objective; it never lost a position taken; it never left a dead comrade unburied. The officers marched forward on foot with the men. Only those who went to the rear in battle rode—and they in ambulances.

"Its victories were won at bitter cost. It lost in dead, wounded, and broken by hardship three times more men than it numbered on its mustering day. Of the hundred odd thousand men who passed thru its ranks, over 70,000 went to the hospital and the grave.

American Legion Organized.

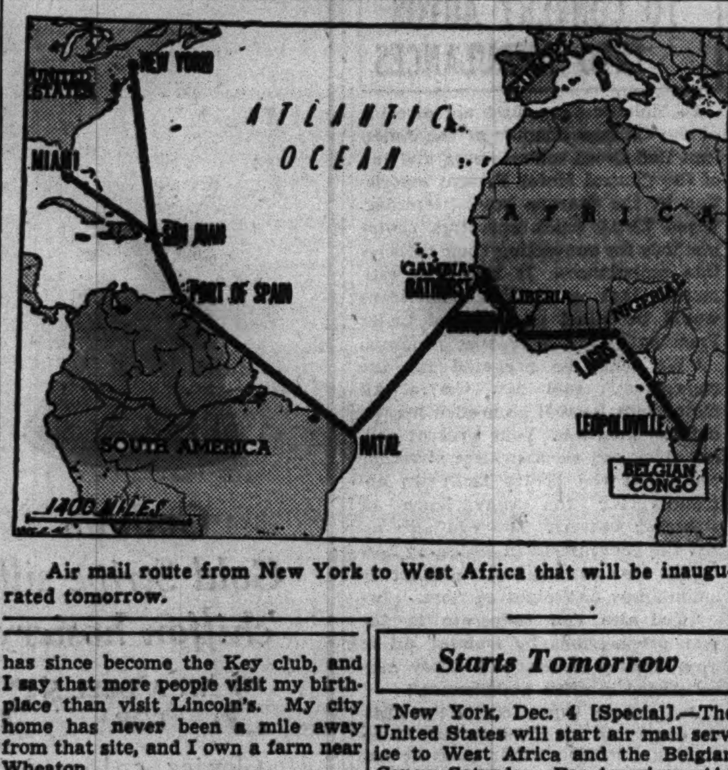
"You may not remember that we organized the American Legion to prevent the returning men from lapsing into communism. I was active among the veterans of the 1st division, and I came in touch with the thousands of comrades in the hospitals—some of them dying—some that could not die. It has been my duty to see that these almost forgotten men are not entirely forgotten.

"No one has ever rolled a bundle for them or given a cocktail party for them, but at least they get a small present every Christmas.

"And now my fourth reason for being here: It is to make a plea.

"I have worked very hard on this speech, hoping to make it effective. If you find that I have helped you raise your quota, may I have a little of it for the broken men who have been 20 years in the army hospitals?"

Air Mail Route to West Africa



Air mail route from New York to West Africa that will be inaugurated tomorrow.

Starts Tomorrow

New York, Dec. 4 [Special].—The United States will start air mail service to West Africa and the Belgian Congo Saturday, Pan-American Airways announced today. The Capetown Clipper will leave city airport at 6 a. m. to fly to Bathurst, British Gambia, the announcement said. It will go also to Lagos, Nigeria, and Leopoldville, Belgian Congo.

From New York the Capetown Clipper is to fly directly to San Juan, where it will pick up mail, company personnel, and representatives of United States government agencies concerned with the new service.

Departure point from the United States for Africa of both passengers and mail will be Miami, Fla.

REP. ENGEL REVEALS PROPAGANDA COSTS TAXPAYERS MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 [Special].—To emphasize the magnitude of the propaganda sent out under government frank in the New Deal period between 1933 and 1940, Rep. Albert J. Engel [R., Mich.] today offered the house a startling illustration.

There were 5,421,676,000 pieces of free mail sent out in the seven year period, Engel said. It cost the taxpayers $418,823,212.

"Let us assume," he told the house, "that the most expert clerk in the postal service were given the job of sorting this mail. If, working 40 hours a week, 48 weeks in the year, he started sorting when the Pilgrim Fathers landed on Plymouth Rock 300 years ago, he would be busy yet. If that clerk had started in the year 1215 he would not finish the job until 2000 A. D., for it would take him 785 years."

3 Norwegians Are Executed for Sabotage and Treason

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (AP).—A DNB [German news agency] dispatch from Oslo today said three Norwegians had been executed after a court martial on charges of espionage and treasonable acts. They were a policeman, a medical student, and an engineer.

REDS HURL HUGE FORCES INTO BIG SOUTHERN DRIVES

Germans Call on Italians and Slovaks for Help.

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (AP).—Powerful and relentless Russian tank, cavalry, and infantry charges on the Rostov and Donetz basin fronts were reported tonight in German news dispatches which said the Nazis had called upon their Italian and Slovak allies in an effort to halt the Red army.

Swarms of Russian planes also fell on the axis armies, one dispatch revealed in saying 100 Red planes had been shot down. German planes also were reported roaring to the aid of their ground forces. In one unidentified sector German dive bombers destroyed 16 soviet tanks and a Red regiment, a dispatch said.

"Territory of No Importance."

"The fighting is a fanatic Russian effort to recover lost ground. No sacrifice in men and materials seems too great for them.

"Our object is to destroy the enemy and our advantage is that we can conduct an elastic defense and choose the battlefields giving us strategic superiority."

The official German version was that wave after wave of soviet soldiers had been beaten off "with heavy bloody losses" on the southern front.

News dispatches acknowledged that the axis armies were on the defensive in the south and told how Italian and Slovak troops were thrown into the bitter fighting.

Counterattack at Sevastopol.

One dispatch struck a new note in telling of a strong soviet counterattack outside the defenses of the Crimean port of Sevastopol. This foray, said to have been stopped by German artillery, was interpreted as a Russian move to keep the Germans from withdrawing any of their Crimean forces to meet the major Russian push westward along the Sea of Azov.

The high command declared that fresh Russian attempts to break out of the siege lines before Leningrad had been frustrated. The German air force bombed Leningrad day and night, it was said, and destroyed a section of the Murmansk railway.

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—The German radio reported today that the first French volunteer legion members had arrived on the eastern front to participate in the war on Russia.

500 OF GANDHI'S FOLLOWERS ARE FREED BY INDIA

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 4 (AP).—Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, president of the India Congress party, and Jawaharal Nehru, its former president, were released from prison today under a new government policy which has freed at least 500 civil disobedience prisoners. The government, announcing the decision to release such prisoners, many of them followers of Mohandas K. Gandhi, estimated approximately 8,000 were held.

Gandhi, however, has declared such a step would not affect the Nationalist movement for independence from which the civil disobedience campaign stemmed. He said he could "not rejoice over the government's decision."

U. S. NAVY BARES 'POSSIBLE' HIT IN BATTLING U-BOAT

Reveals Tanker Action in Atlantic Convoy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—For the first time since President Roosevelt declared a shooting war against German undersea, surface and air raiders in the Atlantic, the navy department officially announced that a German submarine possibly was damaged in a duel with an American ship.

The encounter took place Oct. 30, about 700 miles off Newfoundland. The submarine was fired upon by the American tanker Salinas which was in a convoy bound for the United States.

Tanker Opens Fire.

The Salinas was torpedoed in an attack by the submarine. When the undersea boat made a second attack on the tanker within a half hour the tanker opened fire.

Departing from the policy not to disclose information concerning American attacks on submarines, which was set by President Roosevelt and confirmed by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, the navy department said:

"There was some evidence that the counterattack did damage to the submarine, tho the extent is not known."

Policy Set by Roosevelt.

The damaged Salinas was able to make port safely.

President Roosevelt had said that the navy would not give out information on any success American men of war might have against submarines, because it had been found in the World war that crews of vessels were apt to leap to false conclusions after attacks on submarines and also because it was found that silence would work toward undermining German morale.

Down 44 British Planes in 6 Days, Lose 6, Say Nazis

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (AP). — German aerial and naval units shot down 44 British planes between Nov. 26 and Dec. 2, the high command said today, against acknowledged loss of six Nazi planes in the fight against Britain in that six day period. A British raid on Hamburg the night of Nov. 30 killed 61 persons, the Hamburger Fremdenblatt said.

British Set Ship Afire.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—The air ministry said that a coastal command plane set afire a medium sized supply ship off Norway today.

FINNS CELEBRATE HANGO VICTORY; FIGHT LAST REDS

Inflict Big Losses on Red Escape Vessels.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 4.—Flags were displayed by every house in Finland today in celebration of the victory over Russia at Hango fortress and naval base at the southeast tip of Finland. But newspapers published columns of death notices of men who had fallen and military authorities warned there would be more casualties before the stronghold is completely reoccupied.

Only a part of the Russian garrison, once numbering perhaps 30,000, has been embarked. Remaining rearguard troops protecting the withdrawal hold a number of strongly fortified points. The peninsula is covered with mines and traps.

But the Russian resistance has been broken and the Finns are advancing carefully, step by step, into positions which withstood a five months' siege. Today Russaro, a small but powerful fort outside Hango, surrendered.

Only Two Planes Escape.

Finns declared that only two soviet planes were able to escape to Leningrad. Combat and bombings had destroyed or disabled the many others which used the Hango air field as a base for bombing Helsingfors and other Finnish cities.

Hango harbor contains the bomb and shell wrecks of many soviet ships. A Finnish communique said the Russian attempt to remove the garrison was a debacle. The Finns said one big soviet transport, the Josef Stalin, had been disabled by Finnish shells and drifted to the Estonian coast, where 6,000 soldiers aboard it raised the white flag and surrendered to the Germans.

[The Germans claimed their patrol boats took this 12,000 ton ship in tow after it had been damaged in German-Finnish mine fields and said it yielded 7,000 prisoners.]

Two other escape ships were reported smashed by coastal guns near Helsingfors; a third was shattered by an explosion which sent fire leaping high and at least one Russian destroyer was damaged.

Releases Finnish Forces.

The Hango victory releases considerable Finnish forces. The remaining fronts are strongly manned, thus many Finnish soldiers' chances of spending Christmas at home have improved.

The press voiced Finland's willingness to share the victory with the Swedish volunteers. Most of the Swedes who joined the Finnish army served on the Hango front. Some of them were Swedish army officers who obtained leaves to help Finland. Hospitals of the Hango front were manned by Swedish physicians.

Of the Hango victory the newspaper Uusi Suomi said:

"The compulsory tenant leaves a basically devastated area to its rightful owner. . . . The main thing is that the enemy has been driven from a site where he threatened the heart of Finland. We have wrested the dagger from his hand."

A Finnish spokesman said that while the Hango victory brought Finland a big step nearer to the strategic goal vital to her security, certain dangerous areas remained to be wrested from the Russians before the Finns could feel safe.

The most important former Finnish territory remaining in Russian hands is the Fisher peninsula in the Arctic, dominating the port of Petsamo. A number of islands in the Gulf of Finland also are held by Russia, he said, and the Finns feel they have not yet removed the soviet menace in East Karelia.

Named in Will

JOAN HOLABIRD HARRIS.

All that Mrs. Florence Lorraine Kersting, 20 years old, and her sister, Miss Joan Holabird Harris, 17, have to do to earn $1,000 apiece is to stay away from cocktails and cigarets—until they're 21 years old.

This was the unusual provision of the will of Mrs. Florence W. Holabird, which was admitted to probate yesterday by Probate Judge John F. O'Connell on petition of Attorney James Smith. Mrs. Holabird, who died in Wilmette Sept. 21 at the age of 76, left the bulk of an estimated $100,000 estate equally to a son, William J. Holabird Jr. of Hamilton, Ind., and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Harris, wife of Dr. Urban Harris of 801 Hinman avenue, Evanston. Miss Harris lives with her parents. Mrs. Kersting lives at 7631 Eastlake terrace.

for Northern Muskrats Hollander Mink-and-Sable-Blended

Values to $259

We believe that if you have up to $259 to spend for a coat, you are better off with a fine grade of a moderately priced fur than with a poor grade of a costly fur. Our Muskrats are the best the money can buy! We insist on pelts from northern parts of the U. S. and eastern Canada because they are the most thickly furred. We insist on winter-caught Muskrats because they have the longest top-hairs, the warmest undercoats. We insist on blending by Hollander because Hollander-blending gives true Mink and Sable shades. The Muskrats we place on sale would be prizes even at $259. They are melon-sleeved or Mandarin-sleeved styles with casual straight backs. Sizes 12 to 24.

EVANS, THE HOUSE OF LOVELY FUR GIFTS

CHURCHILL WINS POWER TO DRAFT WOMEN FOR WAR

Commons Vote Reveals Opposition Growing.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Approval of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's plan for full mobilization of men and women was voted, 326 to 10, by the house of commons today, but not until insurgent Labor party members had been squelched in their efforts to add an amendment calling also for the conscription of wealth and nationalization of industries.

Emanuel Shinwell.

Legislation giving effect to the conscription proposals, which will bring 3,000,000 more men and women into the armed service, was introduced immediately. The bill calls for compulsory uniformed service in auxiliary organizations by unmarried women between the ages of 20 and 30 and widens the conscript age limits to include men from 18½ to 50 years.

The Laborite amendment, which was voted on prior to action on the conscription motion, was beaten 336 to 40. It had previously been turned down at a caucus which was held to iron out a threatened Laborite split on the issue.

See Discontent Growing.

The 40 votes cast for the amendment, however, were seen by some observers as indicating growing discontent over the government's mobilization of production. It was the largest opposition vote since Churchill took over the government in May of 1940.

Emanuel Shinwell, a Laborite, who has turned down an offer of a ministerial post, said that "the onus of proof" that the government program now will achieve maximum production "rests heavily on the government." He added that care must be exercised to see that it is not a "cloak to cover defects" in the government itself.

Answering Laborite assertions that the conscription plan was not going to be broad enough, Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, told the house before the vote that the government was determined that "personal interests, property, persons or prejudice" would not be allowed to interfere with winning the war.

Army Needs Mechanics.

Bevin said that under the military service acts his department already had registered 6,850,000 men for service and including men and women registered for industry and auxiliary services and aliens the labor ministry has had to deal with 70,000,000 registrations.

He asserted there was a great need for more skilled workers in the armed forces and cited the work of those now in Libya in keeping tanks in action.

"The possibilities of great battles still to be fought must be considered," he said.

Bevin objected to "complete nationalization" on the ground that this "would raise such a political storm" that it would impede the war effort.

Sought to Improve War Effort.

George Daggar, Laborite, submitted the nationalization amendment to the Churchill motion. He said it was not the desire of Laborites to weaken the effort, "but to improve it."

"The support we have given the prosecution of the war cannot be brought in question," he said. "At the same time some of us are really apprehensive of the measures proposed by the government to further conscript men and women, not only for military, but for industrial purposes, while leaving important industries to be owned, controled and managed in accordance with principles more in harmony with peace conditions than war."

As a result of the Laborite caucus it was believed passage of the bill in substantially its present form was assured.

Trouble in the Balkans!

Serbians Fell 600

MOSCOW, Dec. 4 (AP).—Jugo-Slav guerrilla fighters, holding the town of Rudnik, have caused more than 600 casualties among German and Italian troops besieging them, the Moscow radio said today.

Battle Rages in Serbia.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 4 (AP).—Three axis divisions [45,000 men] and the unconquered guerrilla forces of Gen. Draja Mihailovitch were reported by exiled Serbs here to be locked in battle in the Jugo-Slav valley of the western Morava river.

Supported by tanks and aircraft, a Serb communique said, the axis divisions on Tuesday launched "what appears to be a general offensive against our positions."

61 Face Trial in Belgium.

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (AP).—Sixty-one persons face the "strictest sort" of punishment by a court-martial in connection with the dissolution of the Belgian National Legion by German military authorities, it was learned here today.

The Brussels German language newspaper Bruesseler Zeitung said ammunition, arms, and anti-German propaganda were found by German authorities in raids on the legion.

Report King Flees

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Dec. 4 (AP).—New disorders in Nazi-dominated Rumania were hinted tonight in a report from "a positive source" here saying the boy King Michael had been spirited out of the Balkans into Italy at the behest of the German Gestapo [secret police], either as an axis hostage or to guard his safety.

The report was obtained by the newspaper Excelsior just as Radu Irimescu, former Rumania ambassador to the United States, returned by plane to Washington, D. C., after three days of conferences with the abdicated King Carol, who is in exile here with Mme. Elena Lupescu. Irimescu resigned as ambassador to Washington when Carol made a hazardous escape from his homeland in September, 1940.

Excelsior's report said Michael had been kept under cover in Florence, Italy, since late in November because of a critical situation in Rumania. The paper added that the Gestapo was behind his removal from Rumania. Excelsior said an anti-Nazi movement in Rumania would not be surprising. Carol professed to know nothing of a Rumanian plot.

BARE NEW PLANS FOR U. S. DEFENSE IN BRITISH GUIANA

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Dec. 4 (AP).—An important move for further coöperation between the United States and England in British Guiana, where the United States already has defense bases, was reported in a preliminary announcement to the legislature today by Gov. Sir Gordon Lethem.

He told the legislators the most cordial relations existed between the United States military and civil representatives here and the government and people of British Guiana, and added that new "projects" were being considered.

No elaboration concerning the new projects could be obtained in official circles.

Two bases were leased in British Guiana under the United States-British destroyer deal.

NAZIS REPORTED SHIFTING TROOPS TO TURK BORDER

New Military Preparation Seen in Bulgaria.

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Travelers who left Sofia recently reported today, according to European advices to the Associated Press, that Germany is taking military measures along the Bulgarian-Turkish frontier, including erection of highway signs in German pointing the way to Svilengrad, on Bulgaria's Turkish frontier.

What German troops were seen in Bulgaria apparently were headed toward the Turkish frontier, the travelers reported. Svilengrad is the last station on the railway from Bulgaria before it enters Turkey.

Highway Signs Removed.

Highway signs formerly showing directions to points in western Bulgaria or Jugo-Slav centers have been removed, it was said.

[Further reports of German military moves in this region were carried in a British radio report heard yesterday in New York. The broadcast said new German troops have been rushed to defenses along the southern Bulgarian-Turkish border, that other frontier military preparations have been accelerated, and that the Germans were tightening their control of Bulgarian ports and air fields.]

Diplomatic Support Seen.

The general impression of the observers was that, while possibly the Germans were anticipating American lend-lease aid to Turkey, the comparatively minor German maneuvering was intended to back up Germany in the diplomatic contest for Turkey's favor.

The Bulgarian army has concentrated its major forces in the Turkish sector since the days before Bulgaria joined the axis. European observers have contended that if Bulgaria entered the axis war it would be only one against Turkey, her traditional foe.

PREDICTS AXIS TO EXHAUST OIL WITHIN 3 MONTHS

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Dec. 4.—The reserve petroleum supplies of the German and Italian armies will be exhausted within two and a half to three months, Maj. Gen. Piotr Kotov, of the soviet tank army, said today.

After that period, Gen. Kotov said, Adolf Hitler will have to run on the limited production available in Germany and occupied areas if he plans to keep up the present scope of military operations. The general predicted that in all likelihood Hitler will be forced to curtail both mechanized and air activities.

Germany and Italy need 2,500,000 tons of oil on all fronts a month, he said, and at their present rate of consumption, which he estimated at 30,000,000 tons a year, they cannot cover a prospective deficit of 10,900,000 tons without the capture of new supply sources or outside aid.

RAF BOMBS AXIS FORCES IN LIBYA; NEW DRIVE LOOMS

2d Tank Thrust Toward Tobruk Planned.

CAIRO, Dec. 4 (AP).—British bombers hammered axis troop concentrations inside Libya tonight as a prelude to another British tank thrust toward Tobruk in an effort to split the German and Italian forces, reports from the front said.

Only sporadic ground fighting in which the British smashed three Italian tanks and attacked other small axis units southeast of Tobruk were reported by the British command which told of another 24 hour lull in operations. Rain hampered operations and both sides were assembling their waning tank strength for an imminent clash.

[No estimate of the strength of either army was available last night, but when the drive began it was believed the British had some 100,000 men and the axis 80,000, exclusive of reserves. In Wellington, N. Z., Prime Minister Peter Fraser reported severe New Zealand casualties in the fighting.]

Battle Zone in Rezegh Area.

The main battle zone was south of Tobruk in the Rezegh area held by the Nazis. The British spearhead stretched southward from Rezegh to Bir El Gobi with mobile columns keeping the British supply line open to Sidi Omar near the frontier.

The axis pocket fortifications of Sollum-Halfaya near the Mediterranean coast still were intact, but British artillery and planes continued to blast at them to avert any danger to the British supply line to the south, which is feeding the forces far in the interior.

Seize Fortified Points: Italy.

ROME, Dec. 4 (AP).—Troops of two Italian divisions captured several fortified points from the British on the Tobruk front, the high command reported today, while German and British mechanized forces fought west of Bardia.

The Italian Savona division on the Sollum front captured British prisoners between its outposts, the communique said. In the central sector between the Sollum and Tobruk forts the Italians claimed they beat back a British attack on Bir El Gobi, 40 miles southeast of Tobruk.

An Italian torpedo boat was sunk at a cost of two British planes and an Italian submarine shot down a British Sunderland plane, it was stated.

Sees New Deal Waste Stir People, Too.

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 4 (AP).—Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr., chairman of the national Republican committee, said tonight those who profess to believe the G. O. P. is not "a strong, virile, vigorous party destined to come back into power simply are closing their eyes to the plain implications of the future.

"Wait till the people get their tax bills next March and in March, 1943," he asserted in an address to the biennial convention of the Young Republicans of Kansas.

When It's Revealed to Public.

"Wait until after story after story and tale after tale and instance after instance of utter waste in national defense and in nondefense expenditures are revealed to the people. Wait until instances like the Wolf Creek shell loading plant at Milan, Tenn., are multiplied over and over again, as they will be."

Calling for return to a "balanced bi-party government," Martin declared that dictatorship does not necessarily mean the rule of an individual despot.

"It may be the rule of a group, or a clique or a party. Mono-party government could be a dictatorship just as surely—and as disastrously—as a one man government could be.

Bi-Party Government.

"To reëstablish that system of balanced bi-party government, we must, in 1942, take control of the house of representatives. No constructive opposition can be either constructive or an opposition if it lacks the power to make its views respected and considered, or if it lacks the means to reach the people."

Martin appeared on the same program as Alf M. Landon.

PAY DELAY HELD THREAT TO STATE AID FROM U. S.

Three thousand employés of the state division of placement and unemployment compensation yesterday asked Judge Philip J. Finnegan for leave to intervene in the suit under which he has issued an injunction directing state officials to withhold pay of certain "temporary" state civil service workers. The judge's order, issued Nov. 10, resulted in a refusal by the state auditor and treasurer to pay November salaries to any of the 18,000 state civil service workers, but most of this group will be able to draw their regular salary vouchers within a few days.

The placement and unemployment compensation employés told the judge yesterday that they are classified as civil service workers but actually paid by federal funds allotted to the state and merely held by state officials for distribution. Nevertheless, their salaries for November have not been paid and the workers are penniless. Failure of state officials to pay out the federal funds also might be construed as poor administration and result in a refusal by the federal government to allocate for the department's pay rolls in the future. Judge Finnegan said he would rule on the plea today.

At Springfield yesterday, it was said that 17,500 of the state's total of civil service workers probably would get their November pay early next week. Pay roll studies made to determine all eligible to receive pay are almost finished.

LOOT PLANT, GET ONLY 50 CENTS. Two colored bandits who bound and gagged Stanley Pawlowski, 58 years old, night watchman at the California Beverage company, 3300 Fillmore street, ransacked the plant but apparently took only 50 cents and a .38 caliber revolver, plant officials reported yesterday.

DUTCH INDIES SET TO DEFEND SELF AND HELP ATTACK

Growing Air Power Now Factor in Pacific.

By LIEUT.-GEN. HEIN TER POORTEN
[Commander in chief, Royal Netherlands Indies Army.]

BATAVIA, Java, Netherlands East Indies, Dec. 4 [Wide World].—The military preparations of the Netherlands East Indies, originally predicated solely on defense, today have such scope that they could be used for attack should hostilities break out in this southern Pacific zone.

The strength of the Indies air arm has grown with such rapidity—due largely to shipments of modern American planes—that the high command has had to change its strategic plans.

Originally it was the opinion that Java, as the main island, would have to be defended while the outer provinces should be left to their fate in case of an invasion. [The principal other islands are Sumatra, southwest of Singapore; Dutch Borneo, north of Java; the Celebes and New Guinea.] Now, as a result of the growing power of the air arm, this standpoint has been abandoned and it has been decided that the outer provinces must be the first line of defense and the basic center of any offensive possibility.

Coöperate with British.

As regards coöperation between the Netherlands East Indies and Britain, this is an irrefutable fact. Clearly enough, the Malayan peninsula, the Indies and Australia form a strategic unit. Any one of the powers having interests along an imaginary line from the Malayan peninsula to Australia must, of necessity, come to the assistance of any other state having similar interests. The Indies' army equipment has, as far as possible, been brought into line with that of the eventual allies so that the Indies army today partly uses the same caliber of guns, for example, as the Australian army.

The greatest extension in the sweeping defense preparations of the Indies has been achieved in the air forces which are now composed of a great modern fleet of bombers, mainly Glenn Martins, while North Americans are expected to arrive shortly in considerable numbers. There also is a goodly number of American interceptors, reconnaissance and pursuit planes, together with Ryan training machines.

Flyer Training Extensive.

Continuously, men are being educated for their task in the war in the air. Simulated "dogfights" above this capital are common. [Batavia is about 500 miles southeast of Singapore and 1,000 miles from the southern tip of French Indo-China, which Japan could use as a springboard for her possible next military thrust.]

In case of an attack, the first defense line would undoubtedly be the navy and air arm. These would have the task of fighting off any attack launched at the Indies in and over the waters surrounding this valuable raw materials arsenal of the democracies. Next the army would have the task of local defense. It would coöperate with the air force should parachute troops operations take place. [The Indies have separate naval and army air forces, like the United States.] The defense plans are geared to meet any possible aggression, from whatever side it might come. Each day its military power increases.

Natives Fierce Fighters.

The army, consisting of a firm nucleus of professional soldiers and European as well as native draftees and reserves, is further strengthened by a militia law which makes it possible to include a far greater percentage of native soldiers in the army than thus far. History has shown that these natives are outstanding fighters.

In the dockyards there is a never-ceasing hum of activity and more and more motor torpedo boats slide off the ways, almost in mass production.

In 1935 total expenditures for army extensions were only 13,000,000 guilders [approximately $7,222,000]. In 1941 this amount had been multiplied nearly 20 times and surpassed 250,000,000 guilders.

[A spokesman in Batavia said yesterday that the Indies' vast oil resources would be placed under government control in event of war and would be destroyed if they could not be defended.]

Indies Defense Line

GLIDER EXPERTS TO COMPETE FOR PRIZES SUNDAY

Fourteen high performance sailplanes and some of the best soaring pilots in the middle west will compete next Sunday in a one day contest at Lewis School of Aeronautics near Lockport, Ill., it was announced yesterday by the Chicagoland Glider council. The council and John Wilson, head of the Lewis school, will direct the contest.

Among official observers to be present will be a dozen United States marine corps officers who are now taking training courses in glider flying and ground operations at two Chicago schools.

Events of the day will be limited because a period of only seven hours has been set aside for the glider operations. Cash prizes will be awarded for longest flights continued in sight of the airport, for spot landings on the field, for bomb dropping from gliders, and for distance and return flights. The greatest skill will be demonstrated by those pilots who pick a destination, fly out to it, and return.

Randy Chapman of Detroit, nationally known for his glider acrobatics that include all maneuvers a power plane can perform, and Stanley Corcoran, a cross-country champion and designer of the Frankfort sailplane series, are two of the outstanding contestants.

BELMONT GRADE OPENS TOMORROW TO PARK TRAFFIC

Motorists from the north tomorrow morning will begin driving over the east half of the Belmont grade separation on the new Lincoln park express highway, it was announced yesterday by Ralph Burke, park district chief engineer.

Traffic will be routed over the separation beginning at 6:30 a. m. The partial use of the separation will eliminate curves now necessary to carry traffic around the construction work at this point.

The west half of the separation project is to be completed in another month, engineers announced. The work is being done by the park district and WPA.

THE IMPOSSIBLE HITS FRANCE! IT GETS PROHIBITION

Wine Loving Nation Acts to Curb Drinking.

[This is the seventh of a series of articles by Mr. Darrah, The Tribune's correspondent in France, who is now in America on vacation.]

BY DAVID DARRAH.

The French are experimenting with prohibition. Two years ago a suggestion that the country might run out of wine and restrict its consumption even as a table beverage would have been considered preposterous.

But exactly that has happened. Wartime restrictions on the drinking of hard liquor—what the French call "alcohol" — have been increased. Wine cards also have been issued and each person is limited to 10 bottles of table wine per month. There was a shortage during the early fall months and in many regions wine was unobtainable.

The aim of the movement is to put the corner café out of business. Authorities found that the multiplication of cafés and drinking places since the last war was injuring the health of the nation.

Doctors Warn Drinkers.

Doctors have started a campaign to prove to the working man that too much light wine is injurious. It was found that laborers frequently consumed five to eight bottles of "pinard" [cheap red wine] daily.

Under the regulations now in effect drinking has become more and more difficult and scores of cafés are going out of business. The French have adopted some of the methods used in Sweden and England.

Drinks may be sold only during a limited number of hours daily. Between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. and again from 6 to 8 p. m. light wines and aperitifs, the equivalent of a cocktail, may be sold. Four days a week liqueurs and hard drinks may be sold from 1 to 3 p. m. and from 8 to 10 p. m., but at no other time.

The sale of beer is prohibited three days a week. In some regions, notably Lyons and Marseilles, restaurant customers are limited to 6 ounces each.

Champagne Disappearing.

In most regions champagne has disappeared and stocks of vintage wines are being fast depleted. German preference for champagne has accounted for the scarcity of that vintage.

The reason for the prohibition experiment is partly social and partly economic. It was found after the armistice that the population was drinking excessively because of worry and despair over the defeat of France and a mistaken belief that wine and other alcoholic drinks compensated for a deficient diet. Doctors warned against this.

Besides, there has been an actual wine shortage because of deficient grape harvests. Grape growers are running out of copper sulfate needed to protect the grapes from phyloxera, a destructive variety of plant lice.

Lack of gasoline has resulted in the preëmption of large quantities of wine and alcohol for distillation as a substitute motor fuel.

Wins a Divorce

JOAN TOMKINS.

Carson City, Nev., Dec. 4 (AP).—Stage Actress Joan Tomkins won a divorce today from Stephen Ker Appleby, actor now with the Royal Canadian air force in England. They were married in New York five years ago.

A HOLDUP MAN LEARNS CRIME DOES NOT PAY

Jack Lieborvitz, 37 years old, an ex-convict, spent a couple of unhappy moments yesterday morning after he decided on a tour of robbery.

His first intended victim was Morrie Levy, owner of the Wabash Trunk and Luggage company, 324 South Wabash avenue, who pitched a trunk at him when he entered and announced himself as a holdup man. Lieborvitz struck Levy and fled.

Shortly afterward he entered the Smart Tog shop, 328 North Michigan avenue, waved what looked like a gun at the owner, Harold Cody, and ordered him to "stick 'em up." Cody answered, "Who do you think you're fooling with that piece of pipe?" and started after Lieborvitz.

Cody was joined in the chase at Wacker drive and Michigan avenue by two policemen, Sylvestor Krisinski and Edward Smith, who caught Lieborvitz with the aid of several civilians. Lieborvitz gave his address as 418 South Central Park avenue.

TELL OF YOUNG 'REDS" THREAT TO KILL PRINCIPALS

Violent Ideas in New York Schools Revealed.

New York, Dec. 4 [Special].—Possibility of "liquidation" was flaunted before two principals of New York city high schools by communistic-indoctrinated pupils during the height of communist penetration before the switch of the Red "party line" upon the German invasion of Russia.

This and other instances of "brazenly subversive" ideas of children influenced by communist inspired organizations were revealed today with publication of the second section of an exhaustive report by the joint legislative committee investigating subversibe activities in schools.

Reports on High Schools.

Dealing entirely with high schools, the new report follows a section devoted to Red activities in tax-supported city colleges which has led to suspension of more than 30 teachers and clerks and expulsion of a dozen of them from the school system.

The committee found that 15 high schools had experienced "widespread agitational activity" by the communists.

The committee continued its policy of not revealing names of students and withholding names of schools, stating that it did not wish to alarm parents unduly and that "for the time being, conditions are much quieter." This lull was attributed by the committee to the invasion of Russia. The report pointed out that "disorders may be expected to recur when the party line changes again."

Murder threats were made against principals of a Brooklyn and a Bronx school, it was said. In the Brooklyn case, it was said, a student told the principal he might find it necessary to kill him "in the event violence was necessary to overthrow the government of this country." The threat followed a teacher's complaint that the pupil was disrupting his class with Young Communist league doctrines, the report said.

At the Bronx school, the report stated, a girl pupil, attempting to justify efforts to disrupt commencement exercises, told the principal he eventually would have to be liquidated. This principal's home was picketed.

Police Guard R. O. T. C.

At one Bronx school squads of from 10 to 50 policemen were necessary each year to guard the annual R. O. T. C. spring review and parade from attacks by jeering mobs sometimes numbering more than 1,000 young Communists, the committee revealed.

A former "cultural director" of the American Student union was quoted as estimating the organization had chapters in 50 public schools in New York.

Joseph P. Lash, former executive secretary of ASU, now being sponsored by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt for a commission in naval intelligence, was referred to in the report as having urged students of a Brooklyn high school to hold a peace strike.

DRUGGIST CONVICTED OF SHOOTING YOUTH IN HALLOWEEN ESCAPADE

Joseph Gurskis, 26 years old, who shot a youth playing a Halloween prank, was convicted yesterday of assault with a deadly weapon by Judge John V. McCormick in the Felony court. The judge said he doubted if probation should be granted, but allowed an application to be entered.

The wounded youth is Robert Gambrel, 18, 6338 Dante street. Gambrel and three friends tipped over the newsstand in front of Gurkis' drug store at 6529 Blackstone avenue. Gurskis, who had been lying in wait for pranksters, ran out with his gun, shouted at the youths to halt, then fired three shots, two of which struck Gambrel in his hip.

Gurskis faces a maximum sentence of one year in the Bridewell if probation is denied.

Man Who Gave Al Capone His Scar Held as Vagrant

New York, Dec. 4 [Special].—Frank Galluccio, former bodyguard who is credited with giving Al Capone the scar which caused the one-time gang overlord to be known as "Scarface," was arrested in Brooklyn on a charge of vagrancy today.

I'm STUMPED!

Look, Boss—if you expect me to tell the world all about Bond overcoats in one short headline, here's my pencil—you write it. Yes, I know folks don't read details. If they did, this job would be a cinch.

Go ahead, tell 'em we've got a selection so large it'll make their eyes pop. Tell 'em every coat is Rochester styled and tailored in our own workrooms. Tell 'em how much this means in smooth fit—that "top-hat" air which always distinguishes Rochester-made overcoats. Tell 'em about all those richly woven woolens—so luxuriously warm, and how lightly they rest on a fellow's shoulders. And the huge line-up of sizes and models. Tell 'em how they collect cash dividends because we cut out all wasteful, in-between costs—by making Bond clothes in our own plants.

There it is, Boss. If you can squeeze that corking story into a few words up at the top, we ought to be swamped. Oh! yes—and don't forget to make it plenty strong that Bond prices have not been raised!

URGE U. S. BLOCK BRITISH GRAB OF LATINS' BUSINESS

Congressmen Hit Practice of Censoring Mails.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The state department was urged today to call upon all American diplomatic and consular offices in South America to survey British competition with American trade while the United States is engaged in an arms production effort which is speeding free war supplies to England.

Rep. Louis C. Rabaut.

At the same time, it was suggested, that the state department work out a plan with Great Britain under which United States mail moving to South America would be examined by Americans rather than Britishers in view of complaints that British are employing censorship to enable British manufacturers to compete with American firms.

The suggestions were advanced in the report of a subcommittee of the house appropriations committee which recently completed a tour of South America. The subcommittee was headed by Rep. Louis C. Rabaut [D., Mich.].

Solicitation of Orders.

"Representations were made to the committee at four of five of the cities visited that the British were soliciting orders for delivery of commodities and manufactured goods that our country, because of priority requirements, was not in a position to deliver," the report said. "Diesel engines, bicycles, motorcycles, small cars, picks and shovels were among the articles included in this category.

"While there should be no disposition on our part to take an unfair advantage of the present situation, on the other hand we must insist firmly that if we are to continue to render all the monetary aid that we are making available to the British government for the purposes of prosecuting the war, we definitely must not forego any competitive rights that we have in the trade field in Latin America, and permit, by sufferance, the furtherance of such trade by any other nation.

Urges Consular Survey.

"Congress is entitled to know the exact facts with respect to just what the situation is in every Latin American country regarding the amount of British trade carried on and the commodities that are offered for sale.

"The committee requests the state department to call on all our missions and consular offices thruout Latin America for a survey on this subject. When these individual reports of the investigation have been received, the state department should prepare an over-all report embracing these findings which should be submitted to the congress for its information and appropriate disposition."

On the question of censorship of the mails, members of the subcommittee had verbally reported American businessmen had complained that it appeared to be more than coincident that British business representatives in many cases called upon South American firms to solicit business after the Latin American firms had mailed requests for price quotations to American firms.

Committee Mail Held Up.

Mail which passes between the United States and South America is subjected to British censorship at Trinidad and Jamaica in the West Indies. The report said that mail of members of the subcommittee was held up by this censorship.

"We are unable to find any justification whatever for a continuance of a procedure that subjects United States mails to censorship by the representatives of a country with whom we are on friendly terms," the report said. "As evidence of the futility of the censorship, it might be pointed out that any one desiring to avoid having their communications subjected to scrutiny may do so by routing the mail, at some delay it is true, via the west coast of South America from the United States to the east coast of South America or vice versa.

Urges U. S. Do Censoring.

"If it should appear, for reasons that the committee is not informed of, that such a censorship is desirable in the national interest, then certainly the examination of the mails at Trinidad, should be made by our own citizens acting as representatives of our government rather than by British citizens acting as agents of the British government.

"If such an arrangement cannot be worked out with the British authorities, then means should be taken to reroute plane and ship schedules so that it will not be necessary to stop at English controled ports."

BOGUS CAPTAIN GETS 6 YEARS IN FEDERAL PRISON

Harold W. Melia, 28 years old, of Columbus, O., was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward to six years in prison for impersonating an army captain and transporting a stolen automobile here from Omaha, Neb. He pleaded guilty. Melia, an ex-convict, has used 15 aliases, Assistant District Attorney John M. Kiley, told the court. Melia is wanted in 22 states and three federal districts for passing bad checks and impersonating army officers.

A Broken Family

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Ruth Veenhuis, 23, and Donald, 2, after she was granted a divorce.

Mrs. Ruth Veenhuis, 23 years old, 1918 North Tripp avenue, told Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday that she did not object as much to her husband's drinking as to the fact that he slept with his clothes on.

She charged the husband Wesley, 26, a postal clerk, with habitual drunkenness in her suit for divorce. Questioned by her attorney, Harry X. Cole, Mrs. Veenhuis added that he took other women for rides in her car.

ILLINOIS, IOWA PILOTS IN RAF DIE IN ACTION

REVEAL FORTUNE PAID 'HIP POCKET' DEALER IN ARMS

U. S. Inquiry Shows Huge Profits on Contracts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—A house subcommittee today heard how a New York City "broker," who carried his office in his hip pocket, collected hundreds of thousands of dollars in commissions on arms contracts.

Rep. C. I. Faddis.

Chairman Charles I. Faddis, [D., Pa.] commented at the end of the testimony that the big profits reaped by the broker, Leon K. Shanack, would be heaped upon the American taxpayer. And Shanack, it was stated, is but one of scores of lobbyists who are collecting fat commissions on contracts issued by the government under the 68 billion dollar war program.

Special Investigator Gordon K. Miller told the subcommittee that Shanack made $97,405 in commissions for obtaining contracts for the Greenwich Machine and Tool company, New York. An examination of Shanack's confidential records, Miller testified, showed that he stands to collect an additional $91,959 if contracts are signed.

Agent for Other Firms, Too.

Shanack, Miller said, has orders with numerous other companies which were not represented in the figures he presented. Evidence, it was indicated, will show that Shanack has made hundreds of thousands of dollars in the 17 months elapsing since the stupendous arms spending program was started.

Shanack's methods, as outlined by the investigators, were simple. He would obtain government contracts for machine tool dies from the Remington Arms company, whose officials he entertained lavishly. He would then contact the Greenwich concern and arrange to have the work done at a substantially lower figure than that which he was paid by Remington. On one deal, Miller said, Shanack made a clear profit of $60,000.

Shanack never had an office but he once attempted to set up a dummy corporation, to be called the Shell Die corporation, on the second floor of the Greenwich concern, according to the testimony of Carl Gitzendanner, secretary treasurer of the company.

Guarded by Detectives.

The official said he understood Shanack spent large sums to entertain officials of the Remington Arms company.

Investigator Miller, who had direct charge of the New York field investigation of Shanack's activities, said that Shanack at all times was accompanied by several detective lieutenants. The detectives were high in their praise of Shanack as a "good fellow," Miller said.

"One of them, Lieut. Salky, told me that a high New York City official would be President of the United States after the next election," Miller testified. "He told me that if I ever wanted to get ahead in government circles, I should 'just ask Mr. Shanack.'"

It was believed that the New York City official referred to was Mayor Fiorello La Guardia whose Presidential ambitions, if Mr. Roosevelt ever decides to relinquish his position, are well known.

CHAMPION STEER GETS A REPRIEVE TO BE EXHIBITED

Sold to Firestone Co. for $3.30 a Pound.

BY GAIL COMPTON.

The sing song chant of the auctioneers filled the air yesterday at the International Live Stock exposition as the sale of prize winning cattle began.

The grand champion steer, Loyal Alumnus IV, weighing 970 pounds and owned by Purdue university, was sold for $3.30 a pound to the Firestone Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O. This is the same price for which the company bought last year's grand champion, and is the third champion it has purchased. The record price for a grand champion is $8.25, paid in 1929.

The company will take the winning steer on a tour of the country in a specially fitted air conditioned truck, as an educational exhibit.

Buyers Crowd Auction Ring.

The auction was conducted in an open air ring at the stockyards by Col. Roy Johnston of Belton, Mo. Buyers crowded the ring representing restaurants, steamship lines, hotels, packing companies, and industrial organizations.

The grand champion carlot of steers, which were Aberdeen-Angus, owned by Schmidt Brothers of Delmar, Ia., brought $30.75 a hundredweight. Last year's price was $27. The average weight of the 15 head of cattle was 1,088 pounds. The carload was purchased by Armand F. Bastien, president of the Chicago Association of Wholesale Meat and Provisions Distributors, for members of the association.

Railroad Buys Carload.

The champion carload of Herefords, weighing 950 pounds each, sold for $20.75 a hundredweight to the Wrigley restaurant.

The champion carload of Shorthorns, weighing 1,082 pounds each, went to the New York Central railroad at $16.25 a hundred pounds.

The sale of the prize winning animals will continue today with the auctioning of the grand champion barrow and wether. The steers of the 4-H club boys and girls that were entered in the junior live stock feeding contest also will go on the block.

Exposition officials estimate that the sales returns to exhibitors will reach $2,000,000 this year.

HIGHEST PRICES IN YEARS

Aberdeen-Angus cattle breeders paid the highest prices in years for blue-blooded animals in the annual auction at the International Live Stock exposition yesterday.

Another heifer, Pride of Rosemere, owned by Otto V. Battles of Yakima, Wash., and Maquoketa, Ia., brought $1,825. Its buyer was the Angus Valley farms of Tulsa, Okla.

Auctioneers Arthur Thompson and N. G. Kraschel sold 39 head of Aberdeen-Angus cattle for $33,535, an average of $860. Last year's comparative figures were 47 head, $21,810, and an average of $464. The 26 females brought $22,975, an average of $883, and the 13 bulls, $10,560, an average of $812.

Horse judging drew attention in the exposition's main arena. Clapstile Butterfly, owned by the Hawthorn farms, of Libertyville, Ill., was named the grand champion mare in the Suffolk class. The grand champion Suffolk stallion was Two Knocks Commandant, also owned by Hawthorn farms.

Sir James, from the Anheuser-Busch, Inc. herd at St. Louis, Mo., was picked the champion gelding of the show. Kelley, owned by T. R. Bohan, of Shell Rock, Ia., was the reserve champion gelding.

Matilda, exhibited by Julius Porath and son of Detroit, Mich., was judged the grand champion Belgian mare.

4-H GIRLS KEEP FARM CLOTHING STYLES IN STEP

Styles in clothing on the farm are keeping step with improved crops and better bred animals. It's the result of work by half a million 4-H club girls. Six of these girls, who are winners in the first national clothing achievement contest, received $200 college scholarships.

The national winners and 33 other state winners were guests of the Spool Cotton company, which gave the awards, at a dinner last night in the Chicago Woman's club. All received all-expense trips to the 4-H Club congress now in session here.

The six national winners are Mary Ellen Routt, 17 years old, of Pewee Valley, Ky.; Arlene Cole, 20, of Bangor, Me.; Charlotte Sieberg, 20, of Mankato, Minn.; Marion Knudson, 17, of Suffolk, Mont.; Marietta Ludeman, 18, of Amorita, Okla., and Male Annabel Nygren, 17, of Fallon, Neb.

STALLION KING LOSES CROWN TO 2 YEAR SON

Jay Farceur, for many years king of the Belgian stallions, stepped aside yesterday to make room in the record books for his up and coming son, Kenfleur's Jay Farceur.

Judges term Jay Farceur the greatest Belgian horse that ever lived. Since 1933, when he first entered International Live Stock competition as a 2 year old and carried off the junior championship, the magnificent animal has won hundreds of blue ribbons for his owner, H. C. Horneman of Danville, Ill.

But champions can't rule forever. The 11 year old beauty bowed to his son as grand champion stallion of the exposition after holding the title for three successive years.

Named Reserve Champion.

Jay Farceur isn't thru yet, however. He was named reserve grand champion and senior champion against the best competition his breed offers.

"See, he doesn't mind a bit," Earl Allen, manager of the Horneman farm, said yesterday as he watched Jay Farceur devour a pile of hay in his stall.

Kenfleur's Jay Farceur, the new champion, belongs to Ohio State university, which bought him for $800 from a former student two years ago.

Taken to University.

The prize winner was foaled on the Horneman farm Feb. 15, 1939, and sold at the age of 5 months to George Harkness of Sandusky, O., who was graduated from Ohio State in 1933.

Harkness, former professor, Donald J. Kays, chairman of the department of animal husbandry, stopped at the Harkness farm a few months later and enrolled the colt at the university.

The next summer Kenfleur's Jay Farceur began following in his father's footsteps by topping all entrants in the stallion division of the eastern Belgian futurity at the Ohio State fair.

This summer, however, the old horse beat out his son in the same competition. Now at the International Exposition the tables were turned again.

"The old man with the scythe and the hour-glass defeated Jay Farceur at last," Kays said. "We'll carry on with his son."

LOUD SUIT SENDS A.W.O.L. SOLDIER BACK TO TOILS

Herbert Jeanguenat, 26 years old, fled yesterday from the guardhouse at Fort Sheridan, where he was serving a term for minor infraction of army rules. Less than two hours later, when the post broadcast a request for his arrest, Jeanguenat was in the Lake Forest jail.

It happened this way: Somehow the fugitive had obtained civilian clothing, including an extra green suit. He tried to peddle the suit to Herman Johnson, owner of a filling station in Lake Forest, for $2. Johnson, becoming suspicious, called police, who took the stranger into custody.

He denied his identity until military policemen arrived and viewed him in jail. He went back to the guardhouse.

BOY SLAYER, 16, GIVEN 12 YEAR TERM IN PRISON

Bel Air, Md., Dec. 4 (AP).—A weeping 16 year old boy was sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment today for the roadside slaying of Grainger G. Browning during the runaway escapade of three Alexandria, Va., youngsters. The boy, Herbert H. Cox Jr., was sentenced by Associate Judge Frederick Lee Cobourn after pleading guilty to the murder of Browning, 38, a carpenter, last Oct. 12.

Mrs. Cox the boy's mother sobbed as Judge Cobourn pronounced sentence, and Ida May Price, 15, collapsed when she was committed with Leona Ellen Cunningham, 14, to the Montrose School for Girls as accessories after the fact. The judge directed that the girls be kept there until they become 21, or before, at discretion of school officials.

The trio ran away from their trailer camp homes in Alexandria on Oct. 12. Before dawn, Cox shot Browning because, he said, the former North Carolinian "was making love to Ida May." The trio took Browning's watch and pocketbook containing $11 and dumped Browning's body in a roadside thicket.

Bans Naming of Mexican Schools for Living 'Heroes'

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 4 (AP).—Pointing out that today's hero may be tomorrow's villain, President Manuel Avila Camacho has banned the naming of Mexican schools for living persons.

DENTIST MUST PAY $12,500 TO JILTED TEACHER

Jefferson City, Mo., Dec. 4 (AP).—A federal court jury tonight awarded Camille Farrar, 34 years old, of Gary, Ind., $12,500 damages for breach of a marriage contract by Dr. R. R. Shields, 60.

Miss Farrar, who charged the dentist "threw me over after I spent the best part of my life freeing him from a mental hospital and restoring him to normal life," had sued for $100,000.

After a 14 year courtship, the couple signed an ante-nuptial property settlement in Wichita in 1938, shortly before the dentist was committed to a Missouri state mental hospital at Fulton, Mo. Miss Farrar testified she spent $7,000 to win his release and to obtain a legal declaration of his sanity. Dr. Shields, who now lives at Fayette, Mo., testified she refused to marry him.

PROPOSE CHANGE IN PREMARITAL TEST FOR WOMEN

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 4 (AP).—A proposal urging a change in the state premarital examination law to make it unnecessary for women to take a test for gonorrhea was taken under consideration today by the Illinois Public Health association, which met here in conjunction with the Illinois conference of public health.

The association referred a resolution which asked that the law be changed to its legislative committee for consideration and a report to the membership at its next meeting.

The action was taken after numerous physicians and local health officials declared that mandatory inclusion of the test in the premarital physical examination had caused many to be married outside Illinois.

FABRIC EXPERTS RECOMMEND SUPER SUDS!
Here's How to Wash Rayons, Silks and Wool
NEW YORK, Nov. 3—Better Fabrics Testing Bureau, widely-known authorities on all textile and fabric subjects, say "Wash rayons, silks, and woolens in Super Suds." Here are their expert instructions:
Test a small patch in plain water for color-fastness. If color runs, it's not washable. (Test woolens in soapy water.)
Wash garments separately, by hand.
Use lukewarm suds as follows: Dissolve Super Suds completely in warm water, then add cold water to get lukewarm suds.
Do not soak. Wash quickly and gently. Do not rub, wring or twist. Woolens especially shrink from rubbing—avoid any excessive handling while wet.
Rinse thoroughly, gently, in clean, lukewarm water.
Roll in towel, but don't leave there. Never dry woolens in excessive heat or direct rays of sun.

CONGRESS AGAPE AT SECRET PLAN FOR FOREIGN WAR

Republic Betrayed, Says Tinkham; Quiz Looms.

On the floor, Rep. Earl C. Michener [R., Mich.], a member of the appropriations committee, was the first to call attention to the revelations.

"In view of statements appearing in the press today," he said, "it seems to me that consideration of the appropriation bill ought to be delayed. There is in this bill a blank check to the President for 1 billion 300 million dollars which might be used for an AEF.

"Why doesn't the committee call Gen. Marshall [chief of staff] and ask him about this matter before we proceed? Gen. Marshall should be required to answer the article. The committee and the country has a right to know all the facts before we appropriate this 8 billion dollars."

Argue Over "Timing."

At this point Rep. Cannon took the floor and the following exchanges, marking an unprecedented reaction to a newspaper story, ensued:

CANNON—The article was carefully timed and published to coincide with the introduction of this bill.

REP. FRANCIS CASE [R., S. D.]—If the gentleman will permit me, I think it would be more truthful to say that the article was published to coincide with the opening of a new morning paper in Chicago.

CANNON—In the first flush, the article has caused some concern. A careful study, however, reveals that the document on which it was based is purely a study of material for European soldiers, not American men.

REP. FRANCIS J. MEYERS [D., PA.]—Does the gentleman recall that leading British military men, including Gen. Wavell, have admitted publically on numerous occasions that if Hitler is to be defeated, America must send men overseas?

CANNON—There is nothing in this bill before us relating to an expeditionary force. The article states that the United States must spend 40 billion dollars in the next six months for active participation in war. According to the date the original document was drawn [September] the six months would end in February. Yet all this bill asks for is 8 billion dollars.

20 Members Refute Defense.

This was one of Cannon's two main points of disagreement with the story. He also started to argue that it would be impossible for the United States to raise an army of the proportions described in the joint board's report to the President because of existing law limiting the army to 900,000 men.

At this statement, at least 20 members came to their feet, flourishing their newspapers and demanding to be heard. In the confusion that followed, Rep. Forest A. Harness [R., Ind.] was recognized and pointed out that all limitation on the number of men in the armed forces was removed by congress in the draft extension bill.

"Isn't it a fact that the army and navy have told the appropriations committee that they will be back in February for millions more?" asked Rep. William P. Lambertson [R., Kas.], referring to Cannon's comparison of 8 billion asked in the pending bill and the 40 billion figure given by the strategy board. "It seems to me that statement fits right in with this story."

Admits More Bills Ahead.

CANNON—Of course, we all know we will have to spend more money next year. We won't reach our peak production until the middle of 1942.

REP. CLIFTON A. WOODRUM [D., VA.]—There are no funds in this bill contemplating a program such as described in this story, are there? And didn't the chief of staff tell the committee that no expeditionary force is presently contemplated by the army?

CANNON—That is correct.

In replies to other questions, Cannon charged that the story about the joint board report was inaccurate because it stated that the report indicated America's early active participation in war.

"There is no such indication anywhere in the document," he averred.

"We have heard you attack this story describing this important document," began Rep. Carl T. Curtis [R., Neb.]. "Will the gentleman introduce a copy of the original document in the Record so all members can study it?"

CANNON—If this newspaper wants to produce it, I suppose it can be introduced.

CURTIS—Can't you introduce it? You speak for the administration.

CANNON—I don't have it.

REP. ANDREW J. MAY [D., KY.]—I would like to explain that this report is merely a study by the war department of a possible situation. It is not a plan for an expeditionary force, and never has been regarded as such.

Admits Quotes "Correct."

Saying that he had received a report on the news story from the war and navy departments, Rep. Taber later told the house that the verbatim quotes from the high command's communication to the President were correct, but that certain conclusions and summaries had been adjudged wrong. One was the statement that the report indicated this country soon will be at war, and the other was that army officials do not believe German can be beaten by the forces now opposing her. Both of these, said Taber, were denied by the high command.

Taber's speech was the last flurry preceding consideration of the appropriation measure designed to produce additional funds for rearmament, plus 1½ billions for lend-lease aid to soviet Russia and Great Britain. The chamber concluded its first day of general debate on the measure today, with passage expected before the end of the week.

QUIZ ON OFFICIAL DECEIT

There was no senate debate yesterday on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's story revealing the secret war plans of the Roosevelt administration because of a previous agreement that no busines swould be transacted at that session. More than 20 members had gone to Colorado to attend the funeral of Sen. Alva B. Adams.

Many senators predicted, however, that there will be strong opposition to the 8 billion dollar arms bill, now under consideration in the house, when it reaches the senate. Members also said they would call upon officials to explain their purpose in attempting to deceive the people by repeatedly denying war plans.

Sen. Lister Hill [D., Ala.], administration spokesman on the military affairs committee, acknowledged the authenticity of the secret war plans revealed by THE TRIBUNE after he returned to the capitol from a conference of legislative leaders with President Roosevelt.

Plan "One of Many."

Sen. Hill, however, sought to depreciate the significance of THE TRIBUNE's revelations.

"I dare say this suggested plan is one of many," he said. "The commander in chief and the war and navy departments, if they are really fit for their jobs, will have a plan for any and every possible situation that might affect the vital interests or defense of the United States.

"In normal times the army war college and the general staff spend much of their time preparing different plans for any and every eventuality that could be conceived to arise."

Sen. Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.], chairman of the military affairs committee, commended "THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for its great public service in giving the American people the final, irrefutable evidence that the war plans of the Roosevelt administration contemplate sending an expeditionary force of at least 5,000,000 men to Europe."

"I am not at all surprised that they are planning an AEF of that size," said Reynolds. "It is the logical and inevitable result of the policies pursued by the administration."

Sen. Robert A. Taft [R., O.], another leading noninterventionist, commented as follows:

"It seems to me the report is correct as an estimate of what is necessary to defeat Hitler. No doubt such a force can defeat Hitler, but it would bankrupt the United States and put an end to what we have known as democracy."

Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], who often serves as the senate mouthpiece of the administration's most extreme interventionists, at first disputed the authenticity of the confidential report quoted by THE TRIBUNE. When assured that the document's authenticity had been confirmed thruout the government, he still insisted that no commitment to send an AEF to Europe has been made by this government.

"Determined to Crush Hitler."

Pepper insisted that the administration's strategy calls for the defeat of Hitler by assisting the military forces now fighting the axis powers, by driving axis warcraft from the seas, by tightening the blockade and shutting off Germany's sources of raw materials, and by encouraging uprisings among the peoples of the German occupied countries.

"Of course we are determined to crush Hitler and we shall do whatever may be necessary to accomplish that objective," he added. "If all other means fail, then we shall face the question of sending an expeditionary force. The administration's plans may contemplate building up such a force as that mentioned in the Tribune article, in order to be prepared for any necessity that may arise. I favor building up the army to a strength great enough to send an expeditionary force wherever required."

CITY YULE FUND $34,000 RICHER; NOW IS $234,000

More than 300 business men and civic leaders met last night at a dinner in the Blackstone hotel and pledged $34,000 toward Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit fund, bringing the total in the fund to date to $234,000.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly was the principal speaker and Corporation Council Barnet Hodes, secretary of the fund, told the gathering that $100,000 had been realized from last Saturday's championship game between the public and the Catholic high schools; that $100,000 had been contributed by other sources, leaving only about $166,000 to be realized from the benefit show at the Stadium Dec. 17.

WOMAN SUES U. S. AGENT ON FALSE ARREST CHARGE

Miss Caroline Burks, 42 years old, 1425 North Dearborn street, a former teacher, filed suit in Circuit court yesterday against J. J. McLaughlin, a United States secret service agent, and Dr. William H. Haines of the Criminal court behavior clinic, asking $100,000 damages for false arrest.

The suit sets forth that Miss Burks was arrested July 19 on an insanity petition sworn out by McLaughlin, and was adjudged insane July 23. She was paroled in the custody of a friend, but the insanity finding later was vacated. The original petition seeking to have her declared insane was quashed Oct. 11.

Gen. Hugh Johnson Quits America First Committee

New York, Dec. 4 [Special].—The resignation of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson from the America First committee because of its decision to participate in next year's elections was revealed today in his column, published in the New York World-Telegram and other newspapers. Gen. Johnson said the committee had deviated from its original purpose of opposing, on a strictly nonpartisan basis, any unnecessary involvement in overseas war or delegation of power to the President.

AEF Story Reprinted All Over the Country.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's exclusive copyrighted story revealing the secret war plans of the Roosevelt administration was acclaimed yesterday as a newspaper beat of world-wide significance, one of the most momentous ever to come out of the nation's capital.

The sensational story by Chesly Manly of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's Washington bureau was available only to readers of THE TRIBUNE and newspapers subscribing to The Chicago Tribune press service. It rocked the nation's capital, where half a dozen investigations were started, and caused tumult in all newspaper offices where it was not available.

The story divulged details of a confidential report, prepared by the joint army and navy high command at President Roosevelt's direction, which calls for total armed forces of more than 10,000,000 men and an American expeditionary force of 5,000,000 men for a final land offensive against the German army.

'Blueprint for Total War.'

Mr. Manly described the report as "a blueprint for total war on a scale unprecedented on at least two oceans and three continents—Europe, Africa, and Asia."

The story was sent out over THE TRIBUNE's leased wires as part of its regular press service to members, which include representative newspapers thruout the country.

The Washington Times-Herald published the story in full, with an eight column streamer headline. Hundreds of readers reported that morning editions of the newspaper were unavailable at their neighborhood news stands.

'A Tremendous Beat.'

Frank C. Waldorf, political and foreign editor of the Times-Herald, sent THE TRIBUNE the following telegram:

The St. Louis Star-Times asked and was given permission to print the story.

The Lead Story in Denver.

The Denver Post, an afternoon newspaper, used the story as the lead story of the day, as did the Buffalo, N. Y., Courier.

The story was the chief topic of radio commentators on nearly every station in the country.

The Chicago and Washington offices of the Associated Press received requests from member newspapers all over the country for confirmation and details of the story.

It was not until 10:50 yesterday morning—nearly 10 hours after The Tribune story was first circulated—that news services obtained sufficient official comment on the history making story to enable them to carry details of it.

F. D. R. SAID:

Speaking at Warm Springs, Ga., on April 20, 1940, President Roosevelt said:

"The Republicans are seeking to frighten the country by telling the people the present administration is trying to put this nation into war or that it inevitably is drifting into war.

"You know better than that."

AIR LINES AGREE WITH CITY ON TERMINAL PLANS

City officials and air line representatives reached a tentative agreement yesterday on terms under which the city proposes to construct a new $1,200,000 airport terminal building. The air lines have offered to lend the city the money, interest free, for 10 years. At the same time, a schedule of landing fees and rentals will be paid by the air lines.

According to Ald. John J. Duffy [19th] chairman of the aldermanic subcommittee considering the agreement, new revenues from the air lines and other sources have been estimated to total approximately $515,000 a year while the maintenance cost of the field, with the new building, is expected to be somewhat more than the $275,000 asked in the 1942 budget.

Duffy said the council aviation committee will consider the subcommittee's approval of the proposal Monday and is expected to submit it to the city council on Wednesday. He said the air line representatives will in turn submit the proposal to their companies.

WAUKEGAN POST OF LEGION FIGHTS NEW AEF PLANS

Stirred to action by publication of the plan for a new American Expeditionary force, the Homer Dahringer post, American Legion, in Waukegan last night accepted a resolution lashing any such plan or even the use of Naval forces in an undeclared war.

The resolution was drawn up by a committee of past commanders and will be voted upon at another regular meeting two weeks hence. Sentiment last night was 9 to 1 in favor of it.

The resolution urges statesmen and congressmen to fight war participation, and asserts that the last war cost America thousands of lives, billions of dollars, and untold suffering. It added:

"The chance of contributing to world democracy is remote; the self-destruction of Naziism, communism, and Fascism is probable; the war will be long and the limitation of freedom in America certain, and it will take generations to live down the disastrous effects" of sending an expeditionary force into this war.

SERVICE CAMPS WILL BE LINKED BY RADIO HOOKUP

A "Star Spangled Network" system of communications for army and navy posts is to be formed under auspices of the United Service organization thru its member agency, the National Catholic Community service. Martin H. Work, representing the NCCS, explained the plan whereby a hundred or more "wired radio stations" are to spring up at service posts to the School Broadcast conference yesterday at the Stevens hotel.

Stations, using very low power of from 3 to 5 watts, are to be set up at camps. Programs will be originated in post USO clubs and sent thru regular electric circuits to receivers in barracks, Work said. The stations will be operated, manned, and programmed by service men. Programs will include news, entertainment, information of interest to the men, he said. The first of these stations, at Madison barracks, Sackett Harbor, N. Y., will be dedicated Dec. 20 with a special program to be picked up by NBC. Radio, screen, and stage celebrities will participate.

A second phase of this Star Spangled network involves amateur short wave stations. Amateur stations scattered across the nation in coöperation with the Amateur Radio Relay league will relay messages from service men in camps to their homes free.

STATE EXPENSES CUT 20 MILLIONS IN YEAR—GREEN

Gov. Dwight Green said last night that his administration has reduced the state's expenditures by 20 million dollars during his first year in office despite demands for an additional 70 million dollars in expenditures.

The governor spoke at a dinner given by the 37th ward Republican committee in honor of Francis A. Horrigan, supervisor of the state motor fuel tax division. He was introduced by John T. Dempsey, chairman of the Republican county central committee.

"I had to say no to many pleas," said Gov. Green, "but our economies didn't interfere with essential state services. In fact, we have increased unemployment compensation, funds for public education, assistance to the aged, and aid to dependent children."

RUSSIA'S STRICKEN FAMILIES NEED YOUR HELPING HAND!

Scorching the very earth beneath their feet before Hitler's invading army . . . with their homes abandoned and burned . . . their fields and factories smouldering in ashes . . . and their sons and fathers at the front . . . the women and children of Russia call to America for aid. They need, not the gifts of trinkets and toys or the luxuries of Christmas-tide, but food, clothing and medical aid to keep alive. Won't you share your Christmas with them . . . NOW . . . as generously as you can?

Solemnly and wisely, Americans are realizing that Russia's mighty stand is proving a vast and effective front to defeat Hitlerism. And, in swift recognition of this fact, leaders of our country and Great Britain have jointly committed themselves to expedite the fullest aid to the valiant people of war-stricken Russia.

With Christmas in our hearts and an unyielding faith in our democratic way of life, let us respond to this urgent appeal and enable the brave people of Russia to survive and keep strong. For humanity's sake let us GIVE GENEROUSLY.

EXPOSE OF F. D. R. WAR PLAN ROCKS OFFICIAL CIRCLES

Two Hunts Launched for Source of 'Leak.'

tionary force. THE TRIBUNE printed this story.

At the instance of the White House, Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.] took the senate floor and denounced Manly's dispatch as a "deliberate falsehood."

I was aware of the source of Manly's information and knew it to be authentic, notwithstanding the administration denial. In view of the officially inspired aspersion upon the integrity of Mr. Manly, I directed a vigorous search of all possible avenues of information on the secret war plan, the revelation of which had angered the President.

THE TRIBUNE succeeded in getting part of the information which was published Nov. 26 and eventually obtained the whole story in a copy of the joint board's secret report. Thus was Senator Barkley's "deliberate falsehood" charge exposed as a wanton slander.

In the case of THE TRIBUNE's presentation of the joint board's report today, the White House did not venture a denial. Saying that he is in no position to confirm or deny the authenticity of the Tribune dispatch, Stephen T. Early, a Presidential secretary, said that both the war and navy departments have divisions making war plans for all possible emergencies.

Concedes Right to Publication.

Early said that the newspapers are "operating as a free press" and that the "right to print the news is unchallenged." He did not dispute the right of THE TRIBUNE to get and print the story, "assuming the story to be genuine." The responsibility for keeping the report secret rested on the government, he said, and there would be an investigation to learn how it got out.

Referring to publication of the President's letter, Early said it is customary to ask permission for such publication. Of course, this custom pertains to a President's private letters only. It does not hold in the case of his official letters, which are public documents, and in this case his letter was a part of another public document, the joint board's report, however secret it was being kept.

Reprints Get Early's O. K.

Asked about the propriety of other papers republishing THE TRIBUNE'S scoop, Early said it would not be proper unless the paper got the information from the government or attribute it to THE TRIBUNE."

"I cannot see," said Early, "that there would be any complaint on the part of the government against papers that reprint this story and attributed it" to THE TRIBUNE.

"It depends entirely," Early continued, "on the decision of the publisher or the editor or the reporter whether printing the story would be patriotic or treason."

Early did not explain what he considers treason in time of peace, or whether it would be treason to the persons making the secret war plans, or treason to the people entitled to the information.

ELLEN PAPROCKI.

Ellen Paprocki, 1319 Chicago avenue, a senior in the liberal arts school at De Paul university, will reign as homecoming queen this week-end. The 42d annual celebration will open with a basketball game between De Paul and Kalamazoo Teachers' college tonight in the De Paul gymnasium, 2235 Sheffield avenue.

Miss Paprocki will be a guest at the alumnae luncheon tomorrow in the Congress Casino and preside during the ceremonies at the homecoming ball tomorrow night in the Lake Shore Athletic club.

The queen is active on the college campus as vice president of the senior class, a representative on the student activities council, and historian of Rho Delta Pi sorority.

HOUSE WILL LOOK INTO PROBLEM OF SMALL BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 [Special].—A resolution by Rep. Wright Patman [D., Tex.], proposing a house committee investigation of the problems of small business growing out of the defense emergency was adopted today by the house after a short debate. A committee of seven plans to visit many localities in its inquiry.

The committee is directed to determine:

1. Whether or not the potentialities of small business in the defense program have been adequately developed.
2. Whether or not adequate consideration has been given to the needs of small business engaged in nondefense activity.
3. Whether small business is being treated fairly thru allotments of materials in which there is a shortage.

VIRKUS PRAISES ACT.

Fred A. Virkus, president Illinois division, National Small Business Men's association, said that passage of the Patman resolution is the best "break" that small business men have had so far from congress. It said the resolution authorizes an investigation of alleged shortages of materials which small business vitally need to keep going. He believes the investigation will show that there are few if any real shortages.

AEF STORY BASED ON OFFICIAL DATA GIVEN PRESIDENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's sensational disclosure of the Roosevelt administration's secret war plans this morning was based upon a confidential report prepared by the joint army and navy high command, by direction of President Roosevelt.

The report calls for total American armed forces of 10,045,658 men and expeditionary forces of 5,000,000 for a final land offensive against Germany and her satellites.

President Roosevelt, in a letter to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson on July 9, requested the preparation of estimates of the "production requirements required to defeat our potential enemies." Participating in the conferences by direction of the President were Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, Harry L. Hopkins, the President's close adviser, and members of the joint board.

Generals, Admirals on Board.

The joint board consists of Adm. Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations; Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army; Maj. Gen. William Bryden, deputy chief of staff; Rear Adm. R. E. Ingersoll, assistant chief of naval operations; Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces; Rear Adm. John H. Towers, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics; Brig. Gen. L. T. Terow, assistant chief of staff in charge of the war plans division, and Rear Adm. R. K. Turner, director of naval war plans.

The report, dated Sept. 11, was signed by Gen. Marshall and Adm. Stark.

Salient points of the secret report, as given to newspaper readers by THE TRIBUNE, were:

1. The joint board gives its opinion that "Germany and her European satellites cannot be defeated by the European powers now fighting against her."

U. S. Entry Held Necessary.

2. Therefore, it concludes, "if our European enemies are to be defeated it will be necessary for the United States to enter the war and to employ a part of its armed forces offensively in the eastern Atlantic and in Europe and Africa."

3. July 1, 1943, is fixed as the date for the beginning of the final effort by American land forces to defeat the German army.

4. In the meantime the United States would take an increasingly active part in the war, to consist of the gradual encirclement of Germany by the establishment of military bases, an air offensive from bases in the British Isles and in the near east, and possible action by expeditionary forces in Africa and the near east.

10 Million Men Needed.

5. For the ultimate effort the report calls for a total of 10,045,658 men in America's armed forces, consisting of 1,100,000 in the navy, including the naval air force; 150,000 in the marine corps, 6,745,658 in the army ground force, and 2,050,000 in the army air force.

6. The report estimates that it will require 5 field armies, consisting of 215 divisions, to defeat our potential enemies.

7. It is estimated that 5,000,000 men will be transported to Europe over a period of two years.

Calls for Raids on Japan.

8. Against Japan, the report recommends a naval blockade and air raids in which a total of 1,700 bombers and 4,160 fighters would participate.

9. For air operations against Germany the report contemplates a total of 6,834 operating bombardment planes, with monthly replacements of 1,288 planes.

10. The joint board predicts that soviet Russia will be reduced to military impotence by July, 1942.

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The United States must spend between $120,000,000,000 and $150,000,000,000 to bring about the defeat of Germany, defense officials estimated in a report scheduled to be sent to President Roosevelt within the next few days.

This so-called "victory program" outlines the revolutionary changes that must be wrought in the nation's economy in the next two years and declares that defense expenditures must total $40,000,000,000 in 1942 and between $50,000,000,000 and $60,000,000,000 in 1943 if this country is to provide the equipment necessary for total victory.

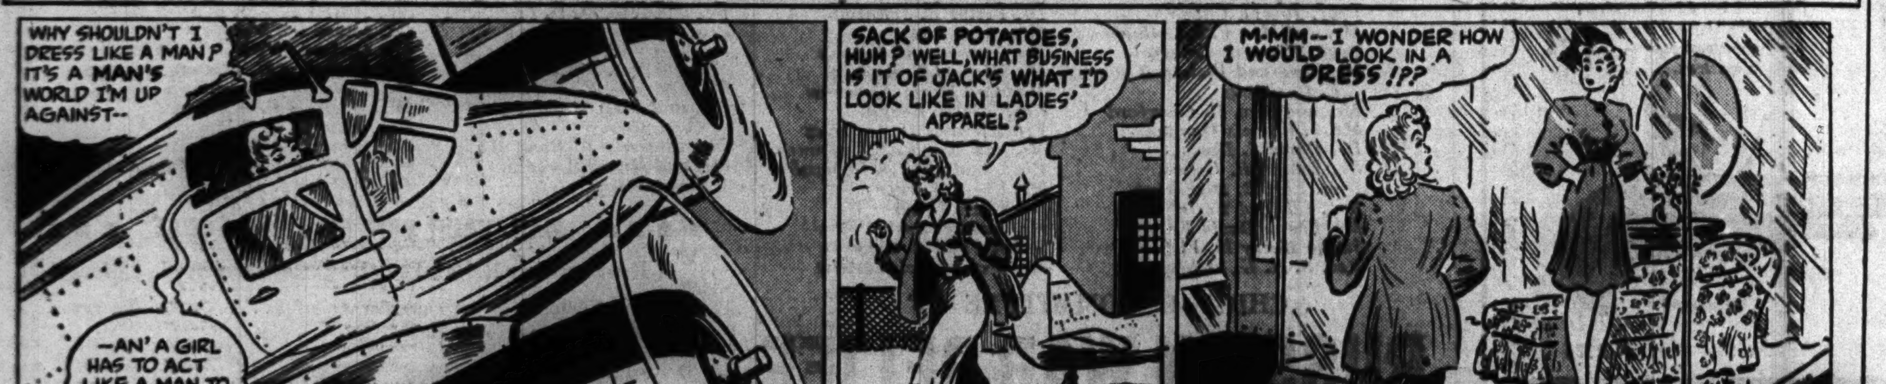
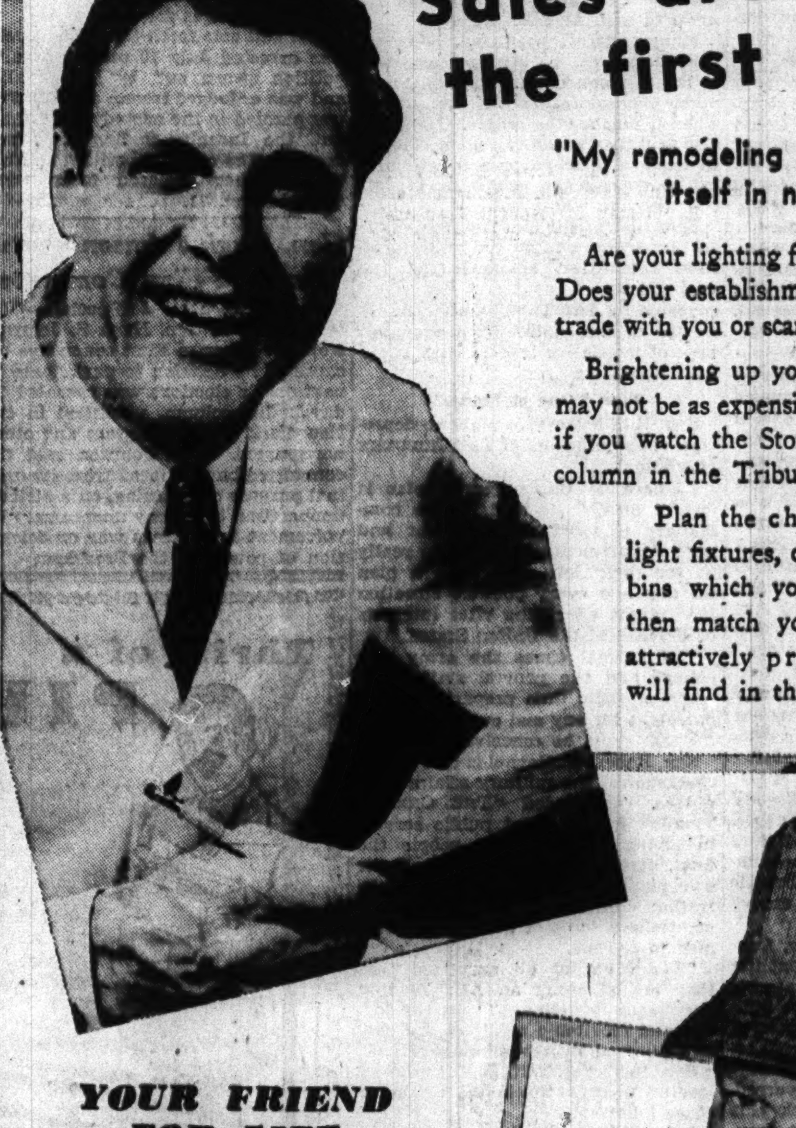
SMILIN' JACK—A WOMAN'S CURIOSITY



IT TAKES MORE THAN A SMILE

A nice smile can help you land a job, but it takes specialized training to make the most of it.

TO BACK up your personality with the specialized knowledge you need to qualify you for a better paid job, let Tribune want ads help you. Consult the announcements of interest to men and women in the Instruction, Musical and Dramatic, Trade Schools, and the Dressmaking and Millinery Schools columns. By selecting one of these regular or short courses in your chosen field, you can prepare yourself to cash in on today's increasing demands for trained men and women.



"Sales are up the first week!"

"My remodeling job will pay for itself in no time!"

Are your lighting fixtures profit-losers? Does your establishment invite people to trade with you or scare them away?

Brightening up your place of business may not be as expensive as you may think if you watch the Store and Bar Fixtures column in the Tribune want ad section.

Plan the changes in flooring, light fixtures, display counters and bins which you want to make—then match your list against the attractively priced offerings you will find in this helpful column.

YOUR FRIEND FOR LIFE

The clothes you wear, the money you make or what other people may think of you makes no difference to a dog. Loyal, affectionate, friendly—a faithful dog likes you for what you are. You can select the breed of dog you prefer from the wide variety advertised in the Dogs, Cats and Pets column of the Tribune want ad section.

"I know motors"

"That's why I bought a late model used car."

You need not be an expert mechanic to appreciate the economy, safety and travel luxury offered in the Used Automobiles columns of the Tribune want ad section.

Has your present car an all-steel body? Safety glass? Oil filter? Radio? Trunk? These are just a few of the features included in today's late model used car values described in the Used Automobiles for Sale columns.

Your present car may be all the down payment required to give you comfortable, economical and dependable transportation at low cost. Review these columns now in the Tribune want ad section.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

HULL ADMITS U. S. HAS AN ANTI-WAR PACT WITH NAZIS

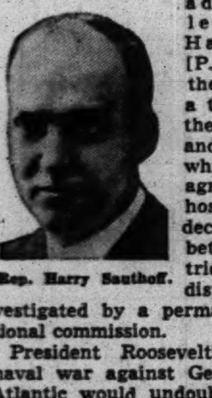
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today admitted in a letter to Rep. Harry Sauthoff [P., Wis.], that there still exists a treaty between the United States and Germany, which, by mutual agreement, bars hostilities or a declaration of war between the countries until any disputes are investigated by a permanent international commission.



Rep. Harry Sauthoff.

President Roosevelt's undeclared naval war against Germany in the Atlantic would undoubtedly be considered a violation of this treaty, according to Washington observers.

Sauthoff released an exchange of letters between himself and Hull in which Hull replied to his inquiries whether the treaty dated May 5, 1928, and ratified Feb. 25, 1929, still remained in effect.

No Notice of Abrogation.

Sauthoff asked particularly whether one year's notice of abrogation of the treaty, as provided in the pact, had ever been given Germany. Hull answered inthe negative.

In his letter to Hull, Sauthoff quoted Article I. of the treaty as follows:

"Any disputes arising between the government of the United States and the government of Germany, of whatever nature they may be, shall, when ordinary diplomatic proceedings have failed and the high contracting parties do not have recourse to adjudication by a competent tribunal, be submitted for investigation and report to a permanent international commission."

Agree Not to Declare War.

The pact further provides that "the high contracting parties agree not to declare war or begin hostilities during such investigation before the report is submitted."

Hull replied to Sauthoff, in a letter dated Dec. 1, that "the records of this department would indicate that no disputes arising between the government of the United States and the government of Germany have been submitted for investigation and report to a permanent international commission established in the manner provided in the treaty. . . . No notice of termination of this treaty has been given by either of the contracting parties."

Dewey Protests Steamroller.

Meanwhile Rep. Charles S. Dewey [R., Ill.] protested in the house against the steamroller tactics used by the administration in attempting to force passage of huge appropriation measures before members have had an opportunity to become familiar with them. He announced his intention to vote against the pending 8 billion dollar arms bill.

"The hurried appropriation of the taxpayers' money can result only in error and criticism," Dewey told the house, adding that such legislation "has the distinct odor of future persecution and is un-American."

He explained that this is why he voted against the drastic labor bill passed yesterday by the house.

DROP 10 GEORGIA COLLEGES FROM ACCREDITED LIST

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 4 (AP).—The Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools late today voted unanimously to drop 10 colleges of the University of Georgia system from its accredited list.

Political interference in the university system by Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia was blamed for the action, taken upon recommendation by the association's executive committee. The order is effective Sept. 1, 1942.

The 10 colleges dropped were the University of Georgia, Georgia Tech, Georgia State College for Women, Georgia State Women's college, Georgia Teachers' college, Georgia Southwestern, Middle Georgia college, North Georgia college, South Georgia college, and West Georgia college.

The executive committee cited the removal of Dean Walter D. Cocking of the University and President Marvin S. Pittman of Georgia Teachers' college by a revamped state board of regents on Talmadge's charges that the educators advocated co-education of the races.

Then the committee said that after sifting all the evidence it was "forced to conclude that the university system of Georgia has been the victim of unprecedented and unjustifiable political interference."

Hearings will be held at the Kankakee courthouse Dec. 11 and 12 and at the Lee county courthouse, Dixon, Dec. 12.

OUT OF SCHOOL CHILDREN GIVE SANTA WORKOUT

Older Boys and Teachers Look for Jobs.

[This is the second of two articles describing the causes and results of closing the public schools in a busy midwestern city.]

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 4.—An interview with Santa Claus today brought out another of the many effects of closing the public schools here for six extra weeks. Because education tax funds have run out, and Rockford is to vote on a tax increase Dec. 16, there is a lockout that will keep 12,000 children away from class until Jan. 5.

Santa Claus is busier than ever before in the leading department store. Not that he doesn't like it that way. He does. And his rush period is now spread over six days of the week instead of swamping him on Saturdays.

"A lot of the kids have been in here six and eight times since I arrived two weeks ago," Mr. Claus said.

How do the children like having the schools closed? The question produced a wide range of answers, all the way from "It's swell!" to "I wish I was back in school."

Husky Ones Get Jobs.

High school boys, especially the husky ones, are finding jobs in the factories. The Illinois State Employment service reported that from 1,001 in October, the number of requests for men dropped to 300 in November—low point of the year.

Predictions of a juvenile crime wave have come true, but it cannot be laid to the closing of the schools, said Assistant State's Attorney William Gates. He studied his records on those involved and reported that altho of high school age they were not students.

Besides joining a crusade to put the tax increase thru in its fourth time on the ballot since 1935, many parents are seeing that their offspring spend their vacation wisely.

Catholic Rolls Increase.

Three business schools have a total enrollment of 150 high school students in special courses designed for the emergency. One school added two of the teachers on payless vacation."

Parochial schools, of which there are a dozen, most of them Catholic, have had slightly increased enrollments as the result of the summer warning that public schools would close Nov. 7. However, most ruled that they would accept students for a full year only, holding down the number of transfers.

Teachers have their own problems. An estimated 20 per cent of the 500 teachers have found jobs—some of them extremely odd for those filling them.

Principal David W. Schoonmaker of Washington Junior High school is running a milling machine at the Woodward Governor company plant. His wife said he works a 12 hour night shift and sleeps most of the day.

FREE NICK CIRCELLA UNDER $25,000 BOND; GOES TO TRIAL JAN. 5

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Nick Circella, alias Dean, Chicago night club operator, under federal indictment for conspiracy to extort more than $1,000,000 from the motion picture industry, was freed in $25,000 cash bail today. He had been in the federal house of detention since Tuesday when he pleaded innocent.

Circella is a former associate of William Bioff, west coast labor leader, and George E. Browne, former head of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés [AFL], who recently were convicted on similar charges.

Circella was arrested in Chicago Monday after having been a fugitive since June, 1940. His trail, together with that of Louis Kaufman, of Newark, N. J., business manager of local 244, of the International Alliance, has been set for Jan. 5.

TEACHER ENDS OPERATIONS OF 'LOVE EMBASSY'

E. Shirley Ream, alias Rehm, 63 years old, accused love racketeer, yesterday was indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of sending a threatening letter thru the mail. Ream, who called his office at 4846 Sheridan road, "The Love Embassy," is accused of attempting to extort $200 from a Richmond, Va., school teacher by blackmail.

As was his practice, according to federal prosecutor, Ream engaged in an ardent correspondence with the teacher, whose name he obtained from a lonely hearts club. The teacher's replies were indiscreet, officers said.

Ream, according to the indictment, then threatened to turn the letters and photographs she sent him over to her superiors unless she sent him $200 at once. The teacher, instead, notified the government.

Save Our Republic

OUTBREAKS IN ITALY.

The anti-Fascist terrorists' outbreak in Italy probably does not express smoldering feelings of revolt underneath the submissiveness of the people who were promised imperial rewards and prestige for the punishment they have taken. Italy is not free to oust the men responsible for its unfortunate adventures in power politics. The Italians would not have to deal with Mussolini and their Fascist rulers but with Nazi Germany. Hitler is strong enough to keep them in line.

No doubt most of the Italians thoroly realize how empty now are the phrases of Il Duce's rhetorical return to the glories of old Rome. But the situation allows them no alternative but to obey orders and thereby to preserve the pretense of Italy as a great power in the axis combination, still in line to reap the benefits of Hitler's new order. A rebellion against this probably would result in the nation being reduced to the status of one of the occupied countries.

The propagandists keep a brave front, but there is every reason to believe that the great mass of the people are sick of war and ambitious enterprises. Whatever good Mussolini did when he rescued the land from the anarchy caused by the communists has been dissipated in his endeavors to make Italy a commanding power on two continents. This has entailed great sacrifices and the Italians have nothing to show for it except their sufferings and discomforts. They are not a people to prefer a mad world to a sane one, or a life of violent ambitions to one of peaceful accomplishments. Italy's long tradition of being a charmed land for beauty lovers everywhere was more productive of good than Mussolini's dream of empire.

The Nazi hand is too heavy as yet to offer immediate prospect of release for the enchained peoples of Europe. But the situation is in essence intolerable and endurance will have its limits. That is true of the world today everywhere. Dominant men have created impossible conditions of life and, altho the human race has demonstrated that it can take unbelievable punishments, there are inevitable consequences to human unreason which are bound to assert themselves.

THEY DON'T SCARE EASILY.

Mayor La Guardia of New York came out to Chicago to propagandize in behalf of the civilian defense program, thru which he and Mrs. Roosevelt hope to whip up war sentiment for the administration. The mission was a flop, but it helped further a neglected part of La Guardia's education. It introduced him to a few middle westerners and acquainted him with their views about war.

In his own bailiwick Mayor La Guardia may have gathered the impression that the hysteria was approaching the proper pitch for carrying out the aims of the war party. Out here he found that sanity still rules. As one midwestern governor told him, "Our citizens can't be sold on the idea they're about to be bombed." The New York mayor excluded the press from his conference in an attempt to conceal the lack of response he received, but the failure was apparent.

Everything done so far in the La Guardia campaign has been useless or worse. There was much hue and cry while old percolators were being collected in the scrap aluminum campaign, but most of the scrap has never gone to the smelters. San Francisco has just reported that its mountain of aluminum, collected six months ago, lies oxidizing under early winter rains in a vacant lot.

Even if the people had not sufficient reason to distrust La Guardia's aims in the first place, they would lack confidence in him. He has turned in too many false alarms. He will probably feel relief in getting back to his own preserves, where he can catch a ride on the hook and ladder to the latest fire and pretend that incendiary bombs caused it. The little Duce of New York can panic the excitable, timid people of the east coast, but he has no chance of stampeding the solid citizenry of the middle west.

THE AMERICAN LIFELINE.

The United States government is now lend-leasing American youth as a stock item subject to demand under the 1776 bill. It is learned that 100 officers and enlisted men have already been released from the air force and that more are leaving to fly under the Chinese flag. They are to pilot American fighter planes. And what is their mission? The defense, no less, of the Burma road against the Japanese bombing attack. Mr. Roosevelt once declared the Rhine to be the American frontier. He has had to revise his geography a bit, but he has come up with a place that is equally improbable. We are bundling with Britain in Iceland and nestling with the Netherlands in Dutch Guiana, so why not cuddle with China? As Mr. Roosevelt has remarked, let's be consistent.

RACE TRACK NEWS.

A reader has addressed a letter to "the Holy Joes who inhabit the sanctorum of the editorial page." He thinks we "ought to have a gander at the sports pages," where space is devoted to race results, entries, and favorites. THE TRIBUNE, he thinks, ought not to oppose gambling on the editorial page and promote it on the sporting pages.

The principal part of the answer is that THE TRIBUNE prints the news. What happened yesterday and what may happen today at the race tracks is news in which many readers are interested. We see no reason why we should not give it to them.

If THE TRIBUNE were engaged in a crusade against gambling as such there might be more force to the criticism. We don't approve gambling for ourselves and don't think it conduces to personal or collective good, but neither do we regard it as a major evil to be extirpated instantly and at all costs.

The evil which we have been attacking is not betting on the horses, but the corruption of public officials and policemen by gangsters in the gambling racket. If anybody could show us that by ceasing to print the race news we could drive the gangsters out of town we would omit the race results and entries, but no such showing has been made or can be made. It isn't race news which keeps the racket going; it's corruption.

THE REAL WAR PLAN.

The joint board of the army and navy has informed Mr. Roosevelt that he must have 10 million men under arms if he is to carry out his announced purpose of destroying Hitler. Five million of these men must be organized into an expeditionary force for the final land operations against Germany. The date set for the beginning of the offensive is July 1, 1943.

These are the highlights of the remarkable news beat obtained by Mr. Chesly Manly of THE TRIBUNE'S Washington bureau. Mr. Manly's account was fully documented. It contained the letter from Mr. Roosevelt to Mr. Stimson, the secretary of war, asking him, in coöperation with the secretary of the navy, to explore the "overall production requirements required to defeat our potential enemies." This letter is dated July 9 of this year. The joint board's report was completed two months later and is dated Sept. 11, 1941, only three months ago.

The joint board, containing the best strategic brains in the army and navy, dismisses the assumption that the war can be won merely by sending munitions and supplies to Britain, Russia, China, and the rest. Neither can the war be won with nothing more than the navy and airplanes. If we are to crush Germany it must be with a colossal army overseas, an army bigger than that of Germany and her allies, an army more than twice as large as that which we had in Europe at the conclusion of the last war.

Of course no other assumption is tenable. Wishful thinkers have persuaded themselves that the war can be won at no great cost in human life or anything else. They have thought, as the same kind of people thought in 1916 and 1917, that we would have to make no more than a token demonstration of power to frighten the Germans into surrender. The strategists of the army and navy know better. Germany's strategic position is immensely strong, far stronger than it was the last time. Her army is relatively better than it was then in every essential particular. She is drawing supplies from a far wider territory and is, therefore, better able to resist the blockade. Then she had to fight on two major fronts; now she has only one.

Germany can be defeated, but not merely by sending tanks to Africa and planes to Turks and Chinamen. The conquest of Germany, in the considered judgment of the most competent experts at our government's disposal, calls for men by the millions who must force a landing in Europe and defeat the German army on the continent where its strength is greatest.

The joint board's plan was not the solution of one of those military problems with which general staffs occupy themselves in time of peace. Here is no fanciful exercise on the invasion of Canada or the conquest of Brazil. The document which Mr. Manly quoted was based upon Mr. Roosevelt's announced policy of destroying Hitler. The joint board told him what he would have to do to achieve his goal. The calculations were based not upon arbitrary assumptions but upon the realities as they existed only three months ago.

The joint board's estimates have been serving as a guide to military preparations in recent months. The army and navy have been buying supplies for an army of 10 million men. It is for an army of that size that socks, blankets, sheets, raincoats, and a great many other items are being accumulated. The appropriation bills tell the same story. When this point was made in THE TRIBUNE and elsewhere we were told that appearances were sometimes deceptive. When repeatedly our Washington bureau has produced evidence of a purpose to prepare a huge expeditionary force spokesmen for the administration have denounced the reports as lies.

They weren't lies, as sensible men have known all along and as everybody now knows from documentary evidence. The truth is that Mr. Roosevelt, who solemnly promised the American people on a dozen occasions that he would not send their sons to foreign battlefields, is preparing to do just that. If congress continues to yield to him it is to be expected that a million of the 5 million conscripts he sends overseas will not come home alive and that many of those who do come back will be broken men.

Mr. Manly's great scoop has brought the discussion of national policy down to earth. There can no longer be any doubt about what the administration intends. We can now weigh the probable gains of an adventure in Europe against the probable cost, and the balance will not be obscured by wishful thinking and downright lying about the limits of our participation. Mr. Roosevelt and those about him think that the preservation of the British empire and the four freedoms for Chinamen are worth the lives of a million American boys and a couple of hundred billion dollars to boot. He didn't talk that way when he was a candidate for the third term, just a little more than a year ago. If he had he would have been defeated as a madman.

Editorial of the Day

OLEO STARTS FIGHT.

[Ozaukee Press, Port Washington, Wis.]

It looks pretty serious now. The old battle of butter versus oleomargarine is getting rougher and tougher. The recent approval of oleo by the Foods and Drugs administration at Washington, D. C., has loaded the guns with some real ammunition.

Already the manufacturers of oleo have ganged together on a country-wide advertising campaign. They say they have given oleo a shot in the arm by adding vitamins, a preservative, and a flavor like butter. They say it is as good as butter. But this obviously is untrue or else they wouldn't go to such pains to copy the real article.

Farmers and workers in Ozaukee county and elsewhere are certainly affected by this O. K. from the Foods and Drugs administration. If the farmer loses his butter market the backbone of Wisconsin dairying is broken. Farm income drops. Then workers, too, lose a market for the products of their manufacture.

Ozaukee Press, even at this distance, smells power politics in the food and drug order. Because the government bought up butter they made a fake scarcity and raised the price. Now butter is sent to Great Britain and the government pushes oleo on us. If this keeps on and when the war is over, you can bet that oleo will have sneaked in.

If Great Britain is hungry for butter let her have oleo. But keep butter for America and the butter market for Wisconsin.

Rudolph Hess parachuted into England and Mr. Willkie into the G. O. P. convention. Hess had peace plans—Willkie, war plans. Hess was taken prisoner—Willkie was the captor. Hess does not talk—Willkie does. There is a question about Hess' betrayal.—Rep. William Lambertson, Congressional Record.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

FLOUNDERING IN THE FILES.

For a special purpose, which is neither here nor there, we have been floundering thru the bound volumes of THE TRIBUNE, which cover nearly 100 years. To change the figure of speech, we have been investigating the ancient strata of these typographical deposits by the geologist's method of borings. We have tapped the Muddy Forties, the Fearful Fifties, the Bloody Sixties, the Sentimental Seventies, the Haughty Eighties, and the Gay Nineties, and pretty soon, at the turn of the century, we will find a baby dinosaur track that is our own footprint.

* * *

The old books are bearing up well and will survive for several centuries, by which time their entire contents will be recorded and accessible in microphotographic gadgets. To aid in their preservation, the pages in most of the volumes have been covered with transparent paper. Close reading of such pages, however, requires a magnifying glass, if one wishes to avoid his oculist.

* * *

The files, hated by every newspaper man who strains his eyes over them, but held sacred nevertheless, inspired Rudyard Kipling to write a jingle that only the ink-stained wretches of journalism can appreciate. It runs in part:

Every question you can raise,
Every phrase of every phase
Of that question is on record in the files. . . .
Where the dead men lay them down
Meekly sure of long renown,
And above them, sere and swift,
Packs the daily deepening drift
Of the all-recording, all-effacing files.

* * *

The tradition of complete anonymity was ironclad until close to the turn of the century, and so the men who wrote these billions of words are unknown, so far as the files are concerned. We found one signature by initials in the 1870s and can identify the author, but elsewhere the trail is cold. We can only imagine our predecessors as a phantom swarm, sitting at tables or at shelves against a wall, by gaslight, by lamplight, by candlelight, writing, writing, writing. Few of them ever saw the inside of a college classroom, but nearly all could sling English in the grand manner.

THE SHOPPER'S LULLABY.

So darn weary I can't sleep;
Prices soaring, nothing cheap;
Can't find a bargain tho I try
—That's the shopper's lullaby.

Mashed on street cars to a pulp;
Jabbed by elbows 'til I gulp;
"So becoming!" "Very new";
The things they're pushing off on you!
Wait on corners for the light;
Hit that line with all your might;
Push, and bump, and jam, and pry
—That's the shopper's lullaby.

"Sorry, sir, we're out of stock";
"We're just closing—five o'clock";
Strain my budget, wreck my nerves,
Dip down deep in my reserves.
Have I forgotten any one?
Makes no matter, 'cause I'm done!
Home so weary I could cry

Uncle Louie.

Family Circle in a Kitchen.

We once had an old tabby cat, with a most mischievous twinkle in her green eyes and the strongest instinct for motherhood of any cat I have ever known. We called her Susie.

We would be sitting in our big farm kitchen in very early spring, with the snow lying deep on the window sills, outlining each pane of glass; the cil lamp casting a mellow glow all about; the teakettle singing on the roaring cook stove, and the coffee pot grumbling on the back of the stove when there would be a scratching at the door.

We would open the door and Susie would come in, bearing something in her mouth. We knew! She was a mother again and she was bringing home her kittens. She would make several trips, until her brood was gathered together about her; then she would sit down with an expression which said: "This is my fine family." She would wait while we brought for her and her family the always-available basket with the woolen lining, and we would place her and her little morsels in it and look at her, and her eyes would be soft and opaque like yellow velvet.

But we saw more than a cat with kittens, and we heard much more than her mewings. We saw life, with its majesty and power, and we heard with its crashing chords the symphony of nature: the sound of creation, which has no beginning and no ending. It means for mortals laughter and tears, joy and sorrow, and which of us can truthfully say:

"A pussy cat does not weep." Homespun.

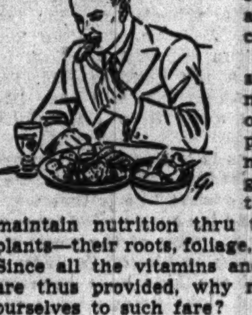
NO EXCUSE FOR STRICT VEGETARIANISM.

EVERY little while some friendly correspondent writes — "Why don't you emphasize the value of an exclusive vegetable diet? Cattle, horses, and elephants can attain great size and strength thru feeding on grass and leaves alone. Why can't we?"



It is possible for almost any one who possesses a normal digestive system to maintain nutrition thru the use of plants—their roots, foliage, and fruits. Since all the vitamins and minerals are thus provided, why not confine ourselves to such fare?

The answer is that man is not inherently a grazer. If he were, he would be equipped with two or three sizable gastric pouches instead of one of moderate capacity. To nourish a man engaged in vigorous work [4,000 calories daily] would require a huge volume of plant products. For example, with the diet limited to potatoes, 10 pounds would be necessary. If cabbage alone were consumed, 95 pounds would be demanded. To supply an equal amount of energy we could substitute any one of the following: 20 pounds of apples, 41 of carrots, 64 of cooked spinach, or 42 of winter squash.

Of course, these are absurd figures when we think of the human alimentary tract. Even tho such heavy feedings could be digested, the menu would be lacking in many essentials, while the colon would be punished severely. We would have no trouble in procuring enough starch and perhaps fats, but to secure an adequate ration of nitrogenous substances peas, beans, etc., would have to be employed.

Furthermore, from our teeth alone we learn that nature expects us to feed upon a wide variety of edibles. We possess some of the flat-topped molars of kine, as well as the sharp-pointed canines of bears and wolves, while our incisors are for gnawing. In other words, we have a dental heritage which has come down to us thru the centuries in order that we may utilize all classes of nutriments.

There is, however, a modified program which satisfies many and which is far more sensible. It consists in adding animal products — such as milk, eggs, and cheese—to plants. Thus—with a much smaller bulk—the digestive canal will not become overloaded. A person may remain vigorous by including in the daily menus two eggs, a quart of milk, and a bowl of cottage cheese or its equivalent.

But there is no ethical or esthetic objection to meat, fish, or fowl if such material is well prepared and thoroly cooked. Other items, however, will be required. We know that while beefsteak will furnish nitrogen, using this article alone would leave us lacking in lime and in certain vitamins. This explains why dogs consume bones. It follows, then, that a balanced diet, which comprises all the vitamins, minerals, and food accessories, is desirable.

Were one obliged to live on a single type of sustenance, health would be more satisfactory with meat and fish than with vegetables only. Arctic explorers have demonstrated repeatedly that active well-being can be preserved for years, in the presence of extreme cold, under a program of flesh eating. It is a matter of common knowledge that the Eskimo shows less kidney and arterial degeneration than the average American.

A PUNGENT PANACEA.

K. W. writes: Some one advised my husband to use a concoction of castor oil and onion juice for baldness. I claim this is the bunk, but he wants to try it. What do you think?

REPLY.

Probably useless. If the scalp is unusually dry, however, the oil may do some good if applied locally. The onion juice may help drive away timid bacteria.

FIRST COUSINS.

M. L. S. writes: Is the marriage of first cousins dangerous?

REPLY.

It has been done. However, such unions are not advised. While inbreeding may produce superior offspring, certain handicaps may appear—such as deafness.

MUSCULAR POWER.

T. R. writes: Is it possible to add weight to certain parts of the body?

REPLY.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed, attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

ONE VIEW OF ALL-OUT CLERICS.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—I note in a newspaper that 21 clerics urge all-out aid by the United States in their letter to F. D. R. Last year a dozen or more of these preachers went on record in THE TRIBUNE against feeding the starving people of the Nazi overrun democracies in Europe.

These men are urging F. D. R. to go to war [if any urging was needed] and are actually demanding the bloody sacrifice of the American youth on foreign battlefields in the name of Christianity.

These Christian clergymen and leaders of divinity schools "Can no longer endure a shameful position of security purchased by the agony of others nor stand by while others are despoiled." They are overcome with bloodthirsty aspirations in their dotage instead of "Peace on Earth and Good Will to Man" just as we are approaching Christmas and all it stands for.

These war mongering clergymen should be driven from their temples like the Pharisees of old and denied the privileges of real Christian ministers. J. W. N.

An American War Veteran.

SHE PICKED THE WRONG BUG.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—I have no respect for the bedbug but I have considerable respect for the cockroach. Two years ago I had a blitzkrieg of cockroaches in my flat and in the counterattack I made many observations. The cockroach likes a clean place in which to live. He has no worries about clothing, for nature gives him a clean, shining suit. He seeks shelter, food, water, and a large posterity. The female carries her eggs in a neat capsule until ready to deposit them. She does not leave them in the bedroom, the living room or the closet, but in the most inaccessible crevices in the pantry. When hatched they vibrate between the pantry and the plumbing.

The cockroach, unlike fleas, mosquitoes, and ticks, has never been accused of carrying or transmitting disease. He is alert, has speed, and intelligence. He has a possumlike method of defense. When I cornered one on the top shelf in the pantry he dropped eight feet to the floor and played dead. When I got down off the stepladder and reached for him he scooted under the refrigerator.

I used sodium fluoride in various places, and while I found very few dead ones, they seem to get wise to this poison and migrated hastily.

Dorothy Thompson picked the wrong bug when she tried to smear some of the Mothers of America who were opposed to our entry in World war II.

E. P. S. MILLER, M. D.

PATIENCE WITH JAPAN.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Your editorial, "The Crisis with Japan," has the earmarks of the appeaser and is misleading.

America's interest in the far east is greater than you can imagine. But that is not the only item at stake. Her interest plus prestige has been challeged, her nationals insulted, and ships sunk, yet in spite of all this she has shown infinite patience and tolerance to this aggressive nation.

America will use peaceful means to settle the differences existing between the two nations, if given the chance, but will not use appeasement. She has seen one great nation use that method for peace and its consequences. R. B. C.

AN EAGLE AND A CANARY.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—I wonder how many Americans realize that in the future historians will cause us to blush with shame when they reveal our administration's attitude toward Finland?

Here are the two most powerful nations, England and the United States of America, practically demanding that Finland, the most honorable little nation, stop fighting for her country and her freedom; and unless she does, threaten to declare war upon her.

The best illustration would be to have one fierce, blood sucking vulture, and one eagle, attack a little canary; there is no difference. I defy any one to search the annals of ancient or modern history and find a more despicable and cowardly act. Think of it: Roosevelt and Churchill afraid of Finland, the canary!

W. J. SANDERSON.

"FISHING" FOR MALLARDS.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—I live near Lincoln park's north lagoon and am a daily visitor to our fine park. Like many others I have enjoyed the antics of a flock of mallard ducks which have made this lagoon their camping ground all summer. Some of them were even hatched there. I and others have made pets of them, feeding them bread, etc., and consequently they became tame and trusting, both to children and adults.

Now I find lately they, at frequent intervals, become as wild as the proverbial March hare, and the other day one fine drake appeared with a fishhook sticking in his bill. This should be conclusive proof some contemptible person is angling for them with fishhooks baited with bread.

I am sending this complaint also to the park police. They might catch the culprits. For the sake of good sportsmanship. ARGUS.

EGGS.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—This morning I paid 55 cents a dozen for eggs. Can any one tell me how our own American families can afford to feed their children the eggs they need, at that price, while the government is sending millions of eggs to England?

The British people are always singing "There'll always be an England." You are darn tootin' there will be as long as they have America to keep them going.

E. L. P.

WHERE WAS THE FIRE?

Kent, O., Dec. 2.—I was wondering just where the fire was which caused that dramatic, quick return from Warm Springs.

I understand there is a drive on in the camps to get the boys to enlist for a three year period so they can be sent anywhere. E. J. K.

BUNDLES FOR HOME FOLKS.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—I am sure that every one has old clothes and old papers to give away. Why don't some charity put a box in each L station, and we could carry these things for two blocks and put them in the box. J. C.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

INCOME TAXES.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1938 I failed to file an income tax return because I thought I was under age. Recently I received a letter asking me to call at an assessor's office. He told me that I was of age, so I filed a return, but he would not accept my payment saying that I would be billed later. A few days later I received a letter telling me to sign a waiver to show I was willing to pay interest. I returned the waiver saying I wished to speak to him first but received no answer. A few weeks later I wrote to him again asking for an appointment to see him but still received no answer.

What is considered legal age for filing income tax return? Is a person under 21 allowed to file a joint return with his parent, if he gives his earnings to his parents? If I do have to pay what steps can I take to get the matter settled? A. R.

Unearned income of persons under the statutory age of majority should not be included in the parent's or guardian's separate return. Minors are treated like other individuals in determining their liability to file returns and pay taxes upon their separate unearned income [or earned income if under the laws of the state the earnings belong to the minor]. In the absence of proof to the contrary, the regulations assume that the earnings of a minor belong to and should be included in the parent's own return.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 43.

1. A standard bale of hay is fastened with how many wires?
   1 2 3 4
2. A gallon of lubricating oil weighs approximately how much?
   4½ pounds 5½ pounds 6½ pounds 7½ pounds.
3. Which one of these craftsmen would most likely employ a swage?
   Tailor Blacksmith Electrician Bricklayer.
4. "Me and My Shadow" should remind you of a Book Dog Painting Song.
5. If you were boating on the Yellow river, you would be in China Mexico Egypt Brazil.
6. Each sport has its own distinctive language. How well do you understand the bowling terms listed below? You are entitled to one point for each correct matching.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts 5 points.]

SOLDIER WRITES OPERETTA FOR W-G-N CONTEST

Composes Songs Nightly for Pals in Camp.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A soldier has registered in the W-G-N's $10,500 Great American Operetta contest. He is Private Don Wilson, 23 years old, of Moline, Ill., stationed at Camp Custer, Mich. Wilson has written many songs and composes new tunes almost every evening at the camp service club. Wilson picks out melodies on the piano while his buddies stand by and make suggestions. He has performed in amateur operetta productions and other theatricals in Moline.

Mrs. Margaret B. Paulus of Rensselaer, Ind., in a letter to W-G-N, reported that her daughter, Sally, who is 10, has written a complete operetta without any adult help. Mrs. Paulus said that she thought it would be unfair for Sally to enter into competition against adults and suggested a special contest for children.

A city bred Quiz Kid fell down on a farm question at the 4-H club luncheon Wednesday. The same evening a country girl, Mary Markham, 13, of Janesville, Wis., made a guest appearance on the Quiz Kids broadcast and muffed a question with a farm flavor. Asked whether a cow's horns are above or below its ears she replied "below." In the afternoon Harve Fischman provoked a lot of laughter of the 4-H club youths by saying "bulls don't give milk, do they?"

Gerard Darrow, youngest of the Quiz Kids regulars, shows a touch of sophistication now and then, but he still believes in Santa Claus.

Reminded that grown-ups don't believe in Santa, Gerard said quietly, "Yes, and there are a lot of adults who don't believe in Darwin's theory either."

Santa Claus is especially expected this season in the home of Virginia Verrill [Breyley]. Virginia, a former movie starlet and more recently featured as a songstress on NBC shows here, expects her first baby about Christmastime.

Marilyn Skiles, 18, of Mount Carmel, Ill., a sophomore at the University of Illinois, will learn today that she is one of the three finalists in the contest for singing co-eds conducted by the Hour of Charm program on NBC. She will receive $1,000. Other finalists are Phyllis Wilcox of Indiana university, and Dorothy McVitty, Ohio State university. The winner will be determined Sunday Dec. 28. A $4,000 fellowship in music will be awarded in her name by her university to deserving students.

News notes: John Barrymore is still ailing and brother Lionel will continue to take John's place on the Rudy Vallee hour. . . . Bob Hawk plans to leave "Take It or Leave It" to start a new show on Friday nights titled "How Am I Doing?" Hawk will replace the Al Pearce show on Fridays which moves to another night. It's reported that Phil Baker will take over "Take It or Leave It." . . . Basso Mark Love has become the musical director of WHIP.

LUCAS TO SPEAK AT DEDICATION OF MONUMENT

Sen. Scott W. Lucas will be one of the principal speakers Dec. 15, when the George Washington-Robert Morris-Haym Salomon monument is dedicated, Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes announced yesterday. Hodes is co-chairman of the Patriotic Foundation, which is sponsoring the dedication. The ceremony will take place at Wacker drive and Wabash avenue and will commemorate the 150th anniversary of the bill of rights. Other speakers will be Mayor Kelly, Brig. Gen. John Cummins of the 6th corps area, and Rear Adm. John Downes, commandant at the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Man, 81, Fatally Stricken on Visit to Wife's Grave

Alex [Cap] Carlquist, 81 years old, went to Oakwood cemetery in Joliet yesterday to visit the grave of his wife, who died last March. It would have been their 56th wedding anniversary. While there Mr. Carlquist suffered a stroke and died soon after his son, Paul, found him. Mr. Carlquist, who lives at 212 Grinton street, was building superintendent at Joliet Township High school for 37 years. He will be buried in Oakwood cemetery Saturday.

EXPERT SHOWS CHRISTMAS TREE FIRE HAZARD

It's not only the season to start thinking about Christmas presents, but it's about time to get posted on how not to let your Christmas tree go up in flames, a perennial and tragic adjunct to the festivities.

With this in mind, engineers of the Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., descended into a steel-walled chamber in their headquarters at 207 East Ohio street yesterday and for more than an hour M. J. O'Brien, assistant engineer, demonstrated the relative inflammability of trees of balsam and spruce, some of them with dry twigs and needles, others treated with ammonium sulphate, others soaked in water.

"No tree is fireproof," O'Brien warned.

The Underwriters' laboratories gave these additional safety hints:

Buy only a fresh tree. Saw off the trunk diagonally an inch or more above the end and keep the water level above the cut end. Keep the tree outdoors in a cool, shaded place until actually needed. Turn off the tree lights when you leave the house. Keep it away from radiators or fireplaces. Don't use wax candles on the tree or in the windows; use safe electric lights. Make certain your light strings and all electrical connections are in good condition and don't pile the tree high with too many strings of lights. When you unpack Junior's electric train and flop to the floor, keep the tracks and train a goodly distance from the tree.

STATE TO APPEAL RULING ON WILL OF COIN DEALER

Irregularities Suspected in $100,000 Case.

A blue paper back, the type usually affixed to legal papers, may decide whether Mrs. Josephine Haeusler or the Cook county treasury is to receive the estate of Rudolph [Greasy Dick] Thomas, coin and stamp dealer who died Aug. 16.

This was made known last night by William J. Tuohy, assistant state's attorney, who announced that the office of State's Attorney Courtney will appeal the ruling yesterday of Probate Judge John F. O'Connell, who refused to vacate the will.

Thomas left his entire estate, estimated at more than $100,000, to Mrs. Haeusler, his former housekeeper. But he had no heirs. If the will is vacated the estate automatically will escheat to the county.

Irregularity Pointed Out.

Doubt as to the validity of the will was previously expressed by the public administrator, who, thru Attorney Don Peebles, asked Judge O'Connell to vacate it. The court was informed that page one of the document had not been signed by Thomas, altho a sentence on page two read, "For the purpose of identification I have signed my name on the first page."

Judge O'Connell denied Peebles' petition yesterday. He also denied a request of Marshall Korshak and Joseph P. Burke, assistant state's attorneys, that the crime detection laboratory be permitted to examine the document for evidence of fraud.

Korshak and Burke then told Tuohy that a stenographer for Mrs. Haeusler's attorney, Richard A. Bierdemann, had drawn up the will. The stenographer testified in court that she put a blue paper back on the will and that the back was on when Thomas signed the will. Bierdemann was one of the witnesses to the will, dated July 25, three weeks before Thomas' death.

Another Witness Disagrees.

But another witness, Mrs. Hermine Macella of 2050 Burling street, told prosecutors that the will bore no blue paper back when she witnessed it.

On the basis of these statements, Tuohy said, it was decided to appeal Judge O'Connell's ruling to the Circuit court.

At the hearing before Judge O'Connell yesterday, Peter G. Drautzburg, a United States secret service agent, told the court that Thomas' estate included about 4 million stamps, of which 7,000 to 8,000 bore false perforations or forged cancellations. Equipment for making the false cancellations was previously discovered. The only forgeries discovered to date are on foreign stamps issued from 1865 to 1873, he said.

Judge O'Connell ordered Attorney Bierdemann to hire Olaf Nagel, a Chicago stamp expert, to examine the collection, and set Jan. 5 as a tentative date for the finish of the examination.

"I will not entertain a motion for the sale of any of these stamps in the nine months it will take to settle the estate," Judge O'Connell said. "Then I will adopt a policy of 'purchases at the buyer's risk.'"

PARK DISTRICT DINNER HONORS T. D. M'DOWELL

Officials and employés of the Chicago park district last night tendered a dinner to Thomas D. McDowell, electrical engineer, upon his retirement after more than 31 years in the electrical department. About 250 persons attended the affair held in the dining room of the district administration building.

Present with Mr. McDowell were Mrs. McDowell, his sons, Thomas, Harold, Dalbert, and Albert. Speakers included Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district; George T. Donoghue, general superintendent, who was toastmaster; William I. Bell, assistant superintendent, and F. D. Wyatt, who succeeds Mr. McDowell.

15,000 LEGION WOMEN BECOME GOOD FELLOWS

Cook County Units to Fill 100 Baskets.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Approximately 15,000 members of the Cook county council of the American Legion auxiliary will coöperate with the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in the 33d annual Good Fellow drive to provide Christmas baskets for Chicago's needy. Morris B. Sachs is sponsoring the group's campaign to collect foodstuffs to fill 100 baskets.

The auxiliary's drive will begin Sunday when the women will take over the Morris B. Sachs Amateur hour, broadcast from the Civic Opera house from 5 to 6 p. m. Any person will be admitted upon presentation of one or more cans or packages of nonperishable foodstuffs.

More Food to Be Added.

Members of the American Legion will supervise the collection, which will be started when the doors open at 4 o'clock. More food will be added to the collection to be distributed by Legion women on Christmas day, according to Mrs. Thomas McManus, 3130 Clifton avenue, president.

Presidents of the 159 auxiliary units in Cook county will be in charge in their respective sections. Mrs. Laura Miller, child welfare chairman of the auxiliary, is chairman of the Christmas basket committee.

Child Welfare Chairmen.

Following are the child welfare chairmen of the nine auxiliary districts in the county: Mrs. Lessie Thomas, 1712 North Luna avenue, 1st district; Mrs. Virginia Mills, 3511 North Kostner avenue, 2d district; Mrs. Beatrice Irwin, 10122 Calumet avenue, 3d district; Mrs. Catherine Woods, 7010 Eggleston avenue, 4th district; Mrs. Leonard Walsh, 3214 Gunderson avenue, Berwyn, 5th district; Mrs. Anne Ballentino, 545 North Springfield avenue, 6th district; Mrs. Clara Wendland, 3022 North Luna avenue, 7th district; Mrs. Ruth Laperruque, Hazel Crest, 8th district, and Mrs. Anne Kelly, 2853 North Moody avenue, 9th district.

Cash contributions to the Good Fellow fund should be addressed to the Good Fellow bureau in THE TRIBUNE'S Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street. Checks or money orders should be made payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. [Good Fellow fund].

CREW OF 24 MEN IS RESCUED FROM VESSEL IN STORM

Port Orford, Ore., Dec. 4 (AP).—The 24 member crew of the 604 ton freighter Willapa was rescued by motor lifeboat and skiff from stormy seas yesterday. Many of the crewmen were picked out of the water after the ship sprang a leak. Two crewmen were injured slightly.

The Willapa, bound from Marshfield, Ore., to San Francisco with a cargo of lumber, went ashore after the rescue and was reported breaking up in the surf.

Coast guardsmen were summoned to the disabled ship by flares about 9 o'clock Tuesday night but lost it in the darkness and did not pick it up again until yesterday morning. By that time the Willapa's bridge had washed away. She had lost her deck cargo and was being driven aground 20 miles south.

DRY GOODS STORE LOOTED.

Canton, Ill., Dec. 4 (AP).—Burglars broke into a dry goods store at Vermont last night and stole 93 silk dresses, 43 women's winter coats, some rayon underwear and a rifle. Chief Deputy Sheriff Floyd Morse said the loot was worth about $1,200.

"BODY KNOCKS"

When your car develops "body knocks" or the engine becomes sluggish you promptly go to a repair shop and eliminate the defects. Do you act just as promptly on the "body knocks" in your own human machine?

"Body knocks" or engine trouble in your car are annoying, of course, but they can be corrected by a good mechanic; or you can buy a new car; but a sluggish, listless feeling, those little pains and aches in your system may be a forerunner of serious illness—and you can't buy a new engine for your body.

Your own "body knocks" can be corrected only by timely examination and treatment of your physician—he understands the organic structure of the human engine. At the first sign of "body knocks" in your system, consult your doctor and follow his advice. Often your physician will recommend simple remedies; perhaps it will be just rest, a corrective diet, a vitamin product, or he may give you a prescription.

WHEN YOUR PRESCRIPTION IS FILLED AT STINEWAY'S, IT IS RIGHT IN EVERY DETAIL.

For "body knocks" in your car—go to a good mechanic—for "body knocks" in your human engine, consult your physician—go to your nearest Stineway Drug Store for the prescription or vitamin product the doctor may recommend.

ROOFERS' UNION BOSSES TO ASK COURT FOR HELP

Seek Way to Expel Group of Rebel Members.

Officials of the Gravel Roofers union, local No. 11, whose administration is under attack by a group of rebel members, indicated yesterday that they would ask Judge John C. Lewe to dissolve a temporary injunction preventing the expulsion of 27 of the leading protesters.

A spokesman for the officers said that allegations they were not duly elected were false, and recalled that three of the rebels, the union trustees, were trying to hold onto their places by virtue of a regular election last June. Altho the men in revolt asked for a new election under court protection, they did not specifically question the validity of the election in their petition for injunction and other relief.

Guaranteed Square Deal.

Attorney Joseph Jacobs, representing the officers, said he would argue that the injunction is based on invalid grounds, in that the men in revolt have not exhausted the means within the union for redress of their complaints.

"The president of the international union has guaranteed a square deal to those who are at outs with the officers," Jacobs said. "They will have a fair trial, and if the evidence justifies it will be reinstated."

The revolting members, who have demanded an accounting of funds, appointment of a receiver, and a chance to vote on contracts which their officers make for the union with roofing contractors, said they had asked more than a month ago for an international investigation and had been ignored.

They are particularly aroused about the latest contract, which fixes a sliding scale of from $1.37½ to $1.75 an hour. They contend that this arrangement permits the officers to favor certain contractors at the workers' expense. The rank and file have had no chance to vote on this.

No Previous Complaints.

One of the business agents of the union is Luke Ward, who has a police record dating back for nearly 40 years and has served at least three penitentiary terms for crimes of violence.

The spokesman for the officers said contracts could be made by the executive council of the local and that this was legal and customary.

George W. Jones, a former Chicagoan, is head of the international union. He said yesterday in his office in Washington that he "knew there was some trouble" here, but was not familiar with the details. He said that Ward was legally elected.

He admitted that Ward was a union member when he [Jones] was a business agent of the local.

Jones added that the union supposedly makes audit figures known to the members every six months, and he supposed this had been done. Contracts had always been made by the officers, he said, and the men had not been consulted in 25 years. He had already notified the rank and file they would have to fulfill the new contract.

Attorney Harry Kronenberg, representing the rebels, said he would ask Judge Lewe to hold the officers who refused to recognize three of their number as trustees, in contempt of the temporary injunction.

WOUNDED BANDIT TUMBLES FROM AUTO IN CHASE

Anton Slabis, proprietor of a tavern at 100 24th avenue, Melrose Park, yelled "Robbery!" yesterday as two bandits left the tavern after taking $60. Policemen Gene Fioravanti and Lawrence Conlin of the suburb heard his cry and pursued the robbers, who fled in an automobile.

Returning shotgun blasts for bullets fired by the bandits, the policemen saw a wounded man tumble out of the bandit car on Augusta avenue near 21st street in the suburb. Taken to bridewell hospital, he identified himself as Clarence Eckman, 30 years old, 1505 Lake street, Melrose Park.

Eckman's accomplice escaped.

FIND ENGINEER DIED OF INJURY BEFORE WRECK

Investigation of the wreck of the Shenandoah, Baltimore & Ohio streamliner, which ran thru an open bridge into the Indiana Harbor ship canal last Tuesday night, last night disclosed that the engineer had died of a crushed chest before the locomotive hit the water.

The partly submerged Diesel locomotive was raised early in the evening and the body of Engineer Jack O'Connor, 68 years old, was removed for postmortem examination. Both windows in the front of the cab were found smashed, apparently from inside.

Dr. Eli Levin of East Chicago, coroner's physician who performed the autopsy, said O'Connor did not die of a heart ailment or drowning, as it had been presumed earlier. He said the engineer's chest was crushed and he was "dead before he hit the water."

HURT IN FALL OFF CAR.

Miss Sophie Petrutis, 27 years old, 2506 West 69th street, a cashier at the Fair store, suffered a possible hip fracture when she fell off the platform of a crowded street car at 69th and Western avenue yesterday.

HARTFORD BRIDGE COLLAPSE KILLS 8 WORKERS; 17 HURT

Span Falls 80 Feet Into Connecticut River.

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 4 [Special].—At least eight workmen were hurled to death today when half of the water span of the new $1,900,000 Connecticut river bridge between Hartford and East Hartford plunged with a grinding roar 80 feet into the river.

Seven bodies were recovered soon after the collapse, and tonight divers from the New London Submarine base brought an eighth from under 350 tons of submerged wreckage where six other missing men were feared buried. Seventeen others were injured, some gravely.

The dead, injured and missing were all bridge construction workers. Late today it was announced that the 17 injured persons, rescued from the river with grappling hooks, were in hospitals. At least five of them were suffering fractured legs.

An eyewitness account of the crash which occurred at 1 p. m., was given by Dominick C. Barillaro of Meriden, construction foreman.

"I was just looking over as they were going to put the hook on the girder," he said. "Then the false pier kicked forward."

Other witnesses said two huge girders, joined together to make a section 222 feet long, buckled while being put into place by a 167 ton crane. The falling girders pulled the crane into the river after them.

WREATHS PLACED ON MARQUETTE PLYON AT BRIDGE

The 267th anniversary of the arrival of Father Marquette at the present site of Chicago was observed yesterday with ceremonies at the Marquette pylon of the Michigan avenue bridge. Students from St. Xavier, Mundelein, and Rosary colleges, and Loyola university, placed wreaths before the pylon.

François Alabrune, French vice consul; M. J. Hogan, honorary chairman of the memorial activities; Walter J. Delaney Jr., chairman, and the Rev. Lawrence M. Barry of St. Ignatius also took part.

At the anniversary meeting last night in the city council chambers, Mr. Delaney, Mrs. Annie Oliver, Mrs. Clement Miller, and T. A. O'Shaughnessy were speakers.

NOT FOR $120,000 WILL MRS. PHYFE SIGN DOTTED LINE

New York, Dec. 4 [Special].—An old family feud and an aversion against signing papers may cost Mrs. Duncan Phyfe, 86 year old widow of the grandson of the famous furniture maker, her $120,000 share in her husband's estate of about $500,000.

The curious case was disclosed today by Thomas McGovern of the federal internal revenue office. He said that unless she pays back taxes and penalties, she soon may have nothing left of her inheritance which has lain unclaimed in the city treasury since 1930. Liens against her total nearly $50,000.

The eccentric woman has indicated she has no intention of doing anything about the matter, even if the government finally gets all the money. Her attorney said that besides her determination not to sign any papers, she has asserted she never will compromise with her sister-in-law, Edith Bell Phyfe, whom she considers "an outsider" and who had herself appointed administratrix of Duncan Phyfe's estate on grounds that his widow was mentally incompetent.

NO CLERK CAN "FIX YOU UP"

Don't seek help in drug stores if you have a venereal disease?

The U. S. Government health service warns that drug clerks aren't in any way qualified to cure venereal diseases. Only a skilled physician can do that! Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT," the Public Health Institute makes a full examination for gonorrhea and syphilis at very low cost, and gives individual treatments at fees so small as to be within the reach of every wage earner.

LIST $24,700,000 BRIDGE, HIGHWAY, STREET PROJECTS

Would Be Financed from Motor Fuel Tax.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

A $24,700,000 bridge, street, and superhighway program will be recommended to the council finance committee, Ald. George D. Kells, chairman of a special subcommittee which has been considering such appropriations, said yesterday. The program is to be financed from the motor fuel tax fund, and may be spread over a period of from three to five years.

Each year, in preparing the city budget, the finance committee computes the amount expected from the motor fuel tax fund during the following year. It also adopts an improvement program which usually totals almost twice as much as the fuel tax revenue. Work that is not completed is carried over to the following year.

Major Items on Program.

Project.	Estimated cost.
Plans for a comprehensive superhighway system	$ 175,000
Studies and surveys for Congress street plan	400,000
Superhighway construction [no street named	4,000,000
Reconstruction and street maintenance	7,000,000
Street and railroad grade separations	7,000,000
State and arterial highway bridge and street maintenance	300,000
Bridge construction [replacements]	5,396,000
Engineering plans for eight bridges	450,000
Total	$24,726,000

Kells estimated the motor fuel tax fund will produce $14,500,000 next year, compared to $12,760,000 which was appropriated this year.

The $175,000 for superhighway plans and $450,000 for bridge plans, he said, are for projects which might be held up until the rearmament boom is over. He said such plans are in line with a government program to build a reserve of public works projects. The eight bridges for which plans would be drawn would cost about $6,500,000, he said.

Asks Full Bridge Crews.

William J. Lynch, harbormaster, told the finance committee, at its meeting on the budget yesterday, that 6 of the 13 bridges which were placed under a roving bridge tender system last year should have full corps of bridge tenders assigned next year. He said that because the navy is occupying Navy pier it is expected shipping which ordinarily docked there will use the river instead.

SAFETY RECORD OF 8 YEARS ENDS; 'AUTO KILLS GIRL

Ruth Feely, 11 years old, 7229 Greenwood avenue, was killed yesterday when she was struck by an automobile at 71st street and Greenwood avenue. The driver of the car, Lawrence Zahringer of 1433 East 69th street, took the child to the Jackson Park hospital and then surrendered to the police. He wept as he told how he had recently been given a medal for avoiding accidents in eight years driving a truck for a dry cleaning firm.

Edward C. Sumerfield, 82 years old, of 4153 Drexel boulevard, was killed when he was struck near his home by a car driven by Rani Krick, 54 years old, of 828 Hyde Park boulevard. Sumerfield, a real estate dealer, and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last year.

Twenty-two passengers arrived here safely yesterday after a delay when their original bus caught fire north of Chebanse, near Kankakee. The driver, stopping at a railroad crossing at 3 a. m., discovered the motor afire and awoke the sleeping passengers. Passengers and baggage were transferred to another bus after the first had been consumed by fire. They were en route from St. Louis, Mo.

Mrs. Mary Bobis, 51 years old, 2431 Rice street, was killed yesterday when the automobile driven by her son, Joseph, 26, struck the rear of a truck at 119th street and Cicero avenue, near Blue Island. Bobis, Mike Borda, 27, 2114 Superior street, and Mrs. Catherine Klemaworik, 60, 2340 Huron street, were injured. The truck driver, James Masa, 46, 1759 North Kedzie avenue, was slightly hurt.

Mrs. Nellie Fodge, 54, 2049 West 13th street, died yesterday in County hospital of injuries received Nov. 21 when she was struck by a car at 13th street and Damen avenue. The driver was Sidney Sosin, 25, 4254 Archer avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 878 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 614 were killed in Chicago, where 24,353 were injured in the same period.

'THE MESSIAH' TO BE BROADCAST BY FM BEFORE 600 TONIGHT

For the first time in Chicago a frequency modulation program is to be presented before a studio audience of 600 persons in W-G-N's main studio this evening. This audience will witness a performance of Handel's great choral work, "The Messiah," which is to be broadcast over W-G-N's sister station, W59C.

Marion Schroeder.

"The Messiah," capturing the spirit of Christmas, will be presented on the Perfectionist's hour from 9 to 10 p. m. by the Marshall Field Choral society, directed by Dr. Edgar Nelson, and with Marion Schroeder, W-G-N soprano, as the chief soloist.

Other soloists will be David Austin, basso; Grace T. Fredenhagen, pianist, and Stanley Martin, organist. Lou Jackobson, producer in charge of W-G-N and W59C's opera broadcasts each Monday evening, will handle the presentation of the oratorio.

Miss Schroeder is well known in Chicago as a church soloist and a teacher. During the Christmas season she will sing "The Messiah" four times in as many cities in the midwest. Dr. Nelson, president of the Chicago Conservatory of Music, also is associated with the production of the Chicagoland Music Festival each summer as general choral director.

WOMAN QUIZZED ABOUT SLAYING OF DECORATOR

A woman believed to have been with William Freisenhahn, 31 years old, shortly before he was mysteriously shot and killed late Wednesday night was being questioned yesterday by detectives of the Pekin police station.

Freisenhahn, an interior decorator living at 2724 South Wells street, was found lying beside his parked car in front of 2630 South State street less than half a block from the police station. He had been shot thru the head and right cheek by a .38 caliber revolver, and blood on the cushions of the car indicated he had been in his car at the time.

Margaret Smith, colored, of 2635 South State street, told Detectives Robert Lambert, Arthur Goodman, William Donlin, and Daniel Jackson that she saw a car resembling Freisenhahn's pick up a woman at 26th street and Wabash avenue a short while before Freisenhahn was found dead. Police believe the woman being questioned is the woman Miss Smith saw.

TUCK POINTER KILLED IN FALL.

Fred Carlson, 42 years old, of 6520 Gunnison street, Norwood Park, was killed yesterday when he fell from a scaffold at the second floor of a building at 915 Independence boulevard. He was a tuck pointer.

18 DEPARTMENTS OF COUNTY SEEK FUND INCREASES

Top Prospective Deficit by 2 Millions.

Heads of 18 county departments yesterday submitted to the county board requests for increased appropriations totaling $3,128,870 for 1942. The departments do not include the 13 fee offices, which have requests for employés for next year pending with the Circuit court judges' committee on help.

The county board will take up the 18 departmental requests next week when it starts budget hearings. Before yesterday's requests, Richard J. Daley, deputy controler, had estimated the prospective county budget deficit for 1942 at $3,400,000. Daley's estimates included provision for an increase of only about $1,100,000 in 1942 expenses, because of higher election costs and restoration of the two week pay cuts that were in effect this year.

Deficit Figure Topped.

Thus, yesterday's departmental estimates ask an increase in expenses of approximately 2 million dollars in addition to the $3,400,000 deficit already anticipated.

The board, in trying to bring the budget into balance, may either reduce appropriation requests or increase revenue estimates, or both.

A substantial part of the boosts asked yesterday was for the county hospital and the Oak Forest institution, where larger allowances were sought for food, fuel, and medical supplies on account of rising prices.

The hospital asked for an increase of $593,000, including $69,000 for fuel, $65,000 for food, $101,000 for medical supplies, $41,000 for materials and parts, and $13,000 for laboratory equipment. Oak Forest sought an increase of $133,000, which included $54,000 for fuel and $16,000 for food.

Election Board Request Up.

The request by the board of election commissioners for a 1942 allotment of $1,767,338 was nearly twice the $933,500 Daley had estimated in his preliminary figures. Expenses for three elections—the April primaries, the judicial election in June, and the general election in November—are involved.

Departmental requests in the case of the assessor, the auditor, and the judiciary were lower for 1942. Increases requested included $276,000 by the public welfare department, $89,000 by the juvenile home, and $69,000 by the public service bureau.

The county board will meet Tuesday to hear requests from various labor unions seeking changes in the budget for next year.

PHARMACIST DIES AT WORK.

TOWN RECORDS UPSET 'SPEED TRAP' CHARGE

Complainant Backs Down in Court.

Officials of Dyer, Ind., yesterday produced arrest records to brand as false the charge of M. L. Mathieu, driver for a Chicago freight line, that a speed trap was being operated in the town.

Justice of the Peace Frank Johnson and Night Marshal Paul Miller showed that only nine drivers were arrested in Dyer in November and 16 in October. They showed also that only six of those arrested in the two months were truckers. Mathieu had indicated in his allegations that the officials were "picking on" truckers.

Mathieu, who lives at 5602 South Francisco avenue, had reported to his superior, Bliss Moody, Chicago agent for the Hayes Freight Lines, that Miller had been "unjust" in arresting him and Frank Marker, 4211 Ellis avenue, another driver for the Hayes company.

Mathieu's detailed account related that he and Marker were arrested while driving only 15 miles an hour.

But when he got into court at 11 a. m. yesterday and found himself confronted by Mayor Nicholas Austgen and a group of angry Dyer citizens, Mathieu paled.

"I never said it, your honor! I never said it!" Mathieu insisted. Guy W. Slaughter, special prosecutor for Indiana in the case, paid him no heed. He asked Justice Johnson for a continuance until Dec. 11 and got it. Attorney John Root of Crown Point, representing the two drivers, said he might ask for a change of venue. Slaughter said he wanted time to investigate Mathieu's story and charges before prosecuting the two drivers.

Miller, the night marshal, charged Mathieu and Marker with reckless driving. He said they were going between 20 and 25 miles an hour in a heavy fog and that they crossed over the yellow line into the wrong traffic lane, passing another truck proceeding more slowly.

Montana Naval Aviator Killed in Plane Crash

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 4 (AP).—A navy plane plunged to earth with terrific speed and crashed in flames in Flint canyon, 23 miles northeast of here today, killing the pilot. The navy indicated the craft was a single-seater fighter, piloted by Albert W. Jaworski, 22, a marine second lieutenant from Havre, Mont. Reports from Poway, a village near the crash scene, said the body of the pilot was found approximately 250 yards from the plane, which was scattered over a wide area.

5 FOUND GUILTY IN STRIKE RIOTS AT MICHIGAN CITY

Judge Hits 'Abhorrent Mess' in Giving Verdict.

Michigan City, Ind., Dec. 4 [Special].—Frank Grider, 37 years old, of Gary, subdistrict director of the Steel Workers' Organizing committee [CIO], and four other members of the union, today were found guilty of rioting during strike violence last April 30 in Michigan City. Special Judge Neville V. Williams, who heard the case without a jury, termed the disorder "an abhorrent mess," assessed fines of $100 each, and sentenced those found guilty to 30 days in the county jail.

He set for hearing on Dec. 9 a defense motion to vacate judgment, and allowed Attorney Blaz Lucas, state senator from Gary, to post bonds of $200 each for the defendants. Lucas announced he would appeal the case to the Circuit court.

Those found guilty with Grider are Joe Goin, 44 years old; John McAllister, 46; Jacinto Pacheco, 39, and Alfred Rebollo, 29, all of Gary.

Five Others Acquitted.

The judge ruled the state had failed to prove a case against five other defendants. They are Freeman Bellar, 41; John Rusak, 26, who, testimony showed received a suspended sentence for grand larceny eight years ago; Frank J. Nelson, 29; George W. Shores, 37, all of Gary and members of the Steel Workers' union, and Alber Brillian, 49, of Los Angeles, national representative for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers [CIO].

An eleventh defendant, John H. Malone, organizer for the Amalgamated Garment Workers and alleged ringleader in the clash, was ordered to return to Michigan City for trial.

Judge Williams held Grider and four companions sought by their violence to prevent workers from entering the strikebound plant of the Reliance Manufacturing company, makers of army shirts. The strike was called by the clothing workers, who contended they were enforcing a National Labor Relations board ruling giving them sole bargaining rights. This contention was denied by 200 workers who formed a flying wedge and entered the plant the day before the riot.

Aged Woman Knocked Down.

Speaking of the "abhorrent mess" Judge Williams commented that "the people do not like to see a situation in which aged ladies are knocked down, women slugged, scalps lacerated, and the police, rightly or wrongly, draw their guns and threaten lives."

He traced evidence which showed the defendants had come to Gary in two cars at request of Grider and reported to Malone. He said their coming was like dropping a match in a gasoline tank.

In his closing argument Lucas held that the riot was the fault of police and AFL workers who joined in charging the picket line.

Gladys McCall.

Dr. Frank L. Nathanson, 61 years old, who was seized by coroner's detectives in his office at 3846 Madison street Wednesday night, was booked yesterday on charges of abortion and conspiracy to commit abortions. He will be arraigned in the Felony court today.

His receptionist, Miss Gladys McCall, 42, of 1919 Jackson boulevard, who also was arrested when police raided the office, was charged with conspiracy.

The raid on the physician's office was ordered after a woman—now in a serious condition in a south side hospital—had told of an operation performed by Dr. Nathanson.

Dr. Nathanson has faced similar charges before and others of his activities have come to the attention of the police during the last 15 years. In 1927 he killed two men in his office, asserting that they tried to rob him. On another occasion, a woman threatened him with a pistol after accusing him of performing an abortion on her daughter.

TWO GET 10 YEARS UNDER HABITUAL CRIMINAL LAWS

Ten year sentences to prison were given yesterday to two men as habitual criminals in the Criminal court of Judge John Sbarbaro. The two:

James Dorris, 31 years old, a Joliet parolee, who was arrested in a stolen car at 79th and Hoyne avenue Oct. 28. He had previously served a term in Pontiac and may be required to finish his Joliet term after he ends the 10 years assessed yesterday for larceny.

Arthur Lewis, 53, colored, who broke into and damaged the Brown elementary school to the extent of $20 on Nov. 22, convicted for malicious mischief. His record dates back to 1921, including a penitentiary term for burglary.

Both men pleaded guilty.

Sailor Is Lost Overboard from U. S. Navy Transport

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Edward Clayton Hemly, an apprentice seaman, was lost overboard yesterday from the naval transport Mount Vernon, formerly the liner Washington. His loss was announced by the navy today. Hemly, '18, was a native of Woodhull, N. Y., and had enlisted in the navy last August at Buffalo.

SENATE'S LABOR COMMITTEE GETS STRIKE CURB BILL

Wallace Keeps Act from Stern Judiciary Group.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Vice President Henry A. Wallace took a hand today in senatorial controversy over legislation to curb defense strikes by routing the house approved Smith bill to the moderate minded labor committee instead of the sterner judiciary committee.

Altho Chairman Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.] of the judiciary committee explained to reporters that it was not seeking to obtain control of the drastic house measure, Wallace announced he was assigning the bill to the labor committee after "most careful consideration."

Sen. Lister Hill [D., Ala.], the Democratic whip, said the Smith measure would be given speedy study by the labor group and probably would be reported out in some form for consideration of the senate next Monday.

Approve Milder Measure.

The labor committee already has approved a much milder bill by Sen. Joseph H. Ball [R., Minn.], setting up mediation machinery for defense labor disputes and outlawing strikes for the closed shop.

While Hill declined to say whether the Ball measure might be substituted for the house approved bill, Sen. Taft [R., Ohio], another committee member, said he thought such a course should be followed.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] said he preferred the house bill, with its more drastic provisions, to the Ball bill.

The heads of the CIO and the AFL both issued statements during the day assailing the Smith bill as a threat to the basic constitutional rights of the workers.

Provides Cooling Off Period.

The Smith measure would provide for a "cooling off" period of from 30 to 90 days before defense strikes could be called, would prohibit walkouts not sanctioned by a majority of employés in a secret ballot, and would make it unlawful for a defense contractor to encourage or discourage membership in labor unions.

Picketing violence would be banned, as would jurisdictional or sympathy strikes, and labor organizations would be required to register with the National Labor Relations board and file financial statements.

FIREMAN INJURED IN FALL.

Thomas Hajek, 35 years old, 7806 South Hermitage avenue, a city fireman, was seriously injured yesterday when he fell thru a trap door in a heating equipment store at 5444 South Damen avenue while fighting a fire that caused damage of $50.

ARM RIOT SQUADS TO HALT AFL-CIO CLASH AT HOTEL

Picketing Is Banned as Unioneer Is Slain.

Flint, Mich., Dec. 4 [Special].—Police squads were armed with mob fighting weapons and a court injunction against CIO picketing was issued late today in efforts to prevent a recurrence of a flareup of interunion warfare in which a CIO organizer was fatally stabbed here last night.

State police were being held in readiness for riot duty as CIO locals held massmeetings at which members offered to swarm into picket lines in the fight against the AFL for control of union employés of the Durant hotel.

Failure of police to halt the strife was severely criticized by Circuit Judge Paul V. Gadola in issuing a temporary injunction which halted picketing by members of CIO—Allied Service Workers union at the hotel where the fatal fight took place.

Judge Gadola, who has been accused of being a foe of the CIO, scored the police for allowing the killing to occur and charged that they had failed to enforce the law in connection with other labor disputes. He added: "They seem most derelict in their duty."

Seventy-five city policemen and sheriff's deputies, armed with tear gas equipment and riot guns, stood guard today at the Durant hotel. Sent to the hotel after the killing, they at first remained outside, but later were sent into the building to restrain AFL sympathizers from hurling hot water out of windows onto CIO pickets on the sidewalk below.

Battle lines were formed behind the CIO service workers on one side and the AFL Culinary Workers and Bartenders' local 605. The latter is an affiliate of the AFL Hotel and Restaurant Employés and Bartenders International Alliance of America.

AFL members said the outbreak of violence resulted from attempts of the CIO union to raid the membership of the AFL local, which has a contract with the Durant hotel covering most of its 175 employés. On Nov. 7, Betty Simpson, secretary of the AFL local, quit that organization and joined the CIO.

The trouble was brought to a head yesterday when the CIO charged that nine of its members had been discharged from employment at the Durant hotel. The CIO threw a picket line around the hotel and prevented most of the AFL faction from leaving during the night.

Fighting broke out after Otto Druhe, 37, president of the AFL local and chef of the hotel, and Andrew Vargo, a hotel cook, escorted several waitresses from the besieged building.

Among the pickets who tried to block their path was Sam Waters, 30, a CIO organizer. He and Druhe rolled on the ground fighting, during which Waters was fatally stabbed. Police took a butcher knife from Druhe, who also was wounded. He was in the Hurley hospital under police custody.

"The CIO is raiding our unions," Miller charged. "We have contracts and we aim to protect them."

BY MARY MEADE.

A penny saved here and there is especially important now when you want those Christmas packages to materialize. So watch these week-end bargains closely. For something new in meat bargains, several cuts of veal are featured.

You will like pork prices and many lamb offers. Beef, which has had such a prominent place, takes a back seat as far as week-end specials are concerned.

There are many good fish to be had, both fresh and salt water varieties, as well as shell fish. Fruits and vegetables carry many attractive price tags so you can include the proper amounts for good nutrition.

Veal shoulder roast will fit the low cost menu. Veal legs are inexpensive. Rump roast of veal and veal shoulder chops are both quite moderate. Veal loin chops are not expensive. But steer clear of veal cutlets unless you can afford to pay the price.

Pork Prices Are Helpful.

Pork loin roast is a wise buy. Spareribs remain at their inexpensive level. Serve pork sausage for a penny saver. Whole or half loin pork has a moderate price. Center cut pork chops are one of the best buys for the money. Fresh ham is reasonable and is getting a lot of attention at this time.

Smoked hams bear a moderate price per pound altho center cut sliced ham asks a high price. Sliced bacon looks worth buying right now. Ham shanks and butts are good buys.

Leg of lamb is moderate. Shoulder roast of lamb costs little. You may start broiling lamb chops again because the price is coming down to the place where you can afford them. Rib chops are a few cents cheaper than loin chops.

For the economy meal buy hamburger. Boiling beef may be obtained for little. Chuck roast of beef is being featured at several stores. Rump roast is high. Cubed sirloin is a luxury.

Chickens Attractively Priced.

Serve roasting chicken for Sunday dinner since it is an attractive buy. If you are fond of fish, consider herring or trout, whitefish or yellow pike. The best offers in salt water fish are mackerel, frozen halibut and frozen chum or fall salmon.

Jumbo shrimp claim a place in food bargains. Oysters are still expensive but they have come down considerably. They may tend to go up soon, so take advantage of them while you may.

Green beans are the best vegetable buy. Cabbage also will help you with the food budget. There are good amounts of old cabbage and red cabbage of good quality. New cabbage costs more than old.

Consider sweet potatoes on the menu if you are penny-wise. Squash and spinach are inexpensive. Mushrooms are reasonable.

Broccoli has come down considerably and quality is good. Beets have gone up. Carrots, which were up last week have steadily lowered in price and are moderate.

Good Tomatoes Expensive.

Eggplant is reasonable. Cucumbers have lowered but still cost a pretty price. Good tomatoes are high. Dry onions are lower. The lettuce strike in Arizona is causing markedly declining shipments—the reason why iceberg lettuce is higher. But if you want to consider other salad greens, endive, escarole and leaf lettuce are plentiful.

Radishes have a good price. Turnips are moderate. Irish potatoes have lowered slightly. Green peppers remain the same as do Brussels sprouts. Cauliflower costs the same as last week.

Celery is reasonable. Mostly Michigan celery hearts are being sold. California celery includes golden heart, the white, and pascal, the green. Pascal is less expensive.

Fruit Is Plentiful.

Take advantage of grapefruit offers. There is a good supply of oranges and the price has gone down. More naval oranges are arriving.

Take a look at the winter varieties of pears. Try them. You'll be surprised at how really good they are. Kumquats from Florida are being sold in quart boxes now. That's a good sign.

Limes are reasonable. Lemons remain the same price. Strawberries are being offered but at a prohibitive price. There are good supplies of rhubarb.

The grape season is pretty well closing up. Only a few varieties remain. Cranberries are the lowest since Thanksgiving. Apples are still a good buy.

NUT-TOPPED COFFEE CAKE WILL TEMPT ANY MAN'S APPETITE

Even the sleepiest breakfaster will open his eyes wide, when this yummy coffee cake is served him. It's a quick one that can be stirred up and baked in short order.

Nut-Topped Coffee Cake.

1½ cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons fat, melted
1 egg, beaten
½ cup milk

Sift dry ingredients together. Combine fat, egg and milk and stir into dry ingredients, mixing lightly. Cover with nutty topping, and bake in a moderately hot [375 degrees] oven for 15 minutes. Cut in squares and serve warm.

Nutty Topping.

½ cup dark brown sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
3 tablespoons butter, melted
½ cup broken nut meats

Mix sugar, flour, cinnamon, and butter together and stir in nutmeats. Sprinkle over butter, and bake.

ARMY PACKAGES 3 'SQUARES' IN 2 POUND CARTON

Day's Food for Soldier Called Ration 'K.'

New experimental army rations, compactly packaged and weighing a little more than 2 pounds for a full day's menu, were exhibited yesterday at the Chicago quartermaster depot, 1819 West Pershing road. The depot also showed off its latest developments in dehydrated foods and a tiny vest pocket stove, weighing about an ounce.

The new rations are designed primarily for parachute and armored troops but may also be used by infantrymen, Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Barzynski, commanding officer of the depot, announced. They are known as ration "K" and come in three packages—for breakfast, dinner, and supper.

Each of the three packages contains graham and "defense" biscuits [the latter a specially worked out preparation of whole wheat, soy bean meal, oatmeal, gelatin, egg, milk, powder, hydrogenated fat and molasses, and a pellet of chewing gum. The breakfast unit has, in addition, modified malted milk tablets, canned veal loaf, two small packages of soluble coffee and three cubes of sugar.

The dinner unit has dextrose tablets, canned luncheon meat, and a tube of bouillon. The supper unit has canned sausage, two pellets of lemon powder [which produce lemonade when water is added], three cubes of sugar, and a bar of "D" ration, which contains chocolate and oatmeal.

Also on exhibit was Ration "G" now in use in the army. It supplants the hard tack and corned beef hash of World war days, and contains biscuits, soluble coffee, a confection, and cans of meat, vegetable stew, and beans.

The stove exhibited is a little gadget of steel wire. A heat tablet is placed on it, lighted, and the stove is ready to warm a can of coffee.

Grated Rind of Lemon Adds Zip to Fruit Juice

Next time you're serving a fruit juice beverage that needs a bit of zipping up try adding grated lemon rind. It gives the same flavor quality as the juice at less cost. Use about ¼ teaspoon grated rind per cup of fruit juice.

HOLIDAY PARTIES LISTED FOR MEN AT FT. SHERIDAN

Many to Get Leaves for Trips Home.

Most of the 7,500 men stationed at Fort Sheridan will be able to return to their homes for Christmas or New Year's, or both, but a round of parties and other entertainment are being planned for those unable to get away. Furloughs of from five to ten days will be granted the majority of the men, so spaced that about half will be absent from the post on Christmas and half on New Year's day. Many men living long distances from Sheridan will be eligible for 16-day leaves between Dec. 13 and Jan. 11, with six of the days not charged against the annual furlough allowance.

Men remaining at the fort will hold a mass choral program Christmas eve around the big Christmas tree near the Service club. The crowd then will be given refreshments at the club before moving into Highland Park for a U. S. O. dance. A Christmas eve dance at the post also is under consideration.

Christmas decorations already have made their appearance and most of the soldiers have started picking out presents for the folks back home. Bracelets, toilet articles with army insignia, pillow covers and, of course, photographs, are favorite purchases.

The soldiers themselves, a survey shows, would appreciate most toilet kits, portable radios, stationery, books, stamps, magazine subscriptions, small overnight bags, olive drab scarf and glove sets, fountain pen and pencil sets, cigarets, and white handkerchiefs.

Miss Dorothy Russell, post librarian, says that those staying over for the holiday period will have plenty to read. More than a thousand books are now being prepared for use, the result of a drive held with the cooperation of Carl B. Roden, librarian of the Chicago Public library.

APPLE SAUCE CAKE IS CHEAP, BUT HAS CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Swedish apple sauce cake is easier and cheaper to make than fruit cake, yet has some of the same Christmas spirit. It's a recipe you'll find use for the year around.

½ cup fat
1 cup sugar
1½ cups mashed apple sauce [unsweetened]
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 cup raisins
½ cup chopped dates
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda

Cream fat and sugar together until light and fluffy. Add applesauce, egg, and vanilla, blending well. Sift salt, spices, flour, and baking soda together and add raisins and dates, mixing well. Stir in dry ingredients and beat well. Turn into waxed paper lined loaf pan and bake for 1 hour in a moderate [350 degrees] oven.

THIS CHOCOLATE PUDDING IS EASY TO MAKE AND EAT

Chocolate Marshmallow Pudding.

1 cup sugar
½ cup cocoa
½ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
2 cups milk
½ cup cream
1 cup cubed marshmallows
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup shredded toasted almonds

Blend sugar with cocoa, flour, and salt. Add egg and milk. Cook slowly and stir constantly until thick. Add cream and beat. Cool and fold in marshmallows and vanilla. Pour into shallow glass or china dish and sprinkle with almonds. Chill before serving.

Origin of Mayonnaise.

Mayonnaise, that commonly used salad ingredient, was once known as "Bayonnaise," since it was originally made in the French province of Bayonne.

NEWEST FACTS ABOUT VITAMINS LISTED FOR YOU

National Food Stores Gets Helpful Story

What with all the plugging of "better nutrition for defense," every careful housewife wants to be sure she's giving her family the foods they ought to have.

Vitamins, especially, have come in for plenty of publicity; the only trouble is keeping up to date on all the newest findings.

To help women know their vitamins, National Food Stores has worked out the following summary of what each vitamin does and which foods supply it. The information comes from a leading Home Economist, Mary Hale Martin, who is Director of Home Economics for Libby, McNeill & Libby.

Vitamin A

It promotes growth, helps resist infections, prevents night blindness and a disease of the eyes, Xerophthalmia. It is found most plentifully in green leafy vegetables, tomatoes, tomato juice, yellow vegetables and fruits. Other good sources are dairy products, dried prunes and apricots; asparagus, peas and beans; fish liver oils, and canned salmon.

Vitamin B^1 (Thiamin)

Essential for the proper function of the nervous system and normal growth; it stimulates the appetite, aids normal intestinal functions, and is necessary for the proper utilization of carbohydrates. A lack of vitamin B^1 results in beriberi. Our best sources are whole grain cereals, nuts, eggs, milk and meat (especially lean pork). It is also found in many fruits and vegetables.

Vitamin C (Ascorbic Acid)

Essential for proper formation and maintenance of bones and teeth (it prevents pyorrhea and promotes healthy gum tissues). Also necessary for the proper healing of wounds. A lack results in scurvy. The citrus fruits, tomatoes and tomato juice are the most valued sources of Vitamin C. It is also found in other fruits and vegetables, especially green leafy vegetables.

Vitamin D

It, too, is necessary for the proper formation and maintenance of bones and teeth. It prevents and cures rickets, is essential for the utilization of calcium and phosphorus, promotes normal growth. It is found in fish rich in oils, such as salmon. Cod liver and other fish oils and ordinary sun light are good sources of Vitamin D.

Red-and-White Holiday Salad

Very festive looking, and very good to eat, is this three layer salad. The two red layers are tomato aspic, made with Libby's Tomato Juice which is being featured today at National Food Stores. The white layer is made with Cottage Cheese. Here is the recipe in full. Tomato Aspic: Soak 2 tbsps. unflavored gelatin in ½ cup cold water for ½ hour. Heat to boiling 4 cups Libby's Tomato Juice (2 14-oz. cans). Add 1 tbsp. grated onion, 1 tbsp. sugar, 1 tbsp. chopped parsley, 4 bay leaves, 6 whole cloves, and 1½ tsps. salt. Simmer for 20 minutes; add gelatin. Stir thoroughly; strain; pour ½ of mixture into loaf pan and chill. Cheese Layer: Soak 2 tsps. gelatin in 2 tbsps. cold water and dissolve over boiling water. Add to ½ cup mayonnaise well mixed with 1 cup cottage cheese. Put this mixture on top of firm layer of aspic in pan. Chill. When firm, cover with remaining aspic and chill again.

Vitamin G (Riboflavin)

This vitamin, sometimes called B^2 promotes growth, aids digestion and helps maintain the health of the skin and normal vision. It is found in meat (especially liver), dairy products, wheat germ, some fruits, and most vegetables.

Nicotinic Acid

A lack of this vitamin results in the nutritional deficiency disease, pellagra. Wheat germ, meat, milk and eggs are considered the best sources.

Vitamin K

Vitamin E

This vitamin is essential to human nutrition but its exact function is not known. It is found in whole grain cereals, lettuce, milk, butter, eggs, meat and vegetables.

Vitamin B^6 (Pyridoxine)

Its exact function is not understood but it is believed to be of importance. It is found in some vegetable fats and oils, butter, meat and fish.

YES, THEY ARE HABIT-FORMING, because, once you taste these tender, delicious Vienna Sausages of Libby's you'll insist on having them often. But it's a good habit. Libby's Vienna Sausages are wholesome and mighty satisfying and thrifty as can be. A grand main dish for dinner, lunch or breakfast.

My, what a difference Deep-Browning makes!
The flavor of these beans is finer, richer, all the way through. Texture is firm yet tender, mealy inside like a well-baked potato. And the color . . . each bean deep brown to its very heart.
Deep-Browning is an exclusive cooking method, discovered and perfected by Libby. We believe it gives beans a goodness never known before. Try 'em tonight and see!

"Justice Deferred"

By William MacLeod Raine

[Copyright: 1941: By William MacLeod Raine]

SYNOPSIS.

Jack Waugh, who when a small boy saw his father ambushed and murdered in Santa Rita, returns there 20 years later determined to bring the murderers to justice. He rescues Mary Lane from a holdup and possible kidnaping and finds she is the stepdaughter of Corbett Carey, his father's friend. But Mary's suitor is Abner Clinton III., grandson of old Ab Clinton, who instigated the Waugh murder. Old Ab, still living, owns controling interest in the ranch run by his son, Brad. His other two sons are rich and prominent in Santa Rita. Jack visits Corbett's son, Carl, and learns that a Jim Fallon, now employed at the Clinton ranch, was the first to arrive on the scene of his father's murder. He calls on Fallon, but his visit is interrupted by two of Brad Clinton's men, Warren Tracy and Ike Parker. Tracy starts a fight, but Jack gives him a terrific beating. Under Jack's protection, Fallon admits seeing Tracy and Brad at the scene of the murder. Young Abner, a straightforward young man, tries to persuade Jack to let bygones be bygones, but Jack refuses. Later, some one shoots at Jack and the bullet narrowly misses him. He encounters Ike Parker with Clem Peake, another one of the Clinton men, and he recognizes them as the two men who attempted to hold up and kidnap Mary. Jack notifies young Abner of his recognition and Abner investigates and finds it is true. Summoning his grandfather to the ranch, he recommends they turn Parker and Peake over to the police. Old Ab pretends to agree, but instead offers Parker $500 to get rid of Jack Waugh.

INSTALMENT XXIII.

MORE EVIDENCE.

Dan Ferris was tinkering with his windmill when a car stopped at the corral and two men descended from it. One of them was Jim Fallon, the other a stranger. They came thru the gate and joined the ranchman.

"Bet yore boots you can't tell me who this is, Dan?" the line rider said.

Ferris looked at Jim's companion. He saw a young man narrow of flank and broad of shoulder, one who carried his well packed weight as lightly as a schoolgirl. Gray eyes smiled from a face tanned by a hundred summer suns.

"Can't say I recollect him exactly," Dan said, and scratched his red head to quicken his memory. "Seems like I'd ought to know him, too."

"The name is Jack Waugh."

A light came into the rancher's seamed face. "Must be Pete Waugh's son. He sure favors his dad."

They spent a few minutes in getting acquainted, part of the time devoted to reminiscences concerning Jack's father. Presently Waugh mentioned the Gabriels.

"They're good friends of mine, but I reckon it has been a couple of years since I have seen them," Ferris said. "I don't get over to Boonetown much. Santa Rita is almost as near, and I do my trading there. How are Hi and Jenny?"

"Fine as silk. Mrs. Gabriel told me to come up and see you."

"Glad you did. It will be dinner time right soon. I'll have Mary put on a couple of extra plates. . . . You still riding the line for the A C, Jim?"

"No, I've quit."

"Quit." Dan stared at him. "Thought you were a fixture there till—as long as you lived."

"I'm going to work for Mr. Waugh, at his Texas ranch."

"That's bully." The next words of Ferris dragged a little. "You and Brad have some trouble?"

"I haven't seen Brad. There was a little trouble with Tracy, altho I wasn't exactly in it. The rumpus happened at my cabin. Mr. Waugh met Tracy there. They had a fight, and he gave him an awful whaling."

"That's too bad," Dan said. "One of these days Warren will pick on somebody big as himself who will knock the stuffing outa him."

Fallon chuckled. "You don't get it. Warren got the licking. Mr. Waugh here beat him up something terrible." The line rider added, to remove all doubt: "With his fists."

The ranchman stared at Jack. "Tickled to hear it," he said. "I didn't know anybody in this neck of the woods could whop that jug-headed bully."

"This boy here did it slick as a whistle. And Tracy isn't the only one of the A C outfit he has tackled. He knocked Clem Peake cold and swapped shots with Ike Parker. The Express had a piece in about it, only it didn't give the names of the scalawags. That wasn't known then. These two birds were holding up Corbett Carey's daughter."

"Why, I read that," Ferris answered. "Only I didn't associate the name with Pete Waugh's son or the holdups with any of the Clinton crowd." He continued, after a moment of thought: "Maybe you have got yourself in a spot, Mr. Waugh. A bunch of tough nuts on the A C pay roll may gang up on you."

"You may be right. Probably old Abner and Brad would give their blessing to a drygulching. I'm digging up evidence about my father's murder."

"Pretty late for that, isn't it?" Ferris said gravely.

"Not too late, perhaps. Mrs. Gabriel suggested you knew something."

"Hmp! Jenny used to be a nice girl, but even then she talked too much."

"I'm coming thru with what I know, Dan," Fallon told his friend. "That's the real reason I quit the A C."

The red headed rancher was a square shouldered, tall man, with steady blue eyes. His rugged face warmed. "You're right, Jim. I've never blamed you for knuckling under to the Clintons because I could see that the cards were stacked against you. But if Jack means to reopen this case you've got to tell what you know. So have I.

"My opinion is that it was a shame the investigation was dropped. Old Abner must have got to the district attorney's office and the police somehow. It was too strong a combination for me to buck, so I kept my mouth shut. But I'll talk now, providing Jack means to go thru to a finish."

"That's what I mean to do," Waugh replied quietly.

Ferris began to tell his story, abruptly.

"It must have been 20 minutes or half an hour after the killing that I got to the Longhorn corral. There was quite a crowd there. I drifted into the stable. Somebody had carried your father's saddle in and dropped it on a bale of hay. The saddlebags were there, too. Abner came in and began a story about how sorry he was Pete had been ambushed, but I knew the old devil was gloating. I didn't stay long. As I was leaving the corral I saw Ab just ahead of me. He had the saddlebags thrown across his shoulder. The old fox had slipped out the back way. Later I heard there was money in the pouches to pay for the government land. I went to the district attorney and he told me he reckoned I was mistaken, but he said he would investigate and let me know. That's the last I heard from him."

"He was one of Ab's henchmen," Fallon commented.

"I told what I knew to several of my neighbors. They did not give me any backing. Your mother did not think there was anything to be done about it. So I threw in my hand. I couldn't prove there was any money in the saddlebags, anyhow."

"I can testify to that," Jack said. "I saw my father put it in just before we started."

"The story told was that Abner paid for the land with your father's money. He would get a great kick out of that."

"Yes, sir," Jim agreed bitterly. "I can see his big body shaking when he bragged of it to his sons."

"Very likely he won't laugh as hard when it comes out in court and he sees a penitentiary sentence waiting for him." Ferris grinned. "The kind of joke he likes is one on the other fellow, where he has socked the poor guy plenty. All he ever figured on was whether he could get away with his sculduggery, and he found he always could. Up till now. Maybe the road will get rough for him now."

"We'll give him a run for his money," Jack suggested. "I wouldn't mention to anybody that we have been to see you, Dan. Much better the Clintons don't find out about it till we are ready to move publicly. Safer for you. Safer for all of us."

Along a dirt road which wound in a leisurely way close to the foothills walling in the valley they headed for the Three Prongs.

Mary Lane and Abner Clinton rode up to the ranch house as Jack drove into the plaza. She wore riding breeches and a sombrero, clothes which stressed the boyish slenderness and vitality of the girl. As Waugh approached she took the hat from her head to cool it, and the sun shining thru the crisp hair made sparkles of spun gold. The Texan was aware of a wave of excitement beating thru his blood. She was smiling at him, and even before she spoke he knew that he had been forgiven for his brusqueness at their last meeting.

"How do you do, Gen. Forward?" she said in her deep, husky voice, and put her small, brown hand in his. "I hear you have been having more battles."

"It was of no importance," Jack said, rather stiffly. "If you are talking about my trouble with Tracy. He attacked me, and I defended myself."

"Carl told me about it, but with a little more enthusiasm. And about your being shot at while you were on the porch."

"One of us was shot at," he agreed. "Carl was there, too, you know."

Mary laughed. "All right. If you won't be a hero, you won't. I don't blame you."

"For a peaceable man you have not been having very good luck," young Abner suggested dryly.

"Not very," Jack replied. "But maybe it may be better from this time. I have telephoned the sheriff at Santa Rita to come and arrest Parker and Peake."

TIME TO MAKE YOUR PRESERVES FOR CHRISTMAS

Now's the time to make tangerine and cranberry preserves. They help fill out the jam and jelly shelf and do make thoughtful little Christmas gifts. Here are two recipes for jam that you'll want to try.

Tangerine Jam.

3½ cups prepared fruit
7 cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

Peel 8 to 10 tangerines and dice pulp. Measure sugar and fruit into large kettle and bring to full rolling boil quickly. Boil hard one minute then remove from fire and add pectin, stirring and skimming for 5 minutes. Pour quickly into jars and seal at once.

Cranberry and Raisin Jam.

2 cups seeded raisins
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
6 cups boiling water
8 cups cranberries
5 cups sugar

Simmer raisins, spices and water together for 20 minutes. Add cranberries and sugar and boil until thick and jelly-like. Pour into glasses and seal at once.

BOOKLET SHOWS EASY WAY TO DO HOLIDAY BAKING

Old Fashioned Fruit Cake Always Popular.

It's time to get busy with your holiday baking. There's still time to make fruit cakes and the hard Christmas cookies that need to age. In a couple of weeks you'll want to get at the baking of other cookies.

Fruit cake in candied grapefruit shells makes a much appreciated Christmas gift. Jubilee fruit cake, made with gumdrops, is an inexpensive and easy to make holiday cake. Old fashioned fruit cakes, thick with candied fruits and flavored of spices and brandy, are always popular. Christmas cookies may be any of the old traditional ones—springerle, pfeffernusse, cinnamon stars, lebkuchen, sugar cookies cut in Christmas designs or rich filled cookies.

Whatever you plan to make at the holiday baking session you'll find the recipe in Mary Meade's "Holiday Cookies and Fruit Cakes." This complete little booklet is yours for only 5 cents in stamps. Or you can pick it up for 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in the Tribune Tower. Mail requests should be addressed to Mary Meade.

COOKING STARCH THICKENERS IS METICULOUS JOB

Blend Well and Stir Well Two Important Rules.

[This is the eighth in a series of cooking lessons which will appear on these pages each Friday. The lessons will cover all phases of cookery.]

BY RUTH COOK STEWART.

Starches absorb liquid and soften and swell when heated. A comparatively small amount of starch thus will thicken a large amount of liquid.

There are two important rules of starch cookery: Always blend starch well with other ingredients before heating, and stir constantly until the mixture thickens.

Starch granules have the bad habit of packing together in little lumps—this is particularly true of the powdered starches such as cornstarch and flour. Unless these little lumps are broken up before they are cooked, they will be sure to turn into big lumps impossible to break up. Usually recipes using starch direct the cook first to mix the starch with sugar and at least a part of the cold liquid. The sugar and cold liquid help to hold apart the little starch granules.

Stir to Prevent Lumping.

But this isn't enough to prevent lumping. The starch particles also must be kept from clumping together during cooking. Unless stirred constantly until they have reached a maximum thickness, the starch will lump. After the pudding has completely thickened it may be cooked further with only an occasional stir to prevent drying of the top surface and scorching.

Cornstarch requires long cooking to remove its raw, starchy flavor. After the cornstarch pudding has thickened it should be covered and cooked for about 10 or 15 minutes longer for improved flavor. To shorten cooking time part of the liquid may be heated before the cornstarch and cold liquid paste are added.

These puddings are often made with milk and sometimes with milk and eggs, tho the liquid may be fruit juice or even water. When milk is used, there will be less chance of scorching if the pudding is cooked in a double boiler. In a cornstarch pudding, the eggs, if any, are added after the pudding is completely cooked to avoid overcooking of the egg. So that the egg will be well blended, it is stirred into a small portion of the hot pudding mixture which has been removed from the pan.

Warms Egg Gradually.

This warms the egg up more gradually than if it were to be added to all the hot pudding at once. Only two or three minutes of further cooking will be necessary to cook the egg. The pudding should be stirred continually after the egg is added.

When quick-cooking tapioca is used the egg may be added at the outset, since the total cooking time is short.

Quick cooking tapioca is precooked in the processing and once the pudding is thickened, no extra cooking to remove raw taste is needed.

As in all cooking, it is important to measure ingredients accurately. The proportion of starch to liquid is especially important here. For creamy puddings use 1 tablespoon of cornstarch or 1¼ tablespoons tapioca per cup of liquid. For puddings that will mold it is necessary to use 1¼ to 1½ tablespoons of cornstarch per cup of liquid. The use of too much tapioca in proportion to water will give a gummy pudding in which the kernels of tapioca may have hard uncooked centers.

Acid Reduces Thickening Power.

Starches lose some of their thickening power when acid is added. In puddings and pies which use a great deal of acid—lemon pie for example—the amount of starch used must be increased slightly.

Other starch thickeners used in puddings and pies are wheat and rice flour, and arrowroot. Proportions for these are: 3 tablespoons wheat flour, 1½ tablespoons rice flour, or 1 tablespoon arrowroot per cup of liquid for creamy puddings; and 4 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons rice flour, or 1½ tablespoons arrowroot for molded puddings.

BUSY COOKS FIND HOLIDAY NUGGETS EASY TO PREPARE

Easier to make than most of the traditional Christmas cookies, these drop cookies will please busy homemakers. They're festive and Christmasy with their spicy flavor and candied fruits.

Holiday Nuggets.

- ⅔ cup butter
- 1½ cups sugar
- ⅔ cup cream
- 3 eggs, beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 teaspoon lemon extract
- 1 cup chopped candied pineapple
- ½ cup chopped candied cherries
- ½ cup shredded toasted almonds
- 3½ cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder

Cream butter and sugar until soft. Add cream and eggs, beat well. Add flavoring, salt, and candied fruits. Sift flour and baking powder together and add. Chill dough. Drop onto greased baking sheets and bake in moderate [350 degrees] oven about 10 minutes. Remove from pans and cool.

CHICKEN COMES IN THREE STYLES ON THE MARKET

Several Ways Suggested for Preparing It.

Chicken, as well as milady's hat, may be purchased according to style, but the selection is limited to three choices. "New York dressed poultry" refers to chicken with head and feet intact, picked but not drawn. "Full drawn poultry" applies to chicken in the fresh frozen, or unfrozen, state, ready for cooking without further preparation. "Cut-up poultry" means chicken that is disjointed into breast, legs, wings, back, neck, and giblets.

Choose the style of chicken that is most convenient for your particular use, and prepare it according to one of the following methods:

TO BROIL CHICKEN.

Use broiling chicken, 8 to 12 weeks old, weighing from 1 to 2½ pounds. Flatten cleaned and split chicken, skin side down, on broiling rack or in a shallow pan. Brush with melted butter and broil slowly with top of chicken about four or five inches from the heat. As chicken browns, brush with additional butter, turning once or twice to each side. Cook 45 to 60 minutes, or until tender and lightly browned. Cooking may be continued about 10 minutes longer with heat turned off, if desired. Season and serve.

TO STEW CHICKEN.

Choose fowl 1 year old or over, weighing about 2½ pounds or more, for stewing. Have the chicken disjointed or leave whole, according to use. Barely cover with water and add 1½ teaspoons salt. Simmer until meat is tender, 2 to 4 hours, depending upon age and size. Serve with dumplings, noodles or rice cooked in the broth, or use cooked meat for creaming, in salads, or as desired.

TO FRY CHICKEN.

Choose fryers from 14 to 20 weeks old, weighing 2½ to 3½ pounds. Heat enough fat in a heavy skillet to give a depth of ¾ to 1 inch. Have chicken disjointed or cut into halves or quarters according to size. Dry chicken pieces with soft paper or towel before frying, to avoid spattering. Apply coating of seasoned breadcrumbs or cornmeal, or dip in batter [1 cup sifted flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup milk], or beaten egg diluted with 1 tablespoon milk, and then dip in crumbs or flour. Place in hot fat and when slightly brown [about 10 minutes] reduce heat, cover, and cook slowly until tender, 35 to 60 minutes, according to size. Turn to brown evenly. Or, after browning, transfer to covered pan and bake in moderate oven, 325-350 degrees until tender, ½ to 1 hour. Uncover the pan during the last 5 or 10 minutes to recrisp the coating.

TO ROAST CHICKEN.

Broilers, fryers, capons, pullets, and the usual roaster, weighing from 2½ to 3½ pounds, may be prepared according to this method. Rub cavity with salt, ⅛ teaspoon per pound of bird. Stuff with dressing, fasten opening, and skewer neck down to back. Truss the bird and brush thoroly with melted, unsalted fat. Cover with cloth dipped in melted fat. Place bird in sallow pan on a rack on its side [or place bird breast down in V-shaped rack]. Roast in moderate oven, 325-350 degrees, until tender, turning bird to other side when about half done.

A 3½ to 4 pound chicken, dressed and stuffed, will require about 40-45 minutes per pound roasting time, a 4 to 5 pound chicken, 35 to 40 minutes per pound, and a chicken over 5 pounds will require from 30 to 35 minutes per pound.

Here's an exceptionally good way to prepare roasting chicken—baked in a sherry-flavored mushroom sauce. Broilers or fryers may be used instead of the roaster if the baking time is decreased according to the size of the bird.

BAKED CHICKEN IN MUSHROOM SAUCE.

[Serves 6 to 8.]

- 1 roasting chicken
- ¼ cup flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ⅛ cup fat
- ¼ to ½ pound fresh mushrooms
- 2 cups cream
- Grated rind of 1 lemon
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1½ tablespoons cooking sherry

Disjoint chicken, dip in seasoned flour, and fry in fat until golden brown. Place in casserole. Cook mushrooms in the same skillet, about 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients, heat, then pour over chicken. Bake covered until chicken is tender [1 to 1½ hours] and sauce is thick.

AMERICAN FAMILY FLAKES WON OVER EVERY BRAND OF GRANULATED SOAPS, CHIPS, POWDERS, IN INDEPENDENT SURVEY WITH CHICAGO WOMEN

American Family Flakes came out first for washing white, first for washing safely, first for best results in washing machines (winning over second-ranking soap by outstanding margins shown above) when Chicago women, who do their laundry at home, were interviewed by members of a well-known, independent research organization.

WHETHER you're using a granulated soap, chips, or powder . . . doesn't it make you wonder if maybe you're missing a wonderful washday opportunity . . . when so many of your neighbors choose American Family Flakes as their 1st choice on these all important washday advantages.

If you haven't tried American Family Flakes since they have been so wonderfully improved, don't you think you owe it to yourself to try them next washday?

When you see what a thrillingly white wash you hang on the line . . .

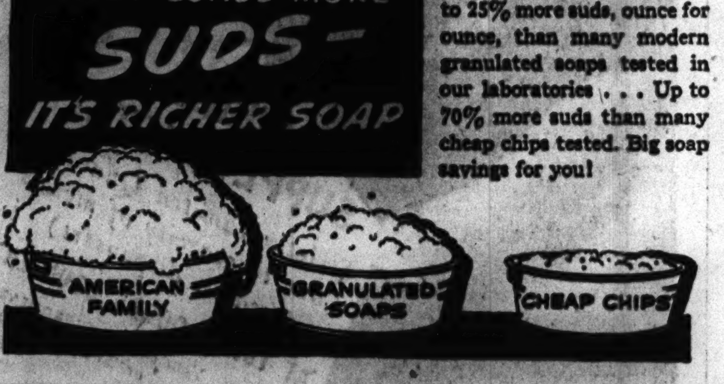
When you see how quickly American Family Flakes make rich, abundant suds in your washing machine (see facts below) . . . well, we believe that you, too, will rank American Family Flakes your No. 1 choice!

No matter what soap you're using now . . . no matter how well you like it . . . try American Family Flakes next washday and see if you don't join the thousands who name these flakes as their favorite! We think you'll agree these flakes—which are made especially for the hard water in this area—have earned their position as the biggest-selling package soap in Chicagoland.



25% MORE SUDS—Up to 25% more suds, ounce for ounce, than many modern granulated soaps tested in our laboratories . . . Up to 70% more suds than many cheap chips tested. Big soap savings for you!

FASTER SUDS, TOO! American Family flakes make suds more than twice as fast as the average of 10 of the largest-selling package "washday" soaps (flakes, granulated, chips) tested in our laboratory.

Christmas Eve Masses Will Be Held This Year

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch yesterday announced removal of restrictions on the celebration of Christmas eve midnight masses in parish churches of the archdiocese of Chicago. The announcement was made in a pastoral letter to pastors of all churches.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph P. Morrison, rector of Holy Name cathedral, said last night the ban on the midnight mass had been in effect as long as he can remember and that the only public midnight service in the local archdiocese in his memory was held during his boyhood when, by papal permission, a special midnight mass was offered to usher in the 20th century, Jan. 1, 1900.

Archbishop Stritch's letter to the clergy cited the appropriateness of the restoration of the historic service this year "when, at the very hour in the long ago on Christmas night the angel chorus sang to the shepherds the tidings of our redemption—'Peace on earth to men of good will'—in many parts of the world vast armies will be arrayed in battles, it seems to me that we should sanctify in a special way the holy night and seek in humbler reparation for sin to hasten by our prayers the coming of truc peace among men."

"Wisely in the past certain restrictions were placed in this archdiocese on the use of the permission given by canon law for the celebration in parish churches of midnight mass," the letter continued. "After much deliberation and consultation with prudent mature priests, we have decided for this year to lift these restrictions and to permit in parish churches in the archdiocese midnight mass according to the permission given in the code of canon law."

The letter asked those who receive holy communion at the midnight mass to "fast some hours before communion in reverence for the blessed sacrament." It also was suggested that a half hour prior to the celebration be given to the singing of Christmas hymns by the choirs.

Several Protestant pastors' groups also have recommended special emphasis on Christmas eve observances this year, particularly in the form of carol singing by choirs and youth groups in the neighborhoods of local churches and for shut-ins and persons living in charitable homes.

FASHIONS by ANGELA

When you see these highly styled shoes — simple, good classic styles— and then examine the price tags, you'll wish you were a centipede. Here is a store with literally hundreds of different shoe styles from which to choose. They do a particularly large business in evening slippers. And why not, when it is possible to afford a pair of shoes for every frock.

Top right. This evening slipper glitters with gold, too . . . but a very subdued glitter. The fabric is a delicate plaid, narrow stripes of pastel threads crossed by shimmering metallic ones of gold.

Center right. The cocktail or dinner dress will be complemented by this sandal of narrow straps of black suede caught by a loop here, braided there to enclose the toe and encircle the instep firmly.

Star of Bethlehem Orchids Exhibited at Conservatory

The three Star of Bethlehem orchids—flowers with fragrant ivory white blossoms about six inches in diameter, with long spurs at the base —have bloomed two weeks ahead of schedule and are now on display at Garfield Park conservatory, William Blaesing, park district horticulturist, said yesterday. There are three of the plants at the Garfield Park conservatory and eight at the Lincoln Park conservatory, which are expected to bloom during the annual Christmas flower show from Dec. 20 thru Jan. 4.

Churches Will Join in Christmas Seal Sunday Observance

More than 1,000 churches in the Chicago federation will coöperate with synagogues and churches not affiliated with the federation in observance of Christmas Seal Sunday, Dec. 7.

The purpose of the observance, to be sponsored individually by the church groups, is to emphasize the increasing need for funds this year with which to fight tuberculosis.

Although the national annual tuberculosis death rate has decreased nearly 75 per cent in the last generation, there still were more than 60,000 deaths last year.

Umbrella Gets Call Today as Gift Solution

BY REA SEEGER.

In your merry scrambles around the shops and stores you'll come upon the last minute super designs in umbrellas destined for gifts. The boxes alone are worth all the excitement. It takes a long slinky box to look really mystifying, and these very decorative holiday creations add to the general color cheer-up with linings of red. All silk covered umbrellars are almost of jewel-like splendor, the colors elegantly subdued, the handles of lucite something to behold.

For instance, the big faceted affair rivaling the measurement of the Kohinoor diamond, even looks like it . . . or the handsome chromium plate numbers with thick embossed rococo patterns and the shiny rib tips also of chromium. Ombre-colors and a few very small prints in dark colors are the choice. When you hear that the silks are the famous Spitalfields [formerly found in the finest cravats for gentlemen], you'll realize these are umbrellas worthy of ambassadorial appointment.

Other silk affairs feature small precise checks and chalk stripes, usually chalk white with black or navy blue. Such finds are star attractions for the very reasonable price level [around $5] and most of them have the crook handles.

For the fussy ladies on your lists . . . check the swanky pure silk umbrellas with long slim handles and carrying loops of snakeskin. Also, the foldaway for travel baggage, in plain, plaid, checked, and other patterned covers. Such obliging numbers are equipped with a hoisting mechanism that never fails, roll neatly and compactly and have both decorative handles and loops for carrying.

For the careerists and college gals on your list . . . see the hurricane models. They're made of small plaid patterned cotton, weigh less than nothing at all, have imitation tortoise shell handles and tips on the ribs. They'll blend most harmoniously with the popular natural gabardine coats and convertibles with the very modest price mark easy on a vanishing cash supply.

Such eye blinding finds as the "glamor" plaids feature a moderate price mark as well as a choice of huge patterned color combines and swanky ball shape handles with loops. The shiny ball handles come in either bright red or green and three initials or less are inscribed free, that is, if you are willing to wait a week for such an added attraction.

The umbrellas you can buy for the five dollar limit are limitless in color, style, and handles, and feature especially sturdy materials of a mixed silk and cotton.

Infant's Crocheted Outfit

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 4.— Paramount's new version of "Merton of the Movies" will be a musical—and will concern up-to-date Hollywood. Eddie Bracken is practically a cinch to play Merton, the rôle created by Glenn Hunter. This Harry Leon Wilson comedy was the first and one of the best about Hollywood, and interest in it was revived when C. B. De Mille presented Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland in a radio rewrite of it a few weeks ago. . . . MGM is still pouring on the musicals. Several tune shows are in production or ready for release, and soon the cameras will roll on Mickey and Judy in "Girl Crazy" and on Red Skelton and Ann Sothern in "Du Barry Was a Lady." . . . An impression has got abroad that Alfred Hitchcock's picture for Universal, temporarily titled "The Saboteur," is a reworking of "The Thirty-nine Steps." It isn't—but it is expected to have the same sort of suspenseful melodrama. It's about a man in a plane factory here who flees and is chased to New York, running away from an unjust accusation of sabotage. . . . The Broadway firm has offered Victor Jory the rôle opposite Ruth Gordon in "Portrait of a Lady."

Sam Goldwyn was playing gin rummy not long ago and his opponent took him for game after game. Finally Sam, exasperated, quit and asked how much he owed. "I'll never play with you again," he vowed. His opponent told him what the tap was. "All right," said Goldwyn, "I'll play you one game for double or nothing." . . . And the game went on for several hours more.

Robert Taplinger becomes executive assistant to Harry Cohn at Columbia. . . . Olivia de Havilland will get the lead in the Warners' color film of Edna Ferber's "Saratoga Trunk." . . . Columbia plans a drama, "Canal Zone," for Chester Morris, John Hubbard, and Harriet Hilliard. . . . Paramount has one slated for Richard Arlen called "Sky Over China," which is about a commercial air line pilot. It's type casting. Arlen now runs a commercial air line and has already laid plans for big scale sky transport of freight with unwanted bombers after the war is over. . . . Arthur Hornblow Jr. wants Bob Hope—as who doesn't? —for his musical, "Very Hot for Haiti." . . . Lillian Gish arrives today at Paramount for tests for "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." This despite an announcement from the Oscar Serlin office that Lillian would not be available for any movie whatever until she's thru touring with the Chicago company of "Life with Father." Shooting on "Wiggs" is slated for January. . . . First shots of "Yankee Doodle Dandy" were made yesterday, with Jim Cagney playing George M. Cohan. The scenes were dances from "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway." . . . June Millarde, daughter of June Caprice, has a Warner contract and gets a dancing, singing, and acting rôle in the Cagney picture.

Gregory La Cava now lives in a house W. C. Fields used to rent, and Fields is living in La Cava's Malibu Beach home. To be near his work at Universal La Cava moved to the Lakeside Golf club neighborhood and offered Bill his beach home.

Peace Terms to Be Topic at Public Forum

A public forum on the basis of peace terms will be held Monday night in Orchestra hall under the sponsorship of 15 organizations which embrace every shade of opinion concerning American foreign policy. The World Citizens association, 84 East Randolph street, announced the program.

The Rev. Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle of First Methodist church, Evanston, leading non-interventionist; Dr. Walter W. Van Kirk of New York of the Federal Council of churches, and Dr. Frank Kingdon, chairman of the New York Committee to Defend America and Fight for Freedom, interventionist group, will be the principal speakers. George V. Denny, president of Town Hall, will be the moderator.

Discussion of present foreign policy will be prohibited, the announcement stated, adding that, "War or no war, the question of a lasting, stable peace after present hostilities cease will depend upon full discussion in advance of that event."

"The purpose of the forum is threefold," the announcement explained. "These are to secure support for American participation in the building of a peaceful and stable post-war world; to demonstrate that we must think and plan now if we are to be ready for constructive action when opportunity arises, and to achieve a unity of all people on those points regardless of their present feelings on America's stand in the war situation."

Organizations announced as sponsoring the meeting are: Keep America Out of War congress, Fellowship of Reconciliation, Committee to Defend America, Fight for Freedom, Chicago Church federation, Chicago Rabbinical association, Cook County League of Women Voters, Federal Union, Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, Campaign for World Government, League of Nations association, Commission to Study the Organization of Peace, Young Women's Christian association, International House of the University of Chicago, and the Chicago World Citizens association.

Carleton Washburne, superintendent of the Winnetka public schools, is chairman of the executive committee of the Chicago group of the World Citizens association, of which John B. Van de Water is executive secretary. The members of this committee include Mrs. Anita McCormick Blair, Geraldine Brown Gilkey, Walter C. Laves, Eleanor Blaine Lawrence, William B. Lloyd Jr., Herbert W. Smith, Perry D. Smith, and Prof. Quincy Wright.

Show Will Climax 'Buy-a-Boy' Drive of Deborah Club

A rally featuring entertainment by stage, screen, and radio performers will be given by the Deborah Woman's club in the Congress Casino on Dec. 14 as a climax to the "Buy-a-Boy" drive for the maintenance of the Deborah Boys' club, 2441 West Division street.

Among the entertainers who will take part are Lou Holtz, Ethel Shutta, Bill Anson, and Tommy Bartlett. The Deborah boys will present a skit, "March of Young America."

More than 1,400 underprivileged boys are helped thru the club. Mrs. Lester L. Stern is president of the Deborah Woman's club; Mrs. Joseph Wolf, honorary president, and Mrs. Helen Sontag, program chairman and vice president. Mrs. Charles Silberman is chairman of the "Buy-a-Boy" fund.

The Housewife

If you're a vitamin disciple or a user of saccharine pills or any other little tablets you'll like to carry them in your purse in an adorable little box that measures only 1¼ by 1½ inches and is made in the shape of a miniature book with "Book of Health" on the top. The cover snaps shut. This little trifle is nice to tuck in Christmas stockings, too.

EDITH WEIGLE.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

Toiletries for men? There are any number of them this year, some newcomers and lots of familiar ones that have existed for the very good reason that men like them immensely. They're better styled than ever, in a fashion that will appeal to men, and in fragrance most of them are attractive and conservative.

One house has a new cologne to round out its excellent line of men's preparations. This is a super-dooper, to our way of thinking, in a handsome wooden topped decanter, the kind of a bottle that men approve of. It's simple, stunning and easy to handle. The fragrance, called tanbark, is clean, light, and of a character to win masculine endorsement.

This house has an after shave lotion and powder that are great favorites with the men. They like both the scent and the beneficent action of the lotion and approve of the powder because it's fine and flesh colored, which means that it isn't obvious on the rugged countenance. For Christmas the lotion and powder are boxed with a shaving bowl, in a maroon plaskon container. Our reports from the gentlemen are that the soap is exactly what they like, and they're enthusiastic about the color and the design of the bowl.

There are various sets of these fine men's preparations, in combinations ranging from the duo after shave lotion with shaving cream to impressive ensembles that offer five or six good grooming aids.

Your Handwriting

Fortune Gallo, director of the Chicago Opera company, uses an emphatic stroke of the pen which is a direct reflection of an emphatic physical gesture with a psychological explanation. Note the strokes on the bar across the "F" and the return stroke of the "G" and on the t-bar. Such strokes are the result of a sudden increase in emotional intensity. Since the rest of the writing is rather light in pressure and it slants neither to the left nor the right, we may assume that Mr. Gallo can be indifferent about many things, but the things which do arouse him bring to the surface sharp reactions. His response is often unexpected and startling.

The fact that Mr. Gallo likes to spring these surprises is indicated by the strong dramatic sense in his signature. When you see heavily inked, superspecial capitals like these, you don't try to crowd this person offstage or try to steal the show. This gift for dramatizing themselves and others is what provides us with all that is inspiring and entertaining in the theater and opera.

Assembly Ball Tonight to Be Gala Occasion

BY JUDITH CASS.

"WHAT will it be like this year?" several hundred women are asking themselves this morning. Their musings concern tonight's Assembly ball—the decorations, the gowns to be worn, and the threatened shortage of "extra" men.

The party, traditionally the pinnacle of Chicago's winter season, will be given at the Palmer House and will occupy the entire fourth floor of the hotel, just as last year's ball did. Approximately 700 invitations were sent out and the great majority of them accepted, for it's also "tradition" that no one turns down an invitation to the Assembly ball. At least, not if he or she wants to remain on the list.

The decorations, of course, remain a deep secret to be guarded carefully by the 13 governors until the first guests arrive tonight. Not even the governors' wives are given a hint of them. All that's certain is that the setting will be an elaborate one, if it approximates last year's old southern garden, complete with magnolias, moonlight, and southern smilax.

This Year's Receiving Line to Be Shorter Than Usual.

This year's receiving line will be shorter than usual, for of the 12 wives of governors two—Mrs. William McCormick Blair and Mrs. A. Watson Armour III.—are in mourning. The 13th governor, William H. Mitchell, is unmarried. His fiancée, Mrs. Wood Tullis, won't be taking her place in the line as Mrs. Mitchell until next year.

The remaining 10 wives will arrive shortly after the starting hour of 10:30 o'clock to take their places. They will carry bouquets of white, pink, or deep red camellias that the governors are sending them. They are Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Mrs. Edison Dick, Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr., Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Mrs. John A. Stevenson, and Mrs. Solomon Byron Smith. Last year the more formal single receiving line was broken up into two shorter lines, one on each side of the main entrance to the ballroom, to "streamline" the process of paying one's respects to the governors and their wives.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair to Give Customary Dinner Party.

Altho Mrs. Blair won't be going to the ball, she and Mr. Blair, who is chairman of the board of governors, will give their customary small dinner party in their home in Astor street. The Lester Armours, the Cables, and the Ryersons will be among their guests.

The Dicks, the Odells, and the Douglases will be dining at the Pump room. Mr. and Mrs. Dick will give the party, which will include their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Harris Ward of Washington, D. C. The Wards, who arrived last night, formerly lived in Lake Forest.

The Stevensons will be dining with the Huntly Gilberts in the latter's apartment, and the Smiths will be the guests of the Morrison Wauds. Mr. and Mrs. Cummings will join the party which Mrs. Merrill Hubbard and her daughter, Miss Marie Merrill Hubbard, will give at the Casino. It will be Miss Hubbard's first Assembly ball, as she made her debut just last year. At least she hopes it will be her first Assembly. There was doubt last night as to whether she would be able to leave her duties at St. Luke's hospital, where she is in training as a nurse, tonight, but she and her friends are hoping for the best. Among other "second year" girls with invitations to the gala affair are Miss Eunice Hale, Miss Harriet Bermingham, Miss Margaret Stuart, Miss Adrienne Ely, Miss Patricia Cathcart, Miss Ruth Burrows, Miss Evelyn Gardner, and Miss Elizabeth and Miss Caryl Broome.

Numerous Other Persons to Be Hosts at Dinners.

Mrs. Tullis and Mr. Mitchell will join the Phelps Kelleys' dinner party in the Bungalow atop the Morrison hotel. Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, who is not going to the ball, will be hostess at dinner to 18 guests, who

All This Is Charm.

The mail and telephone response to the story on the charm school, published in this column, tempts its writer to undertake the impossible: a definition of charm.

Charm isn't any one thing. It's a pair of bright, keen eyes . . . or a humorous twist to the corners of a mouth after a hectic day. It may be a gesture expressive of busy, competent fingers . . . or the serenity of hands lying quietly in a lap. It could be a set to the shoulders . . . a walk . . . a voice . . . a laugh. It could be a way of looking up when listening . . . or a way of holding a pencil.

Charm has nothing to do with beauty, any more than a bubbly spring has to do with the great, deep sea. It is that elusive something which makes people say "I do wish Mary had come" . . . when Mary is not there. It is that something which makes a man say "I wonder what has become of Dorothy?" . . . years after the last date.

It needs no drawing room . . . no thick, lush carpeting . . . no props. You can find it in the elevator . . . at the lunch counter . . . on a street car.

It's a spiritual trade-mark . . . a sign . . . a symbol. It proclaims that you, in your small sphere, have your own unduplicated array of gifts to offer to a prosaic world.

Stenos Find Harmony.

Another girl was needed in the steno room of a law firm which was having difficulty finding one who would work harmoniously with the other stenographers. Two or three new ones were tried, but none filled the bill. So it was decided to turn the matter over entirely to the two senior girls in the office. They ran an advertisment in the Female Help Wanted section of the paper. It stated concisely: "STENOGRAPHER" in bold type and gave the address. They interviewed the applicants, chose the one they wanted, and put her to work. Everything is now slick as a whistle.

'Ware of the $4 Word.

Whenever you're in the mood to use a $4 word, instead of a simpler one, you might remind yourself that Lincoln's Gettysburg address of 268 words contains 196 one syllable words, 52 two syllable, and only 20 of more than two syllables.

Or you might remind yourself of the four most meaningful words in the English language: Birth, death, love, and work.

Young Chicago Soprano Is Heard in Song Recital

Taking her turn in the nightly musical events that fill Kimball hall Ella Steele, young Chicago soprano, gave a recital last night under the auspices of Zeta chapter of Phi Beta. To avoid the routine in her program she enlisted the services of Caroline Solfronk, flutist, who contributed obbligatos to at least half a dozen songs and arias. Another capable assisting artist, Ann Hawryliw, was heard in a group of violin solos. Walter Steindel was the accompanist.

The credit side of any account of Miss Steele's abilities must list her naturally fine voice. Altho not large it is so well focused it carries well even in the lower registers. An attractive, glistening sheen gives the voice color, and it issues forth smoothly with a limpid legato.

The singer is not yet fully in control of her voice, however. It is constricted in the upper tones, where it most needs to come forth freely for climaxes. In rapid coloratura passages her work is not always meticulous.

As an interpreter Miss Steele is conscientious rather than inspired. Some phrases in two difficult arias from Mozart's "The Abduction from the Seraglio" came off beautifully; others did not. And such variability was true of the rest of the programmed numbers. R. E.

Tribute Paid to Mozart on Anniversary

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart died in Vienna in the early morning hours of Monday, Dec. 5, 1791, of an ailment whose exact nature is not known. He was not quite 36 years old. The next day he was given a pauper's funeral but, because rain turned back the few mourners before they reached the cemetery, no one to this day knows where he is buried.

The world—even the part of the world that is at war—is pausing today to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the composer's death. Locally, this commemoration takes the form of an all-Mozart program to be given in Orchestra hall this afternoon by Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

The same program was played last night and, since it brought into high relief all of the principal aspects of Mozart's genius, constituted a moving tribute to his memory.

That elegant jollity which is peculiarly Mozart's was in evidence in the final movement of the E-flat Symphony, that incredible work which was turned out in a matter of days during the summer of 1788—one of the darkest periods in the composer's whole worried, overworked life.

The resourcefulness and the unlabored quality—to say nothing of the radiance and the freshness—which mark Mozart's music were seldom revealed more strikingly than in the youthful Concerto for Flute and Harp. The solo parts in last night's performance were expertly handled by Ernest Liegl and Joseph Vito.

There can be no greater misconception of Mozart than the belief that he kept all hint of life's graver aspects out of his music and spent his years singing away like a thoughtless bird. The glorious Andante of the Symphonie Concertante for Violin and Viola [whose solo parts were taken—again expertly—by John Weicher and Milton Preves] is not the work of a superficial man. Neither is the dramatic overture to "Don Giovanni."

All four works on the program testified in their violently differing ways to Mozart's fertility of idea, to the purity of his taste, to the grace and distinction of his style, and to the dazzling brilliance of his workmanship.

Again and again the program posed the ancient question—Is such and such a passage a brilliant inspiration or a superlative piece of craftsmanship? With Mozart the two tend to become one. One might as well inquire as to whether the flying buttress is a structural necessity or the greatest glory of Gothic architecture.

Mayor Views Garbo Film Banned in Eastern Cities

Mayor Kelly, Police Commissioner James P. Allman and several officials of the Chicago archdiocese viewed Greta Garbo's latest picture, "Two-Faced woman," yesterday in the show room of the police censor board. The mayor said the picture, which has already been approved by the board, "has created much comment down east, so we came to look at it." Asked if it will be banned here, he said: "We will think it over." The picture has already been banned in Providence, R. I., and Boston.

Piano Duo to Give Concert for Infant Welfare Benefit

Luboshutz and Nemenoff, a two piano team, will give the third concert in the civic series sponsored by the Oak Park and River Forest center of the Infant Welfare, circle 27, in the Oak Park High school auditorium tonight. Mrs. John P. Gorman is chairman of the committee in charge of the series.

Front Views and Profiles

Of Mice and Art.

One of Chicago's most charming young hostesses has a bedroom in white and coral and a pair of matching mice, white with coral eyes. One is Lulu, the other Algernon, and they are very well behaved little mice. Sometimes they play on their runway, a wheel that whirls; again they slither out of their white cage and get on their mistress' bed. Here, while she plays the phonograph, they dance. To Rachmaninoff they merely seem to execute a dizzy weave, to Brahms they sit up on their hind legs and beg, but to Bach they pirouette.

Many friends now send Lulu and Algernon gifts, the latest being a mobile. "A mobile," their mistress defines, "is a piece of many things that never stops moving." This one is three pieces of wire which twirl in the breeze; on one is a bit of cheese, on another a bell, on the third a tiny sack of food. The mice sit and watch it, in much the same manner, we believe, as Tantalus must have gazed yearningly at the fruit and water beyond his reach in inferno. "But actually what is it?" their owner was asked. "Why," she said, "It's art for the mice."

A Rose by Any Other Name.

Thought of art brings to mind the Chicago painter and her husband who were engaged in a violent argument about her latest picture. The husband frankly did not like it. "It may be art," he protested, "but I can't see it." "But, darling!" his wife protested, "you haven't seen it framed."

Change of Venue.

Many strange events have come to our attention in the past few weeks, but none as strange as the couple who went to the funeral of a man they had known for years. At the conclusion of the service, they went for a final view of the body as it lay in its casket. Inside lay a woman with long yellow hair.

Lebensraum, Mister.

The six foot artist got up from his cramped position at the drawing board and stretched his arms. "What's the matter?" his fellow artists asked. "O, nothing," he replied. "What I need is Liebestraum."

Nothing New.

The man, his eyes veiled behind dark glasses, staggered slightly and then fell backwards to the sidewalk on Michigan avenue. A man and a woman rushed up to assist him to his feet. "Something wrong?" he was asked. "Naw," he replied with a brief shudder. "I've been nervous ever since I was a child."

Of Good and Evil.

Fragment from the Christmas scene: the two tiny ceramic angels in a Delaware place bookshop; one is sticking her tongue out; the other is sucking an ice cream cone.

Why, Pete, How Could You?

At the recent Press Veterans' banquet Gov. Green, as guest of honor, arose to tell how a mere three dismissals turned him from newspaper work to politics. His first job was as a reporter under the late Frank Carson, who one night commissioned him to obtain a picture of a girl who had just been killed. The governor got the picture, but he had to climb thru a transom into a photographic studio to do so, and the owner of the studio soon lodged violent protest with Carson, who immediately summoned his young cub reporter.

"It's too bad, old man," the aging Carson told the stripling Green, "but we don't stand for those tactics."

"So," the governor mused, "I was fired for the third time. For making good, I got fired. . . . It's a very mysterious business."

Epitaph.

Josephine Antoine, who will sing the title rôle in Martha tomorrow night, is an epitaph collector. With her this trip she brought her two newest discoveries:

"Here lies the body of Susan Lowder
Who burst while drinking Siedlitz powder.
Sent from this world to her heavenly rest—
She should have waited till it effervesced."

Hannah
Erected to his loving memory by his adoring wife

"To Fred, the Fireman,
"He left his hose, his Hannah, his love—
To sing 'Hosannah' in realms above!"

Grace Moore to Sing Mimi in 'La Boheme' Tomorrow Afternoon

Grace Moore will sing Mimi in "La Bohême" tomorrow afternoon at the Chicago Civic Opera house, and appearing with her will be her protégée, Dorothy Kirsten, 24 year old soprano, who will take the rôle of Musetta. Miss Moore discovered Miss Kirsten three years ago thru the offices of a New York editor. She arranged for her to study in Italy and France, altho the war prevented Miss Kirsten from spending a year in Paris. Tomorrow, incidentally, will be Miss Moore's birthday.

Two Deserted Mothers Need Infant's Beds

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Children sleeping in dresser drawers may be only comic strip comedy to those unfamiliar with poverty, but many babies born of poor parents actually do sleep in such makeshift beds.

A case worker has requested help for the twin babies in the W. family. They were born prematurely and are very delicate children, now six months old. They first slept in dresser drawers, but when they outgrew them the mother was able to locate a child's bed. Now they are gaining weight and becoming more active, and no longer can share the same small bed. The mother is eager to locate a second one.

She has the entire responsibility of caring for the twins, because her husband deserted at the time of their birth. An agency is giving some assistance, but cannot supply the needed bed.

The address is on the south side of Chicago, and offers from that general vicinity could be transported most conveniently.

Mrs. P., who lives on the far south side, also needs a baby bed and clothing for her child. Her husband deserted when she was hospitalized, and she is dependent upon her mother for support, at least until she is strong enough to find employment.

Diversion Is a Problem in Many Families

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Among the many problems which seem to crop up between married couples is that of diversion. The complaint is heard mostly from wives, whose husbands will not share, or are too tired to share, an evening's pleasure.

Because married women cannot very well go out by themselves and leave their husbands at home, this diversion problem often grows to serious proportions. Instead of making it a bone of contention, some satisfactory solution must be found.

Where there are children for the wife to look after during the day, if the husband is too tired after a hard day's work at the office to go out, he might volunteer to stay at home while his wife trots off to the movies, or goes visiting at a woman friend's home. The husband can read detective stories at home, if he likes, while he takes his turn with the youngsters.

If children, with no one to come in to care for them, keep parents at home night after night, one evening a week should be allotted to having friends in. However, if some one to stay with the children can be found, some couples solve the diversion problem by making every Saturday night their night out. It gives the wife something to look forward to all week, and the husband can have his full day at home on Sunday to rest up for the strenuous week ahead. The Saturday night out also gives him a welcome change from business to pleasure.

In some cases husbands work so hard that they just cannot go out in the evening. They need to get to bed early in order to feel rested for the following day. It is a situation which cannot be helped. So the wise wife is the one who plans to get out during the the day. Even with young children to limit her activities, she can find diversion in some way by calling on friends with her children, going out for walks, taking them to market with her, anything that lets her get outdoors and perhaps meet other women, with whom she can exchange ideas.

Weddings

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Marjorie Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sherman of Oak Park, and William Fairfax Burrall, son of H. D. Burrall of Albuquerque, N. M., on Nov. 22. The wedding took place in Grace Episcopal church, Oak Park. Mrs. Burrall is a graduate of the Frances Shimer Junior college and Northwestern university, and Mr. Burrall received his degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Mr. and Mrs. Burrall will live in Oak Park.

The marriage of Miss Evelyn L. Oxenham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Oxenham of Park Ridge, to Stanley W. Avery will take place Dec. 20 in St. Mary's Episcopal church. Mr. Avery is the son of Harry W. Avery of Chicago.

will include Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Tyng. The Tyngs are en route from New York to their home in the Ojai valley in California. They are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, who will be dining tonight with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley and their party at the Casino.

Other dinner parties will be given at the Casino by Mrs. Champ Carry, Robert F. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Rowley, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Leidy Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward De Witt Shumway, and Miss Marie Louise Hulburd. Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt and Mrs. D. Mark Cummings will entertain jointly there. At the Racquet club the dinner hosts and hostesses will include Mr. and Mrs. John H. Noyes, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dennehy, Mr. and Mrs. Peter G. Moon, and Dr. and Mrs. Paul Magnuson.

Mr. and Mrs. Wells Farnham, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Prince and Princess Rostislav, and Carroll Carstair of New York will be among those dining at the Saddle and Cycle club for a Dutch treat party. Mr. and Mrs. John Root also will entertain at the Saddle. Mr. and Mrs. James B. Forgan will entertain in the Four Georges room of the Sherman, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Borland and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Ames in their respective homes.

Other Parties Arranged for Anne Boswell Debut.

Now that the Nicolas Starosselskys have changed the date of the dinner-dance they will give for their debutante daughter, Anne Boswell, from Dec. 30 to the 22d, other parties for the later date are being planned. Mrs. John Alden Spoor will give a dinner party at the Racquet club for debutante Shirley Hopkins on the 30th, later taking her young guests on to the Ballet Russe. One of Mrs. Spoor's granddaughters, Miss Betty Broome, will be here for the party, but the other, Miss Caryl, is leaving Chicago on Dec. 27. Both girls, who were buds last season, are spending the early winter with their grandmother.

The Misses Broomes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill Broome of Pass Christian, Miss., will come north on Dec. 20 to spend the holidays with Mrs. Spoor. Their son, Jack, who is awaiting a call to service, will fly to Chicago just for Christmas day.

Announces Engagement of Jane Lee Graham.

Mrs. Thomas George Lee of the Ambassador East hotel announces the engagement of her daughter, Jane Lee Graham, to Robert Dempster Tratt, son of Mrs. Hoard Tratt of East Delaware place. The wedding will take place early next spring. Mr. Tratt's father is Paul Tratt of Fort Atkinson, Wis., and he is a great-grandson of William Dempster Hoard, Wisconsin's governor in the late 80s, and founder of the Wisconsin Dairymen's association. Mrs. Graham was married to William E. Graham in 1931 and divorced from him four years later. She has one sister, Mrs. Roland K. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bruce Millar III. are receiving congratulations on the birth of their third son, Jonathan Needham Millar, at St. Luke's hospital on Nov. 30. Mrs. Millar is the former Nedra Needham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Needham of Chicago. The baby's paternal grandfather is Mr. Millar Jr. of Chicago. Earl Bruce IV. and Dodd Rowan are the Millars' other two sons.

Opera Guild's Juniors to Be Guests at Tea.

Junior members of the Illinois Opera guild will be among the special guests at a tea which the guild will give at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Mrs. Howard Willett's penthouse atop the Civic Opera building. Among the other guests will be Mobley Lushanya, Coe Glade, Douglas Beattie, Giuseppe Cavadore, Frederick Jagel, Jan Kiepura, and Richard Wentworth, opera stars. Mrs. Millard B. Kennedy, Mrs. William E. Ragland, Mrs. Bruce W. Strong, and Mrs. James H. Tatman will assist Mrs. Willett at the tea table.

Mrs. Harris Fahnestock [Frances Jeffery], who flew in on Monday from her home in Concord, Mass., will be among those assisting Mrs. Chester D. Tripp at the Cliff Dwellers' tea after the symphony concert this afternoon. Mrs. Fahnestock is visiting her aunt, Miss Frances Whedon of Lake Forest.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

If plain buttered carrots don't appeal to you very much, try this recipe which gives the vegetable unusual savor. Mrs. Frank Bender, 3333 West 66th street, Chicago, wins a $5 prize for it.

Every day some good cook wins $5 for a favorite recipe. If you have a potential prize winner among the recipes you use most and like best, send it to Recipe Contest, Chicago Tribune. Perhaps it will win a prize.

CARROTS A LA VICHY.
[Serves four or more.]

- 1 bunch young carrots, sliced thin
- 1 small onion, minced fine
- 1 sprig parsley
- 1 bay leaf
- ⅛ teaspoon thyme
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 teaspoon flour
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Cook carrots in a very small amount of salted water until almost tender, with onion, parsley, bay leaf, thyme, and sugar. Melt butter in another pan, add flour and lemon juice. Then add carrots and simmer for 20 minutes.

★ Your Stars Today ★

By WYNN

Friday, Dec. 5.

Some of us may have an emotional hangover from yesterday; let it evaporate; don't attempt to settle things in the morning today. Evening looks good for constructive decisions and actions, altho best to go slow in finances over week-end.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead, if today is your birthday, suggests working with others for mutual ends, not alone, especially till mid-March. From June crossroads between past and future; think, decide. Danger: March 13-30; Aug. 13-21.

Tomorrow.

Do you want an individual interpretation of your own personal date? Send 10c for 1942 horoscope, 5c for balance of 1941—15c for both—to Wynn, Tribune astrologer, 286 Fifth avenue, New York, N. Y.

She was a Part-time Wife

HER ONCE DEVOTED husband neglected her. She never knew that her "One Neglect" was to blame. A marriage may be ruined by carelessness about feminine hygiene. Use Lysol for your intimate personal care, as so many modern women do. Lysol solution cleanses, deodorizes—and kills millions of germs on instant contact—without harm or discomfort to sensitive tissues. Small bottle makes almost 4 gallons of antiseptic solution for feminine hygiene.

Studying the In-Between Is Guidance Help

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.

The one general piece of advice I would like to offer for dealing with interesting in-betweens is that you make it your business to study your child, and to make your management fit his particular needs and his very own personality as it unfolds before your eyes.

That very suggestion implies that your method of dealing with this unfolding personality must be flexible. You will find changes that cannot be handled successfully unless you, too, change your management with the changing phases. Sometimes you will need to be adamant, sometimes yielding; sometimes you will need to talk, sometimes to be silent; sometimes to allow freedom, sometimes to exert authority. But always you will need to be understanding and to think first what serves best your child's real happiness, and his well being.

But here are a few suggestions of a more definite nature presented to illustrate what I'm driving at:

One trouble: Not answering when spoken to. Explanation: Cause is due to deepening interest in own concerns, real concentration, or too much talking to by grownups. Advice: Don't take this too hard. Respect the interest or concentration as you would that of a grown person. Interrupt only when necessary. Then do something to attract your child's attention instead of speaking three or four times and then getting angry or annoyed.

Another trouble: Dreaminess. Explanation: A child must have some inner life; what we call dreaminess is sometimes just "being," sometimes an imagining time, and sometimes a time when very real thought is taking place. Witness some of the questions these children ask you about people, places, things, events, religion, life, and death. How do you think this inner life of the mind and spirit develops, if a child is always "on tap" for grownups, or always engaged in some pursuit that we think useful? Advice: Unless the so-called dreaminess reaches proportions where it interferes with a child's normal life of play and work and companionship, let him or her alone. At the same time see that their days have the balance of outdoors and physical activity, play and mental interests, and plenty of sleep and good food.

How can you amuse the convalescent child? What is the most difficult age? How may stubbornness be prevented? These and other problems are discussed in "You and Your Young Child," Mrs. Gladys Bevans' latest booklet, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 15 cents; postpaid, 18 cents.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

It goes without saying that most penalty doubles of low contracts should be based, at least partly, on strength in the opponents' trump suit. Even this generality, however, has its exceptions. Note the unorthodox, but decidedly shrewd, penalty double in the following hand:

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

NORTH
♠ A K 10 8 4
♥ 8 7 5
♦ K 6

WEST
♥ A J 9
♦ 10 7

EAST
♠ 6 3
♥ K Q 10 4 2
♦ 8 5 4
♣ A J 5

SOUTH
♠ 7
♥ 6 3
♦ A Q J 9 3 2
♣ K Q 4 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	2 hearts	3 diamonds	3 hearts
Pass	Pass	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

South's double of three hearts may shock some readers but, on analysis, it will be found that it was the best bid available. First, it must be remembered that this was match-point duplicate, in which penalty doubles should be considerably "closer" than at rubber bridge. At the latter game the double of less-than-game contracts must be highly conservative, since failure to defeat the contract results in giving the opponents a game. At match-point duplicate, however, a double is in order whenever the doubler feels reasonably sure of defeating the contract and, at the same time, can see no greater reward by going on with his own bidding. In this specific case South had the values for a diamond rebid but, he reasoned, what good would it do to bid four diamonds?

North had already announced, by his pass over three hearts, that he had no free rebid, hence it was an odds-on chance that he also would pass to four diamonds. South could not bid five by himself, nor be reasonably sure of making any game. Thus the most he could expect from offensive bidding was about 130 points. If the opponents could be defeated only one trick, this 130 points would be superior. But was a one trick defeat the reasonable expectation? South's singleton spade was a far better defensive feature than it would be if he were to play the hand. On a count of probable tricks South, without great optimism, could visualize two spade tricks, two diamonds, and two clubs; if he could make only one diamond trick, an extra club or a spade ruff might materialize. On top of all this reasoning there was the further ground for suspicion that the non-vulnerable opponents were "pushing." Surely they could hold very little except in the heart suit itself and, with East bidding and West raising, it was unlikely that either had extraordinary length in the suit.

On all of these considerations South's double was well calculated. Obviously it worked out beautifully. East, the declarer, found that he had to lose two spade tricks, two diamonds, and two clubs, and that the 300 points earned by North and South gave them an excellent match-point score.

Tomorrow's Hand.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

THE Kitchen Kibitzer

by MARIAN CARTER

A look over the shoulder of the kitchen manager in an attempt to speed, lighten and add some novelty to her daily routine.

Oh, that's a shame! The cake really DID fall, didn't it? I think you filled the pan too full, in the first place. It shouldn't ever be filled more than two-thirds full. There's got to be plenty of room for the batter to rise.

A cake will fall if you don't bake it quite long enough, too. Or if your oven is too slow. Or if you've not beaten the batter sufficiently.

• • •

Doughnuts will soak up the cooking fat and taste perfectly awful and greasy if you don't watch that temperature carefully. A deep fat thermometer is what you need. When it registers 350 degrees, you can start frying. But don't begin before!

• • •

What nice, fresh shrimps you have there, my dear! Since they were cooked when you bought them, they're ready to use. But they'll taste better in a cocktail if you marinate them in lemon juice and salt, or in a sharp, thin French dressing for a couple of hours.

• • •

Do you HAVE to peel those apples so thickly? You're wasting lots of good vitamins 'n' stuff. Be a bit more dainty, can't you now? There, that's much better!

Speaking of apples, why don't you leave the skins on those big Rome Beauties and bake them for dessert. Hollow out the center and fill with mincemeat. Or with chopped dates and nuts. And put some water in the baking pan. Sugar and butter on the apple if you like.

If you cannot obtain whipping cream for that completed chocolate pie, just cover the pie with about sixteen marshmallows cut in half, slip pie under broiler flame until golden brown and until marshmallows are soft, and you'll love this new way which is inexpensive and easy.

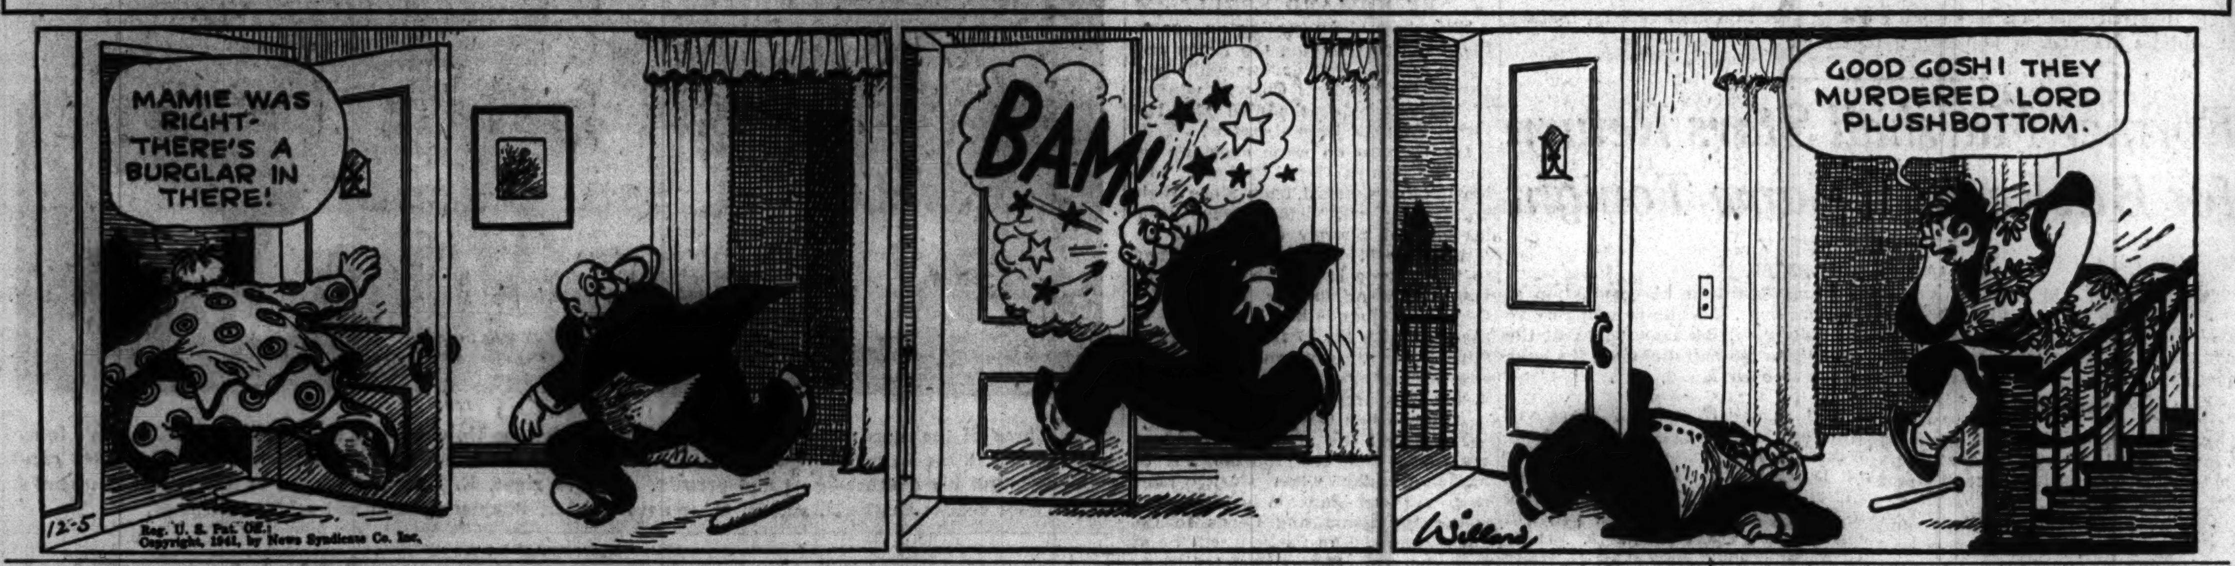
HAWKS WIN, 9-2; NEW SEASON SCORING RECORD

MOON MULLINS—A BIT PUT OUT



BOWLING BLOWS THE BUGLE FOR ITS BIG PARADE

All-Stars' Vanguard Assembles.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The setting for the All-Star bowling eliminations and national match game tournament took on a gayer appearance yesterday as the process of finishing the alleys, construction of the scoreboards, and decorating neared completion.

The event opens in the Coliseum at noon Sunday, runs daily for 13 hours thru Wednesday, then matches the 11 best among the nation's 70 top flight bowlers against one another on the closing four days. It is billed as the outstanding competitive event in bowling match game history and rapidly is shaping up as just that.

Bowling fans, many of whom had not seen the American Bowling congress tournament here in 1938, looked in on the setting yesterday. Bowling proprietors came, too, as did some of the All-Stars. Among the latter was James [Junie] McMahon of Lodi, N. J., who reached Chicago yesterday. McMahon, who has fired five perfect games, shot 1,980 for third place in the 1940 ABC tourney all-events, has an ABC all-time mark of more than 200, and is averaging 212 in four leagues this season. He is eager for the start of the tournament and is prepared to meet a Chicago All-Star or two while waiting.

Doubles Preview Today.

Gene Gagliardi of Los Angeles, who reported Wednesday, already has arranged a match. He will pair with Dr. Fred Robison of Danville, an All-Star alternate, against Bill Hargadon and Lloyd Strouse of Chicago in doubles tomorrow morning. The match will be rolled at Dearborn-Jackson recreation, starting at 11 o'clock.

Evidence of the tournament's appeal is seen in the interest it has aroused nationally. Radio broadcasting chains are to carry its highlights during the week. Newsreels are to film it and Pathe News is to make a full length—12 minute—sport short feature of it. The Pathe film will be made at one of the recreation centers, using All-Star bowlers to demonstrate their favorite shots.

Secretary Eddie Linsz of the Bowling Proprietors Association of America, which organization is coöperating with the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in sponsorship of the tournament, will reach Chicago tonight. He will meet with other members of the tournament committee for a last minute discussion of rules tonight or tomorrow. Bowlers are to be given their final instructions at a meeting at 10 o'clock Sunday.

A Big Week Ahead.

The tournament schedule provides for afternoon and evening sessions daily. During the first four days the afternoon sessions will open at 12 o'clock noon. Five squads of 10 All-Stars each will go on the alleys in succession, the last taking over at 5:20 and completing its five game assignment at 6:40. The evening program starts at 7:40, when the day's sixth squad of All-Stars bowls. At 9 o'clock Ned Day, match game champion, will meet Lowell Jackson, challenger, in a 10 game series, these four series constituting the final 40 game block of their 160 game title match. The day's last squad will start bowling at about 11:20.

The 11 best bowlers among the 70 All-Stars and the loser of the Day-Jackson event will battle it out the last four days, starting Thursday. Each man will meet every other man in the field in a five game match. The winner will be declared challenger for the match game title in 1942.

Here's the Price Scale.

Tickets are priced at $1.65 for box seats, $1.10 for reserved seats and 55 cents for general admission nights. Box seats for afternoon sessions sell at 85 cents and general admission is 55 cents. Special tickets admitting two women or two service men in uniform for 55 cents and others admitting high school bowlers carrying Bowlers Proprietors Association of Greater Chicago cards for 25 cents also will be available.

The general admissions and special tickets will be sold only at the gate. The few remaining box and reserved seat tickets for Sunday and those for Monday also will have to be obtained at the gate.

IT'S A STRIKE!

That happy phrase is significant to enthusiasts in three sports—baseball, bowling, and fishing. It will be heard again and again when the nation's outstanding bowlers gather in the Coliseum for the first annual All-Star bowling tournament starting Sunday and continuing thru Dec. 14. Will you be there? Choice seats still remain, but they are going rapidly. Don't waste a minute or you'll miss one of the greatest shows of the winter season. Prices:

Evening—Box Seats, $1.65
Other Reserved Seats, $1.10
Afternoon—Box Seats, 85 Cents

Make out your check or money order to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and mail it to the All-Star Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago. Or make reservations with your neighborhood bowling proprietor.

ONE of the features of the minor league meeting in Jacksonville, Fla., this week was a side trip to Ponce de Leon's fountain of youth in St. Augustine. . . . Baseball may take an option on the springs, it is said from sources that usually are reliable, if selective service makes too many inroads in the player ranks. . . . Jimmy Dykes, however, may go back on the active list without so much as a swig from Ponce's well. . . . X-rays have revealed, by the way, that Dykes' seven gallstones are perfectly matched gems. . . . Bob McChesney, Washington Redskin end who might have been world's heavyweight champion, plans to enter the vending machine business in the capital with an old Redskin teammate, Charlie Malone. . . . Lou Boudreau won't be a yes-man in Cleveland. . . . He disagreed with President Alva Bradley on several points during their first conference. . . . If you want to get into a spirited card game, show up in the top balcony at Chicago Stadium any night two hours before a Blackhawk hockey game.

Bernie Moore, Louisiana State football coach, rates Merle Hapes of Mississippi and Pete Layden of Texas the best backs he has seen this season. . . . Dr. Edward N. Anderson, Iowa's gridiron leader, says Wisconsin showed him the finest football he saw this fall in the first quarter of its game with the Hawkeyes. . . . Nick Kearns, veteran basketball official, says the Great Lakes Naval Training station has the best array of talent for its basketball team he ever has seen. . . . Folks are wondering if Hans Lobert will continue to wear a wristwatch while in uniform, now that he's manager of the Phillies. . . . It's all right for a Philly coach to be a clock watcher, but a manager can't show eagerness to get away from the ball park, or can he, if he's with the Phillies? . . . Cy Slapnicka, who has been replaced as vice president of the Indians by Roger Peckinpaugh, probably will land a job as scout for the Detroit Tigers. . . . Peckinpaugh's principal job will be to restore good will. . . . One Cleveland writer suggested he start by repainting League park and installing more water fountains.

Balance Your Books.

An old man and I were talking of death,
Of the quickness with which it strikes—
Taking one here, another there,
Reaping wherever it likes;
And this old man then said something
Which struck me with force and with might,
"There's only one way to be ready," he said,
"Balance your books every night."

Then he went on his way, I went on mine,
But the more I thought of that phrase,
The more did it seem like the perfect scheme
By which to plan all one's days;
The man who is wise is prepared for surprise,
His debits and credits are right,
Yes, there's only one way to be ready—
Balance your books every night!

A Penny Or Two.

Back would I travel swiftly today
The roadway of life in reverse—
Back to the age when I firmly believed
That a cent was a universe.

Down would I run thru my yesterdays
To where the fields were green,
Where my sole ambition was a penny or two
And work and worry unseen.

Again would I dash to the candy store
Where now a draft board stands;
Again would I roll my peppermint stick
To a point in my puerile hands.

This would I ask, if I had one wish
Which fate might permit to come true:
Back let me go to the days I could build
A world on a penny or two!

NEW CUB-GIANT DEAL BREWING; M'GEE INVOLVED

New York Club Officials Take Initiative.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 4.—The Giants and Cubs, who have provided the bulk of the trading fireworks at this rather uneventful annual session of the minor leagues, late tonight were plotting another deal, which is expected to involve Bill [Fiddler] McGee, right handed Giant pitcher.

General Manager Jim Gallagher of the Cubs, who thought his business in the marts was done with the transfer, early this morning, of Hank Leiber to the Giants in exchange for Pitcher Bob Bowman and cash, was surprised when Manager Mel Ott and General Manager Bill Terry called at his room and asked him to discuss another transaction. Rumor had it that McGee is the lad New York wants to peddle. Gallagher was packing his grip, preparatory to returning home for the opening of the major league convention in the Palmer House Tuesday, when the two Giant Harums called.

Hemsley Sold at Dawn.

Until the new powwow developed, the only deals of consequence reported was the Leiber-Bowman thing and the straight cash sale of Catcher Rollie Hemsley by the Cleveland Indians to the Cincinnati Reds. This one was announced at daybreak today.

Ott and Leiber, perhaps one of the most temperamental players in the majors, are close friends. Ott is said to have told Stoneham he was confident Leiber would be in the mood to exert himself spiritedly under the new managerial setup. There was no implication that Hank dogged it under Terry and later as a Cub, but he is the type that doesn't play well when unhappy. And folks Hank doesn't like make him unhappy.

They Know All About Hank.

The Giants took over the deed to Leiber with the full knowledge that he is a habitual holdout. Hank held out last season until weeks after the start of the season before signing for $14,000. He was out most of the latter half of the season as a result of being beaned by Cliff Melton.

The Leiber-Bowman swap was a complete surprise to Manager Jim Wilson, he said. He added nobody told him about it until it was over.

The White Sox delegation, excepting Prof. Muddy Ruel, fled the convention this morning, and the Cub coterie will depart tomorrow morning.

Reds Want Another Catcher.

During the day the Reds held a series of pow-wows. They are after another catcher, despite the day's addition of Hemsley.

The Hemsley deal came as a complete surprise because there had been no hint that the American league had waived on Hemsley and none of the Cincinnati officials had been seen conferring with Cleveland.

Hemsley, who has been considered one of the leading catchers of the major leagues, was with Cincinnati in 1933 as one chapter in a long baseball career. Apparently the deal was the first step in a move to smooth out turbulent elements among the Indians for the new manager, Lou Boudreau.

There were several conferences which were expected to bloom into swaps when the big shots get to Chicago. The astute Frankie Frisch of the Pirates continued hot on the trail of Hans Lobert, new Philly skipper, presumably in the hope of keeping warm the long discussed ambition to wangle the Philadelphia club out of Outfielder Danny Litwhiler and perhaps a pitcher or two.

Illinois Tech Seeks $1,000,000 for Gym; Opens Drive Today

A drive to raise one million dollars for a new fieldhouse and gymnasium will be opened this morning by nearly 13,000 students and faculty members of the Illinois Institute of Technology on the school's campus at 41 West 33d street.

Tomtoms, war cries and maybe even smoke signals will be used to assemble the student body for a snake dance leading into the auditorium, where war will be declared on present athletic facilities and plans made for modern ones.

Schommer Heads Campaign.

John Schommer, Illinois Tech athletic director, placement director, professor of industrial chemistry, and trustee, is the motivating force behind the drive. Schommer, who was graduated from the college [then known as Armour Institute of Technology] in 1912, has watched the student body increase from 700 day school student to almost 13,000, spread out among engineering, coöperative mechanical, postgraduate, special defense training and night school courses.

"The athletic facilities have not kept pace with this growth in enrollment," he explained yesterday. "In fact, they haven't kept pace with anything. The 50x60 foot bandbox gymnasium in which I played against the Central 'Y' in 1903 hasn't been improved with respect either to dimensions or facilities. We had eight showers in my playing days, and we still have them—when they're all working."

Intramural Program Planned.

Schommer stressed the fact that the new fieldhouse will be used to conduct a comprehensive intramural program in which every student of the institute will be required to participate. Moreover, he anticipates a resultant expansion in Illinois Tech's intercollegiate relations with the exception of football, which because of the curricular setup at the school and the amount of research and laboratory work required of all students, is beyond possibility.

"The new fieldhouse we are determined to get," Schommer said, "will be constructed for the use of the entire student body and faculty. It will have a swimming pool and will include facilities for squash rackets, handball, indoor tennis, indoor golf, basketball, softball—a game now played by about 800 of our students—and anything else we can find it will accommodate in the way of intramural sports.

Use Armory Now.

"We have been using the 108th Engineers' armory for our basketball games and the University of Chicago fieldhouse for track and the presentation of our Tech relays. Now we're going to try to bring everything home."

The Indian theme will feature the drive, Schommer said. The nickname of Illinois Tech's athletic teams is Braves, a fact to be stressed to students thruout the campaign.

Starting with today's snake dance and "council fire" in the auditorium, each "brave" will be asked to gather as many "scalps" as possible. "Scalps" is the term to be applied to dollar bills.

A million "scalps" constitutes a lot of hirsute foliage, but Schommer isn't worried. Says he:

"Let our braves bring those scalps in. We've got all the barbers we need to give them perfect care and put them to a final and collective good use."

Keeneland Retires Bonds, Gives University $9,000

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 4 (AP).—Directors of Keeneland association, owner of the nonprofit race course here, today voted to retire approximately $30,000 worth of the association's outstanding bonds and to donate $9,000 to the University of Kentucky. This action marked the first time since the track was organized six years ago that any of the bonds have been ordered retired and the donation to the university is the largest contribution the track has made.

Burleigh Grimes Appointed Manager of Toronto Club

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4 (AP).—Secretary Arthur Leman of Toronto's international league baseball team said tonight that Burleigh Grimes, veteran major league pitcher, had been named manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs for the 1942 season. Leman also announced that Toronto had reached a working agreement with the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National league.

BIG TEN MEETS TODAY; COACHES MAP SCHEDULES

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Athletic schedules for all sports of the collegiate year with the exception of basketball will be the main item on the agenda of the coaches during the meetings today and tomorrow of the Western conference in the Sherman hotel. Football coaches, directors of athletics, and the faculty committee of the conference also will meet.

The faculty members, who control the policies of the conference, will dine with the directors tonight at 6:30 o'clock in the University club. These same men and the alumni members of the conference corporation will have luncheon in the University club tomorrow noon. The faculty men will hold their business meeting tomorrow morning in the University club.

Members Are Listed.

Faculty members of the conference are: Karl E. Leib, Iowa, chairman; Frank E. Richart, Illinois, secretary; George A. Works, Chicago; William J. Moenkhaus, Indiana; Ralph W. Aigler, Michigan; Henry Rottschaefer, Minnesota; Walter K. Smart, Northwestern; Thomas E. French, Ohio State; G. A. Young, Purdue, and W. F. Lorenz, Wisconsin.

Frank G. McCormick, director of athletics at the University of Minnesota, is chairman of the directors group. The other members are T. Nelson Metcalf, Chicago; Doug Mills, Illinois; Z. G. Clevenger, Indiana; Ernest G. Schroeder, Iowa; Fritz Crisler, Michigan; K. L. Wilson, Northwestern; L. W. St. John, Ohio State; Mal Elward, Purdue, and Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin.

Conference schedules will be drawn for baseball, wrestling, track [indoor and outdoor], tennis, swimming, golf, fencing, and gymnastics.

Football Schedules All Set.

The meetings of the football coaches generally are a pleasant finale to the season just completed since football schedules are drawn at the annual spring meeting of the conference. However, the football coaches and directors must decide when they will resume schedule making.

Schedules now are drawn thru the 1944 season and the 1943 and 1944 years form an experimental program adopted in an effort to give all Big Nine football teams a representative home schedule. While the closing date, the Saturday before Thanksgiving, remains the same, each university will be permitted nine football games in 1943 and 1944, but if nine games are played, six must be scheduled with conference opponents.

Each conference team, under the plan, must have at least two home conference games. This benefits Purdue and Indiana primarily since, for several years, each of these universities has had one conference game at home and never more than two.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago Blackhawks last night resuscitated themselves from the sloughs of a three-game losing streak in a satisfactory, not to say amazing manner. You might even add, with the testimony of the 8,103 witnesses, that their 9 to 2 triumph over the Montreal Canadiens was achieved in a yawningly perfunctory fashion. It was that easy, thanks to five goals in the third period, of which one was a penalty shot by a defense man.

The Hawks' performance set a new season scoring high for the National Hockey league offensive statistics, the previous zenith being the eight scored twice by the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Brooklyn Six Is Next.

Their clientele went away trusting that the Chicago lads did not exhaust their fine scoring ability, to a point where they will permit the lowly Brooklyn Americans to outdo them in the Stadium Sunday night.

A paltry 1 to 0 lead at the end of the first period flourished into a 4 to 2 margin at the conclusion of the second. Came the third session, and the aforesaid five smashes at Goalie Bert Gardiner, one on the free chance by Defense Man Joe Cooper, and another by Douglas Bentley, for his third of the evening. And while accolades are being accorded to Joe and Doug, it might be well to state that the line of Bill Thoms, George Allen, and Bill Carse accounted for an aggregate goal-and-assist trio by themselves.

The alleged complexion of the match took on a decidedly Chicago tinge from the start of the first period. The Hawks were in on Mr. Gardiner rather early, so early and swift that it appeared the game would be decided via Chicago darts from the Montreal blue line.

Doug Opens the Assault.

Doug Bentley finally caused the scoring light to blink for the first time when he moved up to within the shores of the Canadiens' net to accept a collaborative maneuver by March and his brother Max for the first goal in the 17 minutes. Douglas Bentley counted his second goal of the night at the 83d second of the second period, it was that quick. The Hawk constituents were about to decide in rather smug fashion that this was one of their boys' evenings until Master Blake combined with Getliffe and Sands to make the score 2 to 1.

Enter the Thoms-Carse-Allen trio at this juncture. Bill delivered the third Hawk goal at 12:17. It required a mere 99 seconds for the same able bloc to score again, the honor going to Thoms.

The Record Falls.

Cooper finally got even by delivering the fifth Hawk goal. Joe had little trouble in eluding the frantic Gardiner and counted on a penalty try at 9:01.

Then came the deluge. Douglas Bentley, thanks to Brother Max, scored his third goal. Then Seibert, who had absorbed quite a verbal chastisement in last Sunday's licking by the Rangers, introduced himself with an unassisted goal. Came Dahlstrom in the 15th minute of the last period, with the help of Alex Kaleta and Phil Hergesheimer, to make the score 8 to 2. Thoms then broke the league high for the season on passes from Bill Carse and Allen in the 19th minute.

Tulsa Accepts Sun Bowl Football Game in El Paso

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 4 (AP).—Tulsa university has accepted an invitation to send its football team to the Sun bowl New Year's day, the Sun bowl committee reported tonight. Tulsa's opponent, representing the border conference, is expected to be either Arizona university or Texas Tech.

LINDBLOM FIVES ARE READY; WIN DOUBLE HEADER

Lindblom High school's junior and senior basketball teams are ready for the 1941-'42 campaign in the central section of the Public School league. The two teams scored victories over Harper with rallies in the second half of a pair of games which featured a heavy practice game program yesterday. The Lindblom juniors broke a 3 to 3 first period tie, then moved ahead at half time and remained in front to win, 23 to 19. The seniors scored 32 points in the second half while holding Harper to 16 and won, 43 to 36. Lineups:

Marshall Greets Former Athletes

Northwestern, Chicago, and Iowa always will remember Saul Farber (left), Solly Sherman (center), and Sid Rosenthal (right) because of their exploits on the basketball court and the football field. The three received their athletic starts at Marshall High and will return there tonight to participate in a basketball game against Marshall varsity, feature of athletic program in Marshall gymnasium.

Former Marshall Stars Return for Basketball Game Tonight

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Saul Farber, Sid Rosenthal, and Solly Sherman are going back to Marshall High tonight. The players, who distinguished themselves in Western conference athletics after leaving the school, will participate in a basketball game against the Marshall varsity, feature of a big program in honor of football and basketball stars in Marshall gymnasium, Adams street and Kedzie avenue.

Farber, Rosenthal, Sherman and other former Marshall athletes will be greeted by Head Basketball Coach Louis Weintraub, whose junior team has won two successive Public School league championships and is unbeaten in 38 games. The team which will oppose the famous alumni will be composed of Izzy Acker, who scored 450 points last season as a member of the junior quintet, and Len Brown, forwards; Seymour Bentcover and George Werner, guards, and Martin Tuchow, center.

Among those in the stands will be the members of the 1916 Marshall championship quintet. Sherman, who starred at the University of Chicago and later played with the Chicago Bears, will present the school's most valuable player trophy to Ed Bernstein, 194 pound guard on this season's football squad. Fauber, now head coach at Herzl Junior college, was an outstanding basketball player at Northwestern and Rosenthal starred at the University of Iowa.

St. Patrick's football team postponed the election of its most valuable player yesterday, but the boys will be rounded up today by Coach Francis [Bo] Cruisinier. . . . The two leading seniors on the squad this season were Capt. John Bottari, guard, and Ted Homosits, center. . . . The selection will complete the roster of 48 players eligible for the two Noble E. Kizer Memorial trophies. . . . Norb Neudorf, junior full back, has been elected captain of the 1942 De Paul academy eleven. . . . Neudorf also is president of the junior class. . . . George Nulf is the new coach at Fort Wayne North Side and will make his debut against La Porte tonight. . . . Kenny Vollmer, Amundsen half back and most valuable player, plans to enter the University of Minnesota after his graduation in February. . . . Vollmer will receive the Edward J. Banaker trophy at the Amundsen football dinner in the Lake Shore club on Jan. 9. . . .

Phil [Dutch] Durant, Wheaton's All-State half back, is the son of the former Illinois player. . . . The hobby of Dutch Junior is model airplane building. . . . Bill Becker, captain of Glenbard's football team, also will lead the basketball squad. . . . He is an honor student and plans to study law. . . . Joe Hoban, De Paul half back, will matriculate at Marquette university next September, following Bill Freewalt, the former Demon ball carrier who won the Noble Kizer Catholic league award last year. . . . Edward Brady has been voted the most valuable soccer player at Crane Tech. . . . Dick Yates, member of the Granite City quintet which won the state championship in 1939, will captain the Illinois college basketball squad this season. . . .

Izzy Acker, Marshall's star performer, will graduate in February and will attend the University of Michigan. . . . Don Raggio, New Trier's 16 year old All-State tackle, played every minute of the Proviso, Oak Park and Evanston games this season. . . . The 33 players elected to the All-State squad and their coaches will be the guests of the Champaign News-Gazette at a party tomorrow night. . . . The principal speeches will be delivered by Gov. Dwight H. Green and Pat Harmon. . . . John Rebuffoni of Pekin High led the 1941 individual football scoring race in the Big Twelve conference, with 42 points, eight more than Dick Squire of Champaign. . . . Doug Mills, Illinois athletic director, who watched the All-City game last Saturday, remarked the other day that Babe Baranowski, Leo's quarter back, was the best small athlete he has seen since Tippy Dye of Ohio State. . . . Jim Dugan, St. Philip guard last season, has joined the army. . . . Dwight Eddleman will lead his Centralia quintet against Urbana in one of the two games scheduled in Huff gymnasium, Champaign, tonight. . . . Paris will oppose Champaign in the other half of the double header. . . .

PACKERS TO TAKE A DAY OFF FOR BEAR-CARD DUEL

They Wouldn't Mind if the South Siders Triumph.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Well, how about casting an eye to the north and leaving the Bears and Cards to their own devices while preparing for Sunday's Chicago windup of the regularly scheduled 1941 National Football league season?

It's time to do some checking up on the Green Bay Packers, who haven't been heard from since their great comeback victory over Washington last Sunday after being behind, 17 to 0. The Packers returned to their home base with little or no fuss and went quietly to work for their anticipated No. 3 meeting of the year with the Bears a week from Sunday for the western division title and the right to play the Giants Dec. 21 for the league championship.

They'll See Bears and Cards.

Yesterday the Packers resumed practicing, but this routine will be broken Sunday when Curley Lambeau will lead his team to Chicago to watch the Bears and Cards in Comiskey park. The Packers will be at ease, because they completed their 11 game schedule a week early. Being the northernmost club in the league, they like to get off to an early start to dodge December's wintry blasts. Hence, this fine opportunity to study their prospective championship opponents at labor.

Three Packers encountered physical miseries in the Washington game and one of them, Russ Letlow, veteran guard, probably will be unable to play any more football this year. He has a separation of the Achilles tendon. Lou Brock, half back, suffered a broken rib, and Bill Lee, giant tackle, has a broken nose as a souvenir. The latter two will be available if there is a playoff game.

The Packers Are Pro-Card.

The Packers could be excused for giving the Cardinals a chance to knock off the Bears and thus eliminate the defending champions. Green Bay holds two victories this season over Jim Conzelman's red shirted youngsters, both gained only after the hardest sort of battling. In fact, the first one, in Milwaukee, had a Dick Merriwell flavor when Cecil Isbell passed to Brock for a touchdown to climax a last minute drive. This tied the score, 13 to 13, then Don Hutson kicked the point after touchdown for victory. In their second contest, the Packers won, 17 to 9, after the Cardinals had scored first.

Mount Carmel Wins, 32 to 22, Over Marshall

Marshall High school's senior basketball squad, runner-up for the Public School league title last spring, suffered its first defeat of the season last night at the hands of Mount Carmel, 32 to 22, in the Catholic leaguers' gymnasium. Mount Carmel led, 11 to 6, at the end of the first period and, 18 to 12, at the half. The Mount Carmel juniors also triumphed, defeating a team composed of CYO players, 30 to 13.

Kalamazoo to Face De Paul Five Tonight

The contest will be preceded by a game between the De Paul freshman squad and the Rantoul field team. The Rantoul five is composed of drafted ex-college stars who are stationed at Rantoul field, Ill.

Hapac in Lineup.

Its starting lineup includes Bill Hapac, former Illinois captain and Big Ten scoring champion; Dar Huctins, All-American from Bradley; Bob Menke of Indiana, George Ruehle of Michigan, and former De Paul Star Ted Skrodzki. The game will begin at 7.

The Blue Demons, who successfully opened their schedule with a 55 to 24 victory over Concordia last Wednesday, meet Kalamazoo in the renewal of an annual series. Last season De Paul won, 48 to 18.

Coach Warns Team.

Wendt named two sophomores to start tonight. He selected Tony Kelly, forward from Mount Carmel High school, to work with Jimmy Cominsky, and Guard Bill Ryan, another Mount Carmel graduate, to coöperate with Bob Wozny. The lineups:

DE PAUL.		KALAMAZOO.
Cominsky	F.	Kerchner
Kelly	F.	Stewart

RED WING GOAL IN FINAL MINUTE NIPS AMERICANS

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 4 (AP).—Modere Bruneteau's goal in the final minute of play enabled the Detroit Red Wings to win a see-saw National Hockey league battle tonight from the Brooklyn Americans, 4 to 3, before 6,179.

The victory, second over the Americans this season, gave the Red Wings undisputed possession of fifth place.

Egan Crashes Into Boards.

The free scoring contest was enlivened by a near-flurry of fisticuffs between Referee Bill Chadwick and Manager Mervyn [Red] Dutton of the Americans over the alleged failure of the official to call a penalty.

Shortly before the second period ended Pat Egan, Brooklyn defenseman, crashed head first into the boards and Dutton protested the failure of Referee Chadwick to call a penalty against the Red Wings. Dutton doubled his fist and stepped onto the ice, but the Americans' manager finally was quieted and spent the remainder of the game outside the arena.

$100 Fine Mandatory.

League rules specify the mandatory imposition of a $100 fine when a nonplaying official steps onto the ice to protest. Lineup:

CAMP GRANT AND MILWAUKEE DRAW IN LEAGUE CARD

Tribute Paid Memory of Wisconsin Sportsman.

BY FRANK MASTRO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 4.—Camp Grant and Milwaukee representatives battled to a 4 to 4 draw in a Chicagoland Amateur Boxing league show tonight in nearby West Allis High school gymnasium amid loud protests from the crowd which could be heard for blocks. Referee Louis Schultz's action in awarding Joey Krulitz, Milwaukee welterweight, a second round technical knockout victory over Arnold Thumlert of Camp Grant was responsible.

Altho Thumlert was sent to his knees twice in the second round, he was unharmed and asked to continue. An earlier decision also was disputed by Maj. Frank A. Bush, Camp Grant morale officer. This involved the fight between Ralph Lopez, Camp Grant lightweight, and John Vukovich of Milwaukee, which Referee Matt Cianciola gave to Vukovich on a third round technical knockout.

Tribute to Andrews.

Before the first bout Fred Zarkel, director of recreation for West Allis, asked the 750 spectators to stand with heads bowed for 10 seconds out of respect for the memory of Tom Andrews, veteran Milwaukee boxing authority and historian, who was buried today.

Results:

Western Capella, Camp Grant, won by default from Mike Barber, Milwaukee, 118.
Bob Matthews, Camp Grant, won by default, 155.
Andy Ivkovich, Milwaukee, beat Kirkland Pollacca, Camp Grant [3], 113.
John Vukovich, Milwaukee, stopped Ralph Lopez, Camp Grant [3], 136.
Jesse Swan, Camp Grant, stopped Ernie Schmidt, Milwaukee [3], 169.
John Peranich, Milwaukee, beat Pete Sickich, Camp Grant [3], 146.

IAC FACES MADISON

The Madison Athletic club will be searching for its first decision in a Chicagoland Amateur Boxing league match tonight in the Madison arena, 4711 Madison street, at the expense of the Illinois Athletic club's team. In two previous appearances the west side organization fought to a 4 to 4 draw with Fort Sheridan and lost to the Catholic Youth organization, 5 to 3.

However, the Madison club will be hard to beat tonight. Its representatives will include Johnny Mezzano, bantamweight; Matt Walton, featherweight; Matt Slobotnik and Nick Collias, middleweights; Zano Gailus, light heavyweight, and Pete Blouir, heavyweight. Alternates will be Jimmy Baratta, junior welterweight; Vince Pellegrini, lightweight; Pat Maloney and Buddy Ryan, welterweights, and Harry Tindell, middleweight.

8 YEAR OLD MARE WINS 5 GAITED PRIZE AT SHOW

Lucky Jacqueline Gains Close Decision.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Lucky Jacqueline, an 8 year old chestnut mare owned by E. F. Lukenbach of Sands Point, Long Island, and ridden by the owner's daughter, Mrs. William Dobbs, took first place in the $250 stake for five gaited saddle animals handled by amateurs in last night's program at the International Horse show.

The mare delivered a brilliant performance to gain a close decision over the veteran blue ribbon winner, King of the Highlands, which received a particularly capable and well judged ride under its owner, Irving F. Ellis of Chicago.

A Brilliant Struggle.

The struggle for the championship in the five gaited amateur division was one of the most brilliant of the evening. In most cases, the owners handled their own horses. Lucky Jacqueline was called upon to defeat an exceptionally large field of 20 rivals, including a number of highly regarded winners in previous evnts.

Her chief opposition had been expected to come from King of the Highlands and H. Leslie Atlass' High Tide. The latter had to be content with fourth place, the third prize going to Delaine Hours, owned and ridden by Hubert Silberman.

Tough for Judges.

The event for fine harness horses brought out some of the closest competition of the week. The judges were called upon to pick the best out of a field of 17. And it was a mighty tough job. Nearly every one of the contenders moved with the perfection of finely geared mechanism, yet each had an individual spirit and dash to spice the performance.

It was so difficult to make a choice that the event ran far over its allotted time. It was necessary to excuse half the field after the competition had been condensed. And still the leading candidates were called out again and again to step smartly around the ring while the others were grouped in the center.

Kalarama Colonel Wins.

HARNESS PONIES [other than Shetland]—Won by Little Judy [Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Flanery]; Fleetwood Reveler [Heyl Pony farm], second; Stonehedge Rio [Hawthorn farm stables], third.

FINE HARNESS HORSES [3 year old class]—Won by Kalarama Colonel [Grasslands farms]; Kalarama Sweetheart [Lanham and Hollis], second; Black Walnut [H. C. Barham & Son], third.

HARNESS HORSES [for best gig horse, hitched to gig]—Won by Honeysuckle Rose [Dodge stables]; Wensekeydale Wildfire [Hawthorn farm stables], second; Vindication [Argyll stables], third.

DRAFT HORSES [Four horse team]—Won by Bob-Geordie-Sir James-Warrior, [Anheuser Busch, Inc.], Mark-Craigie-Cedric-Earl [Wilson and company], second; Peach-Haxton, June-Duke, [Hawthorn Melody farms], third.

AMATEUR CLASS [Hunters or Jumpers]—Won by Hickory Grove, Hasty House farms; Wings of the Morning, Maurice Roberts, second; Shadrack, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Mohlman, third.

ROADSTERS [shown to road or speed wagon]—Won by Savage Sailor H. C. Barham and Son]; Easter Belle [The Dodge stables], second; On Parade [Dr. R. A. Kidd Jr.], third.

$250 AMATEUR STAKES, FIVE GAITS—Won by Lucky Jacqueline [E. F. Lukenbach]; King of the Highlands [Irving F. Ellis], second; Delaine Hours [Delaine farms], third.

HARNESS HORSES [three horse, 14 hands 2 inches or over]—Won by Wensleydale Pilot, Wensleydale Wild Fire and Knockvicar Domino, Hawthorne Farm Stables; Distinction, Declaration, and Vindication, Argyll Stables, second; Royal Mistress, Duke of Windsor, and Pride of Onway, Happy Way Farm, third.

$1,000 CHAMPION JUMPER STAKE—Won by White Oak, George Sadlier; Emperor, Mr. and Mrs. John A. McGuire, second; Escalator, Horace M. Hardy, third.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Kai-Min, $4.80 straight, $4.40 place, $3.60 show; Palkin, $4.40 place, $3.40 show; Bull Terrier, $4.60 show.

KAI-MIN, well reserved behind pace of PALKIN, went to lead when asked but was kept to intermittent punishment when PALKIN came again in final eighth. The latter took lead soon after start, gave way to winner after five-eighths, responded to pressure thereafter and held on gamely. BULL TERRIER was allowed to race on own courage early and then came with a belated rush. MR. JIMMIE had no excuse. ASTERISK had brief speed.

SEVENTH RACE—Purse $600. Four year olds and up. Mile and an eighth. Start good. Won driving, place same. Went to post at 4:35. At post 1¼ minutes. Winner, b. f., 4, by Blackwood-Miss Marr, by Transmute. Owner-trainer, M. B. Goss. Net value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:54 3-5.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Barograph, $15.80 straight, $8.00 place, $9.40 show; Residue, $10.80 place, $5.80 show; Repeller, $4.00 show.

BAROGRAPH, in thick of contention from start, took command over SELF STARTER approaching stretch and was kept to pressure to stave off closing bid of RESIDUE. Latter saved ground for half, came out to improve position with rush, bore out in stretch turn, and finished in center of track. REPELLER was steadied when in close quarters early, responded when placed to drive, and closed with good energy. SAY JUDGE was distant trailer early and closed with bold rush. SELF STARTER tired at end. GROUCHER'S BOY stopped. AMMON had early speed, then weakened.

RECORD FIELD OF 111 IS NAMED FOR ANITA RACE

Whirlaway Tops Entries for $100,000 Handicap.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 4 (AP).—The name of Whirlaway led all the rest today as a record number of nominations was announced for the richest horse race in the world—the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap.

A brilliant field of 111 candidates—and there might be a few more in mail yet to reach Santa Anita—was nominated for the eighth running of the mile and one-quarter race on March 7.

A Fancy Array.

Rated behind Warren Wright's triple crown winner, Whirlaway, was a fancy array of stake contenders for what might be the finest field to go postward in the annual golden gallop.

Included in the field of soon-to-be-4-year-olds were several of Whirlaway's rivals—Market Wise, Porter's Cap, Staretor, Dispose, Good Turn, Our Boots, Tragic Ending, and others.

In the older division were such campaigners as Charles S. Howard's Mioland, William L. Brann's Challedon, Pictor, Haltal, Boysy, Sweepida, Bolingbroke, and Specify.

Previous High in 1939.

Previous high number of nominations was in 1939, when 107 were listed. That was the year Howard's Kayak II., now out with injuries, captured the top purse.

All important weights for the handicap will be posted by Racing Secretary Webb Everett Dec. 15. The Santa Anita 55 day meeting, with the largest distribution of purses in the history of its fabulous life—something like one million dollars—gets under way Dec. 31.

Errickson Succeeds Holm as Director at Washburn

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 4 (AP).—Charles [Dee] Errickson today succeeded Elmer [Gus] Holm as director of athletics at Washburn university. Holm, who also coached football, resigned recently to enter the insurance business. Errickson, basketball coach for the last five years, indicated his first move would be the selection of a new football coach. Washburn officials said the university had made application for reëntry into the Central conference, composed of Kansas colleges, which it left in 1934 for a brief fling in Missouri Valley competition.

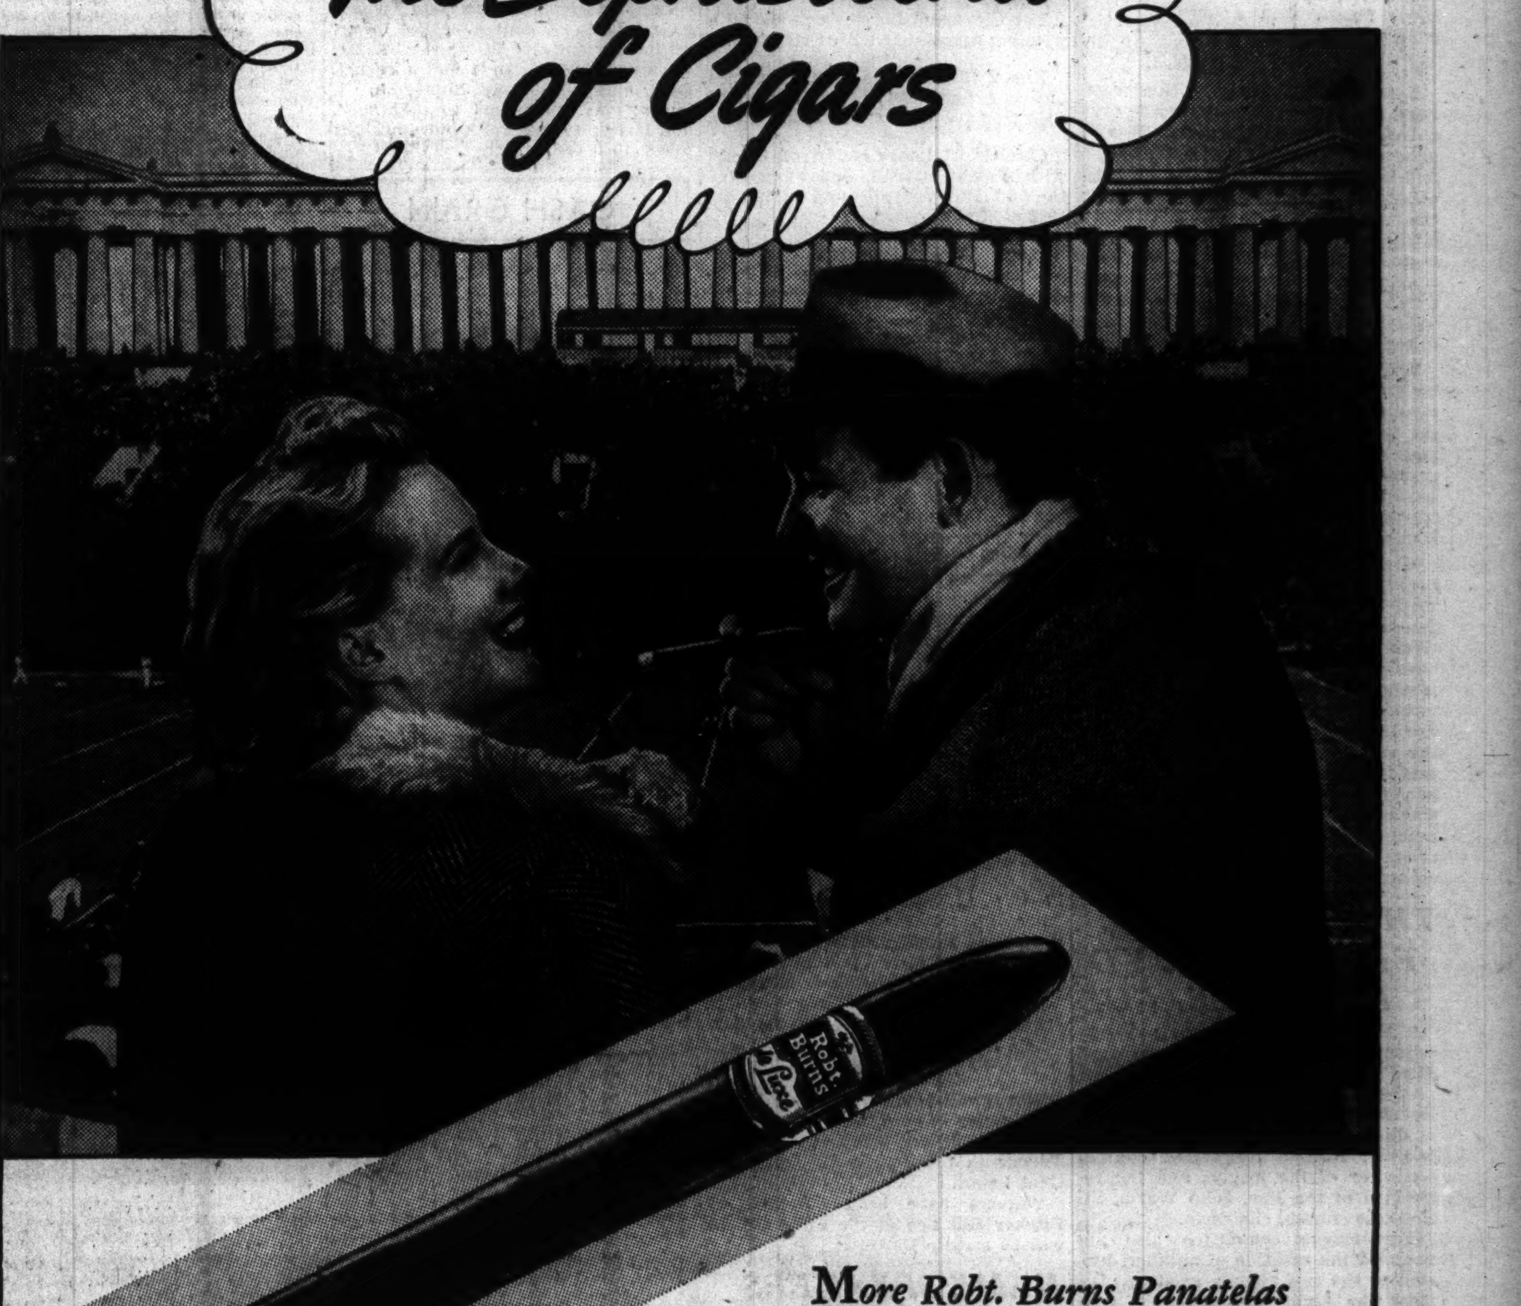
The World's Leading Panatela



More Robt. Burns Panatelas have Been Smoked than All Other High Grade Panatelas Combined!

IN DAYS when cigars were often thick and clumsy, the Robt. Burns Panatela de Luxe set a new fashion in men's smoking—the long, graceful, streamlined cigar. It caught on at once, notably with men having a regard to appearance. Today the popularity of the panatela shape is an important factor in the growing consumption of cigars. Robt. Burns Panatelas de Luxe are the answer. Leading panatela at the start, it is still first and foremost.

Ask the man who knows the right answers, and he will tell you that this trim, shapely cigar, known as "The Sophistocrat", is correct in the social scene. Ask any smoker of superfine cigars, and he will tell you it tastes as good as it looks. It is delicious with the imported flavor of its 100% all-Havana filler, slowly, expertly, perfectly cured. It has abundant richness, yet it is ultra-mild, free from the kick-back of heady tobaccos.

Amidst a growing flock of panatelas, demand "The Sophistocrat" and smoke the world's leading panatela, the panatela at its best.

HEYLIGER SEES BIG FUTURE FOR COLLEGE HOCKEY

Illini Coach Says It May Rival Golf.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Those New Englanders talk fast and sharply—and, come to think of it, that's the way they play ice hockey. A sample of same was displayed yestesday noon on the first count, when a dark haired, 28 year old Yankee, Victor Heyliger by name, expounded his idea that intercollegiate hockey is rapidly approaching the national status that campus golf has attained.

Mr. Heyliger should have an inkling about these matters. On the evening of Dec. 22 he will bring the University of Illinois to the Chicago Arena to battle the Dartmouth college sextet in the first major modern shinny game ever played in our town.

Knows His Coaching.

Mr. Heyliger is not acting as a mere monitor or guide. He knows whereof he coaches. Vic, a native of Boston, who dwelt later in the great hockey hotbeds of Melrose and Concord, Mass., played a spot of hockey for the University of Michigan. It was such a spot that he worked at center for the Wolverines and set a conference mark of 49 points for a single season. That record stood until last year, when one of Victor's own pupils, Norbert Sterle, now with the Chicago Blackhawks' Kansas City farm, added 20 points to the Heyliger total for 69 and the satisfaction of his coach.

Vic himself might well have stayed with the Hawks except for a streptococcic infection which forced him out of competitive hockey. He returned to Michigan to work on a master's degree, helped coach hockey and baseball at his alma mater, and then became head coach of hockey at Illinois, where the facilities for the ice game are among the finest in the country.

This is only the fourth year for hockey as a varsity sport on the Illini campus, yet they have established themselves as national champions since the arrival of Heyliger. Vic's first team, composed of downstate kids who never had done more than skate clamp style on their home town ponds, won a measly three games.

Compiles Great Record.

Last year, the Heyliger Illini compiled one of the greatest records ever submitted by a hockey team. In a 21 game campaign, they won 17, lost 3, and tied one. They won the Western conference championship, and while their two losses to Southern California on the Pacific coast caused them to be ranked as mythical co-champions, a number of the teams which Illinois defeated easily on the western tour turned around and licked the Trojans.

While Heyliger is anticipating a battle from Dartmouth on the 22d, in view of a plethora of sophomores by the Green, Jack Manley of the Arena and his associates are expecting a crowded house in which all box seats have been exhausted. This may well be attributed to the plentitude of Dartmouth alumni in these parts.

The present Big Ten set up in ice hockey, Heyliger pointed out, might soon have many a neighbor. Michigan and Minnesota are the only rivals at the moment, but a band of ice-minded young men from Purdue journeyed to Champaign for several games last season, then returned to the Indianapolis Capitols' rink to try the game themselves. Vic yesterday said that Wisconsin, an outdoor member of the conference in the old days when winter was winter, may soon build a rink, and that Ohio State already has blueprints ready for the construction of one.

THREE POSTS ARE FILLED IN CYO BASKET LEAGUE

Three posts in the Catholic Youth organization's Basketball league were filled yesterday by the CYO basketball committee with the election of the Rev. John Cashman, St. Agatha church, as director of referees; the Rev. John Mackin, Blessed Sacrament church, treasurer of the league, and the reelection of the Rev. John Walsh, St. Felicitas church, chairman.

The league committee also announced the addition of another division to the two already existing. Besides the junior and senior, a prep division has been added for boys 16 years old and under who are not attending grammar school.

Only one minor amendment of the league rules was made by the committee. In addition to the 5 foot 8 inch height rule in the junior division, competition is also restricted to players 21 years old and under.

Team entries for the league close tomorrow. Play will begin Dec. 14 and will continue on successive Sundays to Feb. 22.

Deals, Rumors Make News at Minor Meeting

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP).—Following is a resumé of player deals and other activities at today's final session of the minor league convention:

FACTS.

Van Lingle Mungo, one-time pitching star of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Catcher Angelo Giuliani were traded by Montreal to Minneapolis for Pitcher Joe Hatten.

Charles Chute, outfielder, and Elmer Kirkoff, shortstop, of West Palm Beach in the Florida East Coast league were sold to St. Paul in the American association.

Elmer Riddle, who won 19 games and lost four last season, agreed to 1942 terms with the Cincinnati Reds.

Catcher Al Lopez conferred briefly with President Bill Benswanger of the Pittsburgh Pirates and signed his 1942 contract.

The American association extended the contract of President George M. Trautman one year and adopted a 154 game schedule. Trautman's contract did not expire until Jan. 1, 1944. He has been president of the association since Jan. 1, 1936. The schedule opens April 15 with Columbus at Indianapolis, Toledo at Louisville, Minneapolis at Kansas City, and St. Paul at Milwaukee. The second openings will be a week later with the same lineup but swapping home parks. The season closes Labor day.

The Detroit Tigers assigned Outfielder George Stainback and Infielder Boyd Perry to Kansas City, completing payment for Shortstop Bill Hitchcock.

Oklahoma City made three deals. The club obtained four players and disposed of three in the transactions which followed the signing of Homer Peel, acting manager part of last season, as playing manager for 1942. Pitcher Al Fisher was traded to Knoxville for First Baseman Alex Hooks and Pitcher Jennings Poindexter, a left hander. Bud Hafey, outfielder, was purchased from Memphis. The Indians sold Pitcher Sheldon Jones to Jersey City of the International league.

RUMORS.

White Sox will trade Catcher Tom Turner to the Tigers for Outfielder Chet Laabs.

Waivers have been obtained on Pitcher Bill Lee of the Cubs and he will be sold to Detroit.

NAME SPEAKERS FOR ANNUAL N. U. GRIDIRON DINNER

Northwestern university's 1941 football team will be honored by 1,500 alumni and guests at the annual dinner of the Northwestern University club of Chicago in the Sherman hotel tomorrow evening.

Lieut. Com. Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion now engaged in a physical fitness program for the United States navy, will give the principal address. Other speakers include Franklyn B. Snyder, president of Northwestern university; Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, Athletic director K. L. Wilson, and Coach Lynn Waldorf. Letters and numerals will be presented to members of the varsity and freshman squads, who will be the guests of honor. Next year's football captain and the most valuable player for the 1941 season will be announced at the dinner. The latter will become a candidate for the trophy awarded by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to the player in the Western conference regarded most valuable to his team.

FARMERS CHANGE PLANS FOR NEXT YEAR'S PLANTING

Many Desert Wheat, Corn for Soy Beans.

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

The nation's farmers contemplate vast changes in their farming practices in 1942 because of the government's loan program, the war and the poor farming weather that has prevailed this fall, agriculturalists reported yesterday. The changes will be particularly noticeable in Illinois and other midwestern states.

Instead of planting large crops of wheat, corn and oats and fattening large herds of beef cattle, the farmers indicate they will increase their production of hogs, poultry and dairy products and plant a much larger part of their farms in soy beans. They have been getting around $1.60 a bushel for soy beans recently, and if trouble develops in the Pacific, shutting off imports of fats and oils, an even larger demand is expected next year.

Little Wheat Yet Planted.

Charles Hunter, senior administrator for the Commodity Credit corporation in Chicago, said after a trip thru Illinois and Missouri that he believed that little more than 25 per cent of the winter wheat had been planted and that instead of farmers going ahead and seeding the rest of their intended acreage in wheat, they would plant soy beans. Much of the land taken out of wheat production to keep within crop allotments is expected to be planted to beans.

The wet weather has held up plowing of the spring wheat lands of the northwest, and where beans will grow farmers will plant them, many say. As a result, soy bean production in 1942 is expected to establish a new record. Thus a crop that was almost unknown 20 years ago and has become one of great industrial importance, will be given even greater recognition.

Beans Up as Rains Spread.

As rain and snow spread over the midwest yesterday and threatened to halt harvesting of soy beans and corn once more, the bean futures market advanced around 3½ cents a bushel before profit taking shaved gains. The market closed 1 to 1⅛ cents a bushel higher with beans for delivery next May on futures contracts quoted at $1.72⅝ a bushel.

In the futures markets wheat closed ¼ to ⅝ cent a bushel lower, selling for delivery in May at $1.22¾. Corn was down ¼ to ⅝ cent a bushel. Oats closed ⅝ cent higher to ⅛ lower; rye, unchanged to ⅛ higher, and lard, 2½ cents per hundredweight lower to 5 cents higher.

NEW IDEA, INC.

Have the earnings of New Idea, whose stock is on the New York Curb exchange, reflected the improvement in agricultural income? Where and how are its products distributed?—C. W. L.

Answer: New Idea, Inc., manufacturer of farm implements and equipment, had net income of $721,357, equal to $2.65 a common share, for the nine months thru last September. This exceeded the net income for the full year of 1940 and compares with $571,333, or $2.10 a share, for the first three quarters of that year. Results for years ended Dec. 31 follow:

1940	$5,268,151	$719,328	$2.64
1939	4,006,935	593,328	2.18
1938	4,344,735	670,534	2.47
1937	5,107,376	756,697	2.78
1936	3,660,686	557,748	*37.18

*Before 15 for 1 stock split.

Products are sold thru retail dealers in the central and eastern states and some sales are made in the south and on the Pacific coast thru a few large distributors. General distribution is made thru branch warehouses.

The only capitalization is 272,000 no par common shares. Dividends have been paid regularly in recent years in varying amounts.

NO CERTIFICATE.

I recently purchased some railroad stock on a "when issued" basis and paid a broker the full amount. I have not received a certificate for the stock. Is anything wrong?—V. E. W.

Answer: Because the stock was sold "when issued," you would not receive a certificate. You should have received a receipt from the broker for the money you paid. When the stock is issued, however, you should be given a certificate for the shares involved.

TEN YEAR CONVERTIBLE.

I would like to know the meaning of the "ten year" in National Supply company's $2 ten year cumulative convertible preference stock. Is this stock in arrears?—W. R. S.

Answer: This stock is automatically convertible into common stock, share for share, on Oct. 1, 1947. Since it was issued in 1937, it is convertible after a period of 10 years. The preference stock, which has a $2 cumulative annual dividend rate, was in arrears $5.50 a share at the end of last June.

PREDICTS PLANE GOAL OF 50,000 BY NEXT YEAR

Schedule Originally Set for Nation in 1945.

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—The American aircraft industry has "every reason to believe" that an annual production of 50,000 planes—the number suggested by President Roosevelt last year—will be reached in 1942.

If this forecast, made today by John H. Jouett, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, is realized next year, the industry will be three years ahead of the schedule estimated in 1940 by T. P. Wright, now assistant chief of the aircraft branch of the Office for Emergency Management. Wright predicted the 50,000 annual goal would be reached by July, 1945.

The industry in 1941 will produce nearly 20,000 planes, Jouett said, and will be called upon to turn out nearly 100,000 warplanes during the next two years. These planes, he asserted, "will prove to be, beyond any question, the deciding factor in this war."

His estimate of aircraft engine horse power output each month was equivalent to that needed for 1,000 heavy, four engine bombers or for 3,000 to 6,000 single engine or multi-engine pursuit interceptors.

He disclosed that aircraft plant employment had risen from 193,000 a year ago to 390,000. Pay rolls are expected to surpass 500,000 persons before the current expansion program is completed.

NOVEMBER SALES TAX COLLECTIONS DECLINE $500,000

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 4 (AP).—Finance Director George B. McKibbin reported today that 2 per cent sales tax collections during November totaled $7,079,719, a reduction of nearly $500,000 from October collections.

McKibbin said that last month's collections, reflecting retail sales in October, indicated that buying continued larger than in the fall of 1940, however. Collections in November, 1940, when the tax was levied at the rate of 3 per cent, totaled $8,653,468.

Cigaret tax collections totaled $971,648 last month, compared with $1,208,784 in October; liquor taxes $1,931,678, against $1,727,859, and oil production taxes $519,988, compared with $503,289 in October.

LAND PURCHASED BY UNITED NEAR CHICAGO AIRPORT

United Air Lines Transport corporation yesterday bought two parcels of land from the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, containing 85,324 square feet, at the northeast corner of Keating avenue and 60th street and at the southeast corner of Cicero avenue and 59th street, for $33,280.

The property was bought to round out the company's realty holdings and will not be improved at present.

IBA MEETING STIRRED BY SEC, CONNELY CLASH

Eicher Says Banker Harms 'Unity.'

BY THOMAS FURLONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Fla., Dec. 4.—The convention of the Investment Bankers association was stirred up today by a lively exchange of verbal swaps by the president of the organization and the chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission.

Edward C. Eicher.

SEC Chairman Edward C. Eicher, here to address the convention, started the row when he described the Investment Bankers as "calamity howlers" who are preventing national unity by failing to support the administration.

Eicher was irked by the tone of the speeches which had been delivered at the convention earlier this week and in particular by the address made last Monday by Emmett F. Connely, president of the IBA. He had come to the convention with a speech that had been written in Washington before Connely spoke.

Tells Reporters His Views.

After reading this speech to the convention, in which he stressed the new spirit of coöperation between the SEC and the bankers, Eicher was interviewed by newsmen and gave vent to his other feelings about the IBA.

"Connely is not helping national unity by preaching a philosophy of despair," Eicher asserted. "The investment bankers will never get anywhere by bellyaching. When they are able to develop a mechanism which is capable of siphoning the savings of small investors into productive enterprise there will be no necessity for the manifold lending activities of the government about which the IBA is complaining. Until then they can expect more encroachment, not less, from the government.

"Just so there will not be any doubt about it, let me say quite simply that we are going to marshal labor and capital and industry to do this job of defeating Hitler to whatever extent and for just as long as it may take to do that job, just as we are marshaling young men into our military service. If that is an encroachment on free enterprise during the period, it is just too bad."

Eicher Becomes Sarcastic.

Eicher referred scornfully to a phase used earlier by Connely who had charged that the SEC had forgotten the interests of "widows and orphans" in its manifold regulations of security underwriting and distribution.

Connely had pointed out that because of the competitive bidding enforced by the SEC on certain types of securities, high grade investments were being gobbled up by insurance companies and other large investors.

Eicher said in a sarcastic vein that he was happy that the investment bankers had taken the "widows and orphans under their wing." He then presented figures in an effort to refute the statement that compulsory competitive bidding for securities is freezing out the small investors.

When informed of Eicher's statement to newsmen, Connely reiterated his earlier charges that certain individuals within the administration are seeking to extend the government's control of business and industry to advance their own social theories and not for reasons of defense.

Connely Defines IBA Stand.

"We do not object to emergency controls if they are genuine emergency controls," Connely said. "I want to underline emergency because the controls should be so designed that they can be relinquished as soon as the emergency is over.

"It is no secret," he added, "that there are some of the economic planners in Washington who think that this is the opportunity to make these controls permanent and thus a means of irrevocably adopting totalitarianism.

"Legitimate investment banking is far more interested in protecting its customers than any governmental agency can possibly be. This fact often escapes the attention of members of the SEC. In their zeal to apprehend the fly by night crooks they forget that 99.44 per cent of the people in this business have been in it for a long time and can only stay in it because they have the confidence of investors."

Denies Plan to Prolong Rule.

Eicher had told newspaper men that it was unfair to charge that the administration seeks permanent controls over business even tho there are radicals within the ranks of the administration.

"When the first World war ended the emergency controls were relinquished and I think subsequent events proved that they were taken off too rapidly. This time we should not make the same mistake. However, there is no reason for people to fear that the emergency controls will be retained permanently."

Eicher's outburst was received frigidly by the IBA officials and delegates. They observed that the invitation extended to Eicher was made as a matter of courtesy.

The whole incident promises to mar the efforts of certain elements within the investment business who have sought to cultivate better relations with the SEC.

The convention will wind up today with the installation of John S. Fleek of Cleveland as president of the association.

Radio Stations Reclassified by U. S. Agency

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Counsel for the Federal Communications commission reduced by 49 today the number of broadcast stations classified by the FCC as having newspaper connections, but the newspaper radio committee protested that this reduction was inadequate.

As the FCC resumed hearings in its inquiry into newspaper-radio relationships, Eugene Cotton, commission counsel, presented a new exhibit, "showing newspaper interest in 249 standard broadcast stations," as of June 30, 1941. An earlier exhibit, withdrawn today, had listed 298 such stations.

Inaccurate, Says Hough.

Harold Hough of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, chairman of the newspaper-radio committee organized to oppose any curbs on future acquisition of broadcast stations by newspaper interests, said he did not think the new exhibit represented the situation accurately because it included stations in which newspapers and persons connected with newspapers held less than voting control.

The exhibit divided the 249 stations into A and B groups.

Of the 201 A stations, 59 per licensed to newspapers, and in 55 other stations, newspapers held at least 50 per cent of the stock. In 13 stations at least 50 per cent of the stock was owned by a combination of the interest of the newspapers and of their executives, stockholders, or employés, while in 74 stations at least 50 per cent of the stock was owned by executives, stockholders, or employés of a newspaper.

Other Stations Classified.

In the class B stations no newspaper interest or a combination of the interest of the newspaper and executives, stockholders, and employés was as much as 50 per cent in any of the 48 stations listed.

"Group B," Hough said, "is a list of stations where the newspaper interest is such a minority interest that the newspaper has no control over operations. I don't know why they should be classed as newspaper stations. I think they should have taken out the B stations when they took ou the 49 others."

TRUSTEES DENY ASSOCIATED GAS ISSUES ARE VOID

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Denis J. Driscoll and Willard L. Thorp, trustees of the Associated Gas and Electric corporation, said in a statement today that testimony given yesterday in federal court did not tend to establish that the corporation's securities were void and that holders of the fixed interest securities of Associated Gas and Electric company, parent concern, held priority over assets of the corporation.

In an A. G. E. reorganization hearing Albert Osborn, handwriting expert, had testified that minutes of directors' meetings of subsidiary companies which made possible the creation of the Associated Gas and Electric corporation and the transfer of the corporation's stock were fictitious and written several years after the meetings supposedly were held.

Driscoll and Thorp said: "Any interpretation of Osborn's testimony is inaccurate, incomplete, and misleading, as would be almost any interpretation of an isolated part of evidence in any proceeding."

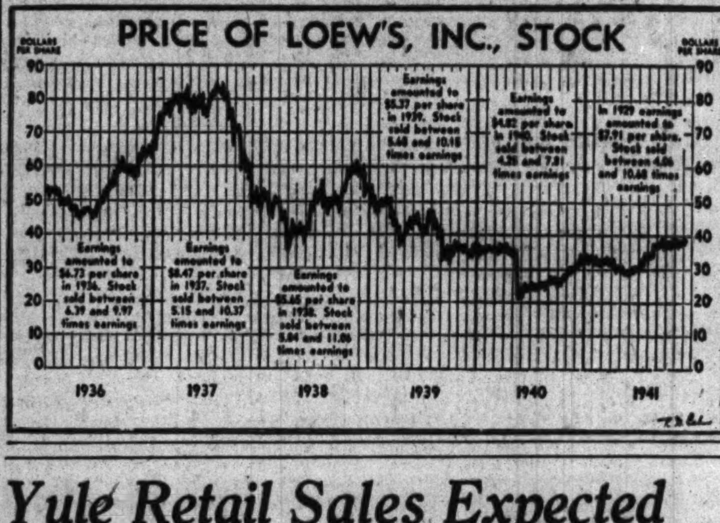
People and Events

Fred W. Niemann and George Bauer were elected president and vice president, respectively, of the Chicago Furniture Manufacturers' association at the organization's 53d annual meeting last night. Niemann is president of Niemann, Inc., and Bauer is vice president of the Doestch & Bauer company.

Leo J. Simon, San Francisco, Cal., yesterday was elected president of the National Association of Bedding Manufacturers at the close of its 26th annual convention in the Stevens hotel. Homer Lundeberg, Cicero, Ill., and Henry Brandwein, Chicago, were elected trustees.

J. H. Ottmannas has been appointed manager of the Chicago office of the Bank of Montreal. He succeeds Angus MacPherson, who will become superintendent of the bank's branches in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, with headquarters in Winnipeg.

O. M. Mosier, vice president of American Airlines, Inc., has been elected a director of the company.



Yule Retail Sales Expected to Reach Record 5½ Billions

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—The commerce department today estimated that Christmas retail sales this year would set a record of approximately $5,500,000,000.

The department added, however, that about half the increase represented merely higher prices and guessed that the increase in actual units sold will be about five per cent.

"Enhanced income," the department said, "and the prospects immediately ahead are the major factors influencing the expansion in consumer purchasing this year. Income payments [wages, dividends, etc.] to individuals for the final quarter of the year will be about 18 per cent higher than in the corresponding quarter of last year.

"Not only has employment increased by more than 3,000,000 persons, but higher wage rates and longer hours have swelled total salaries and wages to an estimated $60,000,000,000 [for the year]—more than one-fifth larger than last year."

The department added that farm income also is higher and that increased business profits are causing higher dividend payments to investors.

This year's holiday trade also is expected to exceed the 1929 trade by 15 per cent.

Chicago Sales Up

Department store sales in Chicago and the 7th federal reserve district advanced sharply last week under the impetus of Christmas buying, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday.

District sales were 33 per cent ahead of the preceding week, which included the Thanksgiving holiday, and 15 per cent above the corresponding week last year. Chicago sales were up 34 per cent from the preceding week and 12 per cent from last year.

For the four weeks ended Nov. 29, in comparison with a year ago, Chicago sales were up 8 per cent and district sales 12 per cent.

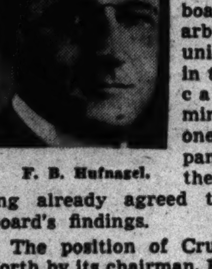
LAST OF STEEL MAKERS AGREE ON COAL ACTION

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Crucible Steel company of America announced tonight it had "decided to accept as binding," the decision of President Roosevelt's three-man board which is arbitrating the union shop issue in the case of the captive coal mines. Crucible is one of nine companies involved, the others having already agreed to accept the board's findings.



F. B. Hufnagel.

The position of Crucible was set forth by its chairman, F. B. Hufnagel, in a letter to Dr. John R. Steelman, chairman of the coal board, which is in recess until Saturday.

Hufnagel said the company had decided to accept the board's decision "regardless of the convictions of those responsible for the management of Crucible Steel on the subject of compulsory unionism."

FREIGHT TRAFFIC IS HIGHEST FOR WEEK SINCE 1929

Reaching the highest total for any corresponding week since 1929, revenue freight loadings by railroads during the week ended Nov. 29 advanced to 866,189 cars, an increase of 66,803 cars, or 8.4 per cent, over the preceding holiday shortened week, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

Last week's increase in traffic was considered more than the normal seasonal rise following the Thanksgiving holiday. The total has been exceeded in a corresponding week only five times during the last 20 years. Shipments increased 137,664 cars, or 18.9 per cent, over the same 1940 week.

Large Building Awards Decline Below Year Ago

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Heavy engineering awards declined this week to $93,488,000, about 15 per cent below both the preceding week and a year ago, Engineering News-Record reported today. A slump in private contracts was mainly responsible.

MORGENTHAU SAYS TREASURY BONDS ARE SUBSCRIBED QUICKLY

Washington, Dec. 4 (AP).—Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr. tonight announced quick oversubscription of the treasury's near record 1½ billion dollar bond sale, which began this morning.

As is usual in the case of the sale of treasury bonds, Morgenthau said that midnight tonight would be the deadline for the filing or mailing of subscriptions. The treasury granted two extra days, however, for small investors who want to buy up to $5,000 worth of the bonds and are willing to wait 90 days before receiving the bonds and thus avoid any early speculation in them.

The bond sale was the largest single offering of treasury securities for cash since the World war.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES VOLUME AT RECORD LEVEL

Sales in November and in the first 10 months of the company's fiscal year, which began Feb. 1, set new records. Sears mail order houses and retail stores sold $88,962,972 worth of goods in November, 21.3 per cent more than the $73,322,817 of November, 1940.

In the 10 month period sales rose 30.4 per cent to $787,016,082, from $603,462,184 a year ago.

A. & P. Employes to Share $1,500,000 Extra Yule Pay

Additional compensation totaling $1,500,000 will be paid before Christmas to all employés of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company who have been in service six months or more, President John A. Hartford announced yesterday.

Priorities and Shortages of Materials Plague Industry

Shortages and prospective shortages of materials needed in the arms program continued to plague various branches of industry yesterday. The developments:

SADDLE MAKERS.

Members of the harness and saddle making industry, meeting in the Palmer House yesterday, were warned of impending materials shortages.

"We are beginning to worry about where to get metal to make harness buckles, bits, stirrups, and other saddle and harness parts," said Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Saddlery Manufacturers' Association of America. "We haven't any shortage yet, but our business has been picking up rapidly during the last year."

Dinsmore said farmers have been using more horses because of the wet weather and predicted an even larger use of horses.

BROOM INDUSTRY.

Representatives of the 25 million dollar a year broom manufacturing industry will vote today on a resolution calling for an appeal to the government for a priority rating that will assure them enough steel wire to keep their factories going.

The industry uses about 8,000 tons of steel wire a year and faces a shortage unless it can get a rating as a defense industry, P. A. Lindenmeyer of Arcola, Ill., secretary of the National Broom Manufacturers' association, said yesterday at the group's annual convention in the Hotel La Salle. He said the association will ask the rating on the ground that brooms are essential to health.

COMBINE FOR ORDER.

The Chicago Defense association, formed to assist small manufacturers in obtaining arms contracts coöperatively, announced yesterday it has submitted a bid to the army for a 5 million dollar order for parachute flares. If successful, 100 manufacturers, hard pressed by priorities, would benefit, Manager Alfred Rodriques said.

REFRIGERATOR FIRMS.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—A new and deeper cut in production of household mechanical refrigerators was ordered for January and February by Priorities Director Donald M. Nelson today.

The cuts will range from 52 per cent for the larger companies to 30 per cent for smaller concerns. The original curtailment, ordered in September, called for reduced output for the last five months of 1941 ranging from 29 to 45 per cent under the average factory sales of the 12 months prior to June 30.

RAILWAY EQUIPMENT.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Armament program officials, fearing a shortage of railroad equipment in 1942, today were reported considering creation of an allocation program to guarantee supplies of steel and other materials to freight car, locomotive, and equipment builders.

The program probably would restrict passenger car output sharply, it was stated, so that available critical materials might be funneled into production of freight cars to carry the mounting flow of arms shipments.

AUTO PLANT SHUTDOWN.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 4 (AP).—Priorities on metals will force a 17 day shutdown at the Cleveland Fisher Body division of General Motors corporation, it was announced today.

E. J. Gleason, resident manager, said the plant's 3,000 production workers would be laid off from Dec. 12 to Dec. 29 as a result of an OPM order curtailing "brightwork" on 1942 model automobiles.

SPAB Orders Public Quiz of Copper Output

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—The Supply Priorities and Allocations board ordered public hearings today to investigate charges of lagging copper output and obtain proposals on "all practicable means of increasing production."

SPAB announced that it had directed the Office of Production Management to open the hearings as soon as possible and to select an impartial chairman "from outside its own ranks" to conduct them.

Donald M. Nelson, executive director of SPAB, and William L. Batt, materials director of OPM, were conferring tonight on a choice of a satisfactory chairman.

Controversy Over REA.

Another copper controversy sprang into prominence this week when the Rural Electrification administration complained that it was unable to get priorities help from OPM on copper wire to complete REA projects.

Meanwhile Rep. Thomas D. Winter [R., Kas.] told a house subcommittee today he believed that the REA contemplated a power system in the southwest which would be superimposed upon and would duplicate privately owned lines. He was a witness before the house agriculture appropriations subcommittee studying REA funds for the 1942 fiscal year.

Winter, author of a resolution to investigate REA, renewed charges that it had enormous quantities of copper for transmission line purposes stored near Gilmer, Tex., while coöperatives were unable to obtain priorities from OPM on copper for lines to homes.

He suggested that before 1942 appropriations were made REA be asked how many miles of transmission lines coöperatives now owned or operated, how many miles of transmission lines REA expected to build next fiscal year, how many duplicated existing facilities, and how many generating plants REA intended to construct.

Says REA Employs Communists.

"I am convinced if REA were required to do this that you would find in my part of the country REA has a contemplated program which calls for expenditure of approximately 75 million dollars in the construction of a system superimposed upon and duplicating existing privately owned lines serving the southwest," he said.

He protested against $115,720 of the proposed appropriation, declaring it would go to pay salaries of "34 communists in the REA here in Washington," whom he offered to name.

Winter told the committee the Gilmer, Tex., copper was to be used in construction of 300 miles of transmission lines to connect seven east Texas coöperatives with a generating plant to be built later by REA at Gilmer. These seven coöperatives now obtain power from existing facilities at one of the lowest wholesale rates for REA coöperatives in the nation—8½ mills—he said.

RAIL OFFICIALS CONTINUE TALKS ON RATE BOOSTS

Railroad traffic executives yesterday continued their discussion behind closed doors in the Stevens hotel on proposals to increase railroad freight rates and passenger fares to offset increased operating expenses resulting from wage boosts and vacations awarded employés. Recommendations are expected to be submitted to the Association of American Railroads to expedite machinery for putting the increases into effect. The cost of the wage increases and vacations awarded workers is estimated at 300 to 325 million dollars annually.

3 MILLIONS ADDED TO BUSINESS LOANS OF BANKS DURING WEEK

Business and agricultural lending by Chicago banks recovered in the week ended Wednesday from a setback in the preceding week, the federal reserve board's report on member banks showed yesterday.

As of Wednesday, Chicago member banks had 679 million dollars of commercial, industrial and agricultural loans outstanding, 3 millions more than a week earlier. In the week ended Nov. 26, the volume dropped 12 millions. The latest report showed that such loans still were lagging in New York.

The board said treasury spending again increased the excess reserves [idle lendable funds] of member banks. The total for all member banks rose 60 million dollars, to 3 billion 860 millions.

Details of the board's report follow:

INDUSTRY ASKS SINGLE HEAD IN ARMS PROGRAM

Needed for Speedup, Asserts NAM.

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—The National Association of Manufacturers tonight called for a "single agency with a single head" to direct the nation's defense activities and elected a steel man to its presidency. The convention heard another steel man accuse the administration of contributing to "apathy regarding the emergency."

"If defense is to be speeded up and its cost held down, the existing confusion resulting from the conflicting authority and the overlapping of governmental committees must be ended.

"There should be a single agency with a single head who has full power to supervise and guide the defense program."

Rep. Smith Given Ovation.

Ernest T. Weir, chairman of National Steel corporation, told the industrialists that the Roosevelt administration "need examine only its own conscience to find the reason" for apathy toward the rearmament program.

Weir, long a bitter critic of the New Deal, spoke to an audience which yesterday voted in favor of federal legislation to block strikes in arms industries and which gave an ovation today to Rep. Howard W. Smith [D., Va.], author of the anti-strike bill which was approved Wednesday by the house of representatives.

The delegates heard William H. Davis, chairman of the national defense mediation board, warn: "To try to put the lid on labor organization in this country at this time would, in my opinion, be disastrous."

"The administration is supposed to be greatly concerned over public apathy regarding the emergency," Weir said.

Blames Administration.

"If there is national apathy, the administration need examine only its own conscience to find the reason, for the administration has not been fair and frank with industry or the people.

"So far, its moral leadership has consisted mainly of attempts to scare the country into a super-effort and of exhortations to sacrifice and unite.

"Sacrifice comes from example; unity from confidence and understanding. Yet the administration refuses to sacrifice one whit of politics, power or reform."

"Every strike now," the platform read, "is a gift to Hitler—paid for by the American people—paid for not only in dollars and cents but in the loss of badly needed defense supplies and civilian goods.

Protect Right to Employ.

"We need a farsighted national labor policy that is fair to all. The foundation of such a policy should be the right to work and right to employ. The right to strike must not be used to destroy the right to work or the right to employ.

"It should be illegal to call a strike [1] unless more than half the workers affected vote for it by secret ballot properly supervised; [2] when there is no dispute with the employer — the so-called sympathetic strike; [3] to settle a dispute between rival unions; [4] to bring about a closed shop or any other form of labor contract leading to a union monopoly of employment.

"The welfare of the employé, the employers, and the public at large requires that labor unions as well as corporations be legally responsible and fully accountable for their actions and those of their agents. This would weed out labor racketeers and thus protect the public, the individual laborer, and the well-run union."

Sloan Tells Post-War Need.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors corporation, called modernization of American industry's obsolete production plant the principal post-war job.

"Such an approach to the post-war problem," Sloan said, "contemplates accelerating the development of new products, re-engineering existing products, making use of new materials and new methods, and in other ways improving quality and value, particularly having in mind the necessity of lower post-war prices.

"In total, on the liquidation of the defense program we hope to have available concrete programs for each production unit, engineered and approved and founded on the most modern technology—all ready for action."

William P. Witherow of Pittsburgh, who was elected president of the National Association of Manufacturers yesterday, has been a steel maker since he graduated from Yale university in 1908. He is 58 years old.

He joined Jones & Laughlin Steel company in 1908 and was a member of the engineering firm of Irvin & Witherow from 1910 to 1914. For the next 15 years he was president of Witherow Steel company prior to joining Blaw-Knox company, of which he is now president. He served as vice president of Republic Steel corporation in 1930.

Witherow is a trustee of the Carnegie institute and Carnegie Institute of Technology, is associated with various educational and philanthropic enterprises, and is a director of several corporations.

Electric Power Plans to Meet SEC Demands

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Electric Power and Light corporation submitted to the Securities and Exchange commission today a plan for simplification of its corporate structure to comply with the holding company act under which it would retain the Southern Electric system and possibly United Gas, but dispose of four other units.

Under the plan, Southern Electric would be the primary system and United Gas either part of the principal system or a secondary system.

Would Dispose of Units.

Electric Power and Light would dispose of holdings in Idaho Power company, Utah Power and Light company, Dallas Power and Light company and Dallas Railway and Terminal company.

Joe H. Gill, president of the corporation, said copies of the proposal were being mailed to the 25,000 Electric Power stockholders but that no vote would be asked until the SEC had acted.

Electric Power proposes to replace existing preferred, second preferred and common stocks having a stated value of $155,044,139 with a single class of capital stock, to be distributed to holders of existing stock on a basis to be determined later.

Largest Stockholder.

In addition to retaining Southern Electric and possibly United Gas in the major system, Electric Power and Light proposes retention of Louisiana Power and Light, Mississippi Power and Light, Arkansas Power and Light, and New Orleans Public Service companies.

WILSON TO PAY ALL EMPLOYES OVERTIME RATE

Wilson & Co. announced yesterday that it will pay time and a half for overtime to all employés, regardless of whether the company would be required to do so under the recent decision of Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe in the Swift & Co. test case.

The company also said it will make overtime payments dating back to Oct. 24, 1938, when the wage and hour law became effective, to all employés entitled to these payments under Judge Igoe's decision. Swift & Co. made a similar announcement several weeks ago. Judge Igoe ruled only employés engaged in "handling, slaughtering, or dressing" live stock may be paid straight wages for overtime during 14 weeks of the year.

COURT RETURNS RAIL PLAN FOR FACTS ON VALUE

Decides Milwaukee Equity Is Lost.

BY LLOYD NORMAN.

The tedious legal machinery by which reorganization of the Milwaukee railroad had neared completion after six and a half years was thrown in reverse yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

In an opinion directing that the proceedings be returned to the Interstate Commerce commission for specific findings of fact, the court indicated its determination that the reorganized carrier be able to stand on sound financial legs.

The court had been asked to consider the appeals of various creditor groups, the road itself, and the stockholders who objected to provisions of the reorganization plan approved by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe on Nov. 13, 1940. The plan left stockholders without equity in the road's assets.

Stockholders Still Out.

Altho the Appellate court reversed Judge Igoe's approval of the plan, it indicated tentative acceptance of provisions eliminating stockholders from participating in the proposed new company and sharply reducing capitalization and interest charges.

"Our present conclusion is that the record supports the new plan as far as the amount of indebtedness which this railroad will bear is concerned," the opinion written by Judge Evan A. Evans asserted. "We think the reorganization plan which simplifies the financial structure also is to be approved and commended."

The basic objection which the court voiced in withholding approval of the plan as a whole was that the I. C. C. failed to set down definite findings of fact determining the values of properties underlying the various securities of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad.

Needed in Determination.

Without these findings, the court said, it could not determine whether the allocation of securities of the new company to the creditors was fair and equitable.

The opinion laid emphasis on the need for a sound reorganization not based on "luck" or "wild hopes," and stated that determination of expected earnings is essential to the formulation of a sound plan. "A decade of indisputable statistics is available for this task," the court said.

On other phases of the case the opinion held that:

1. The road's earnings cannot support its present capitalization.

2. The present stockholders have no equity in the properties, even after considering recently increased earnings.

3. The Milwaukee's acquisition of the Terre Haute lines, over which coal is transported from Indiana, has a "malodorous reputation," and the ICC should inquire into the wisdom of terminating the lease on these lines.

4. The plan's requirement that a mandatory annual reserve of $2,500,000 from income be set aside for betterments is proper, despite creditors' objection that it reduces their interest return.

Capitalization Slashed.

The reorganization plan cut the road's capitalization from $725,409,000 to $539,322,000, and reduced annual fixed charges from $23,694,000 to $14,533,000.

The court's concern over failure of the ICC to furnish specific findings sprung from its determination that the ill-fated 1928 reorganization of the road would not be repeated, the opinion indicated.

Chiding the creditors who have wrangled among themselves, the opinion recalled that the 1928 reorganization left the road with a burden of debt it could not sustain because the creditors at that time were "narrow visioned."

Bank Clearings Top Year Ago by Over 20 Per Cent

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Bank clearings for 23 large cities in the week ended Dec. 3 totaled $7,363,393,000, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. It was an increase of 20.4 per cent over the like 1940 week and 13.2 per cent better than for the week preceding. Chicago clearings totaled $462,500,000, an increase of 34.2 per cent over last year.

STOCKS TRIPPED BY SKEPTICISM AND TAX SELLING

Recovery Swing Stymied After Hopeful Start.

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Tax selling, profit taking and general skepticism halted the recovery swing in the stock market today. At the start the list acted as tho it would have no trouble extending the substantial advance of the preceding two sessions. Offerings then became more urgent and uneven trends developed after midday and persisted to the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished unchanged at 89.8. For the third successive day volume topped the million share mark at 1,126,960.

While fractional advances were well distributed at the end—isolated favorites were up 1 to 3 points—there were almost as many declines.

Steels, Rails Apathetic.

Steels did nothing and rails generally were apathetic, with the exception of Union Pacific which retained a ½ point gain. Steels still were confronted with pig iron and scrap shortages and carriers had to contend with faint hopes of the roads getting freight rate increases sufficient to ease the recent big wage boost.

Among favorites, Dow Chemical was up 3 and Allied Chemical 2¼. Others with lesser improvement included Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Chrysler, United Aircraft, United States Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, and Caterpillar Tractor.

Eastman Kodak, selling less its $2.50 dividend was off 2. Smaller recessions were posted for Santa Fe, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, du Pont, Westinghouse, and American Can.

CHICAGO STOCKS FIRM.

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange were generally firm yesterday, continuing the trend which has prevailed thruout the week. Sixty issues advanced, 23 declined and 39 closed unchanged. Transactions totaled 50,000 shares, the second largest volume of the year.

Peabody Coal B stock which closed ⅛ lower at ⅝, was the volume leader with 13,200 shares traded. Other stocks in the more active list were Chicago corporation, 2,450 shares, up 1-16 to 11-16; Commonwealth Edison, 1,650 shares, unchanged at 22⅝, and Middle West, 1,300 shares, up ⅛ to 4¼.

SAYS PRICE RULE BILL IS BETRAYAL OF AGRICULTURE

Charles W. Holman of Washington, D. C., secretary of the National Co-operative Milk Producers federation, yesterday called the price control bill passed in the house of representatives last week "a betrayal of agriculture." Holman spoke at a luncheon of the Agricultural Club of Chicago in the Hotel La Salle.

"The three methods of fixing maximum prices for farm products allowed the price administrator under the house bill were 110 per cent of an out-moded method of computing parity; the average prices of the period 1919 to 1929; or, the current prices as of the first weeks of October. All three choices are definitely too low to sustain the farm people who are facing higher labor costs, farm labor shortages and rising tax schedules," Holman said.

He asserted the bill was "produced by the time-dishonored method of picking upon the little fellow."

Commodities

Cotton futures advanced 25 to 55 cents a bale yesterday to the highest levels since late October. At the high point of the market prices were up as much as $1 a bale, almost $5 more than a week ago. Buying was prompted mainly by the rise in the ceiling price on cotton gray goods.

World and domestic sugar futures declined on a report that Cuba would accept the United States offer of 2.65 cents a pound for the island's 1942 sugar output. The world contract was down 0.01 to 0.02 cent a pound, and the domestic contract eased 0.02 to 0.12 cent.

A price of 2.65 cents a pound is equivalent to 3.89 cents on the duty paid basis, or 0.39 cent above the present ceiling, which was said to indicate that an upward revision was possible.

Coffee futures were up 0.02 to 0.05 cent a pound, and hides were unchanged to 0.20 cent a pound higher. Cottonseed oil closed irregularly, and cocoa was moderately lower.

PROFITS OF NASH KELVINATOR ARE BEST ON RECORD

The Nash-Kelvinator corporation announced yesterday that net profit for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 was $4,617,052, largest since its formation in 1936 thru merger of the automobile and refrigerator companies. The profit, equivalent to $1.07 per common share, compared with $1,505,151 or 35 cents a share earned in the preceding fiscal year.

Provision for federal taxes this year was $3,600,000, including $1,500,000 excess profit taxes, compared with provision for income taxes of only $370,600 for the preceding year.

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company set aside $29,443,045 for federal income and excess profits taxes in the nine months ended Sept. 30 and still had a consolidated net income of $15,860,252, against $14,583,328 in the corresponding period a year earlier, the company reported. In the 1940 period the federal taxes were much lower at $6,452,000.

The per share earnings on the combined 7 per cent preferred and common stocks increased to $5.93, compared with $5.46.

CASH FOR Winter Bills

Don't let winter expenses get you head over heels in debt. Ask the Commonwealth manager to help you. He will show you how to arrange small, convenient payments on any bills you now owe. He will also go over, with you, the numerous extra items of expense that are associated with the winter season and show you how to pay for those things with the very least effort and inconvenience. By providing you with the cash to buy what you need now, he can protect you against rising prices and thus save you much more than the cost of the loan. Why not stop in today, or better yet, phone for complete details.
